PREFACE.

S. CYRIL, the author of the Catechetical Lectures which follow, was born in an age ill adapted for the comfort or satisfaction of persons distinguished by his peculiar character of mind, and in consequence did not receive that justice from contemporaries which the Church Catholic has since rendered to his memory. The Churches of Palestine, apparently his native country, were the first to give reception to Arius on his expulsion from Alexandria, and without adopting his heresy, affected to mediate and hold the balance between him and his accusers. They were followed in this line of conduct by the provinces of Syria and Asia Minor, till the whole of the East, as far as it was Grecian, became more or less a large party, enduring to be headed by men who went the whole length of Arianism, from a fear of being considered Alexandrians or Athanasians, and a notion, for one reason or other, that it was thus pursuing a moderate course, and avoiding extremes. What were the motives which led to this perverted view of its duty to Catholic truth, then so seriously endangered, and what the palliations in the case of individuals, need not be minutely considered here. Suffice it to say, that between the Churches of Asia and the metropolis of Egypt there had been distinctions, not to say differences and jealousies of long standing; to which was added this great and real difficulty, that a Council held at Antioch about sixty years before had condemned the very term, Homoïasion, which was the symbol received at Nicæa, and maintained by the Alexandrians. The latter were in close agreement with the Latin Church, especially with Rome; and thus two great confederacies, as they may be called, were matured at this distressing era, which outlived the controversy forming them, the Roman, including the West and Egypt, and the Asiatic, extending from Constantinople to Jerusalem. Of the Roman party, viewed at and after the Arian period, were Alexander, Athanasius, Eustathius, Marcellus, Julius, Ambrose, and Jerome; of the Asiatic, Eusebius of Cæsarea, Cyril, Meletius, Eusebius of Samosata, Basil of Cæsarea (the Great), Basil of Ancyra, Eustathius of Sebaste, and Flavian. Of the latter, some were Semi-arian; of the former, one at least was Sabellian; while the majority of both were, to say the least, strictly orthodox; some of the latter indeed acquiescing with more or less of cordiality in the expediency of adopting the important Symbol of the Nicene Council, but others, it need scarcely be said, on both sides, being pillars of the Church in their day, as they have been her lights since. Such was the general position of the Church; and it is only confessing that the early Bishops and Divines were men “of like passions with” ourselves, to add, that some of them sometimes misunderstood or were prejudiced against others, and have left on record reports, for the truth of which they trusted perhaps too much to their antecedent persuasions, or the representations of their own friends. When Arianism ceased to be supported by the civil power, the controversy between East and West died; and peace was easily effected. And the terms of effecting it were these:—the reception of the Homoiöision by the Asiatics, and on that reception their recognition, in spite of their past scruples, by the Alexandrians and Latins. In this sketch the main outlines of S. Cyril’s history will be found to be contained; he seems to have been afraid of the term Homoiöision^a, to have been disinclined both to the friends of Athanasius and to the Arians^b, to have allowed the tyranny of the latter, to have shared in the general reconciliation, and at length both in life and death to have received honours from the Church, which, in spite of whatever objections may be made to them, appear, on a closer examination of his history, not to be undeserved.

CYRIL is said to have been the son of Christian parents, but the date and place of his birth is unknown. He was born in the first years of the fourth century, and at least was brought up in Jerusalem. He was ordained Deacon probably by Macarius, and Priest by Maximus, the Bishops of Jerusalem, the latter of whom he succeeded A. D. 349, or 350. Shortly before this, (A. D. 347, or 348,) during his Priesthood, he had delivered the Catechetical Lectures which have come down to us. With his Episcopate commence the historical difficulties under which his memory labours. It can scarcely be doubted that one of his consecrators was Acacius of Cæsarea^c, the leader of Arianism in the East, who had just before (A. D. 347,) been deposed by the Council of Sardica; yet, as the after history shews, Cyril was no friend of the Arians or of Acacius^d. He was canonically consecrated by the Bishops of his province, and as Acacius was still in possession of the principal see, he was compelled to a recognition which he might have wished to dispense with. He seems to have been a lover of peace; the Council of Sardica was at first as little acknowledged by his own party as by the Arians; and Acacius, being even beyond other Arians skilful and subtle in argument, and admitting the special formula^e of Cyril on the doctrine in controversy, probably succeeded in disguising his heresy from him.

A more painful account, however, of his consecration is given by S. Jerome^f, supported in the main by other writers, which can only be explained by supposing that Father to be misled by the information or involved in the prejudices of Cyril's enemies. He relates, that upon Maximus's death, the Arians seized upon the Church of Jerusalem, and promised Cyril the see on condition of his renouncing the ordination he had received from Maximus, and submitting to re-ordination from their hands; that he assented, served in the Church as a mere Deacon, and was then raised by Acacius to the Episcopate, when he persecuted Heraclius, whom Maximus had consecrated as his successor. This account, incredible in itself, is contradicted, on the one hand, by the second General Council, which in its Synodal letter plainly states that he had been “canonically ordained” Bishop, and on the other by his own writings, which as plainly shew, that in doctrine he was in no respect an Arian or an Arianizer.

If he suffers in memory from the Latin party as if Arian, he suffered not less in his life from the Arians as being orthodox. Seven or eight years after his consecration, he had a dispute with Acacius about the rights of their respective Churches^g. Acacius in consequence accused him to the Emperor Constantius of holding with the orthodox; to which it was added that he had during a scarcity sold some offerings made by Constantine to his Church, to supply the wants of the poor. Cyril in consequence was deposed, and retired to Tarsus^h; where, in spite of the efforts of Acacius, he was hospitably received, and employed by Silvanus the Semi-arian Bishop of the place. We find him at the same time in friendship with Eustathius of Sebaste and Basil of Ancyra, both Semi-ariansⁱ. His own writings, however, as has already been intimated, are most exactly orthodox, though he does not in the Catechetical Lectures, use the word Homoïasion; and in associating with these men he went little further than S. Hilary^k, during his banishment in Asia Minor, who calls Basil and Eustathius “most holy men,” than S. Athanasius, who acknowledges as “brethren” those who but scrupled at the word Homoïasion^l, or than S. Basil of Cæsarea, who till a late period of his life was an intimate friend of Eustathius.

In A. D. 359, two years after his deposition, he successfully appealed against Acacius to the Council of Seleucia^m, one of the two branches of the great Council of East and West, which was convened under the patronage of Constantius to settle the troubles of the Christian world. But the next year, Acacius contriving to bring the matter before a Council at Constantinople, where the Emperor was staying, Cyril with his friends was a second time deposed, and banished from Palestineⁿ.

On Constantius's death all the banished Bishops were restored^o, and Cyril, who was at that time with Meletius of Antioch, returned to Jerusalem, A. D. 362. He was there at the time of Julian's attempt to rebuild the Temple^p, and from the Prophecies boldly foretold its failure.

He was once more driven from his see, during the reign of the Arian Valens^q, (A. D. 367,) and he remained dispossessed till A. D. 378.

About the time of the death of Valens, the last of the Arian princes, he was restored, but under what circumstances is unknown. The Arians fell once for all with their imperial protectors; and soon after, that union of Christian Churches took place, which would never have been interrupted, had not a few bold and subtle-minded men contrived to delude them into the belief of mutual differences. S. Athanasius, the great peace-maker of the Church, was gone to his rest; and S. Basil also, who had mourned over evils which he had no means of remedying. Gregory of Nyssa, the brother of the latter, Gregory of Nazianzum, Meletius of Antioch, remained; and were present together with Cyril in the second General Council^r, which formally restored the latter to his see, and in its letter to the Western Bishops speaks of him as “the most reverend and religious Cyril, long since canonically appointed by the Bishops of the province, and in many ways and places a withstander of the Arians^s.” He died about the year 386. Except one or two short compositions and fragments, nothing remains of his writings but his Catechetical Lectures.

No ecclesiastical writer could be selected more suitable to illustrate the main principle on which the present “Library of the Fathers” has been undertaken, than S. Cyril of Jerusalem. His Catechetical Lectures were delivered, as we have seen, when he was a young man; and he belonged, till many years after their delivery, to a party or school of theology, distinct, to say the least, from that to which the most illustrious divines of his day belonged; a school, never dominant in the Church, and expiring with his age. It is not then on the score of especial personal authority that his Lectures are now presented to the English reader; and if the simple object of this Publication were to introduce the latter to the wise and good of former times, S. Cyril would have no claims to a place in it beyond many who have lived since.

In saying this, it is far indeed from being asserted, that the personal claims of the Fathers of the Church on our deference are inconsiderable; for it happens, not unnaturally, that the works which have been preserved, were worth preserving, or rather that their writers would have been extraordinary men in any age, and speak with the weight of great experience, ability, and sanctity. To those who believe that moral truth is not gained by the mere exercise of the intellect, but is granted to moral attainments, and that God speaks to inquirers after truth by the mouth of those who possess these, the writings of S. Basil or S. Augustine must always have an authority independent of their date or their agreement; nor is it possible for serious persons to read them, without feeling the authority which they possess as individuals. This, however, whatever it be, is not the main subject to which the present Translations propose to direct attention. The works to be translated have been viewed simply and plainly in the light of witnesses to an historical fact, viz. the religion which the Apostles transmitted to the early Churches, a fact to be ascertained as other past facts, by testimony, requiring the same kind of evidence, moral not demonstrative, open to the same difficulties of proof, and to be determined by the same practical judgment. It seems hardly conceivable that a fact so public and so great as the religion of the first Christians should be incapable of ascertainment, at least in its outlines, that it should have so passed away like a dream, that the most opposite opinions may at this day be maintained about it without possibility of contradiction. If it was soon corrupted or extinguished, then it is obvious to inquire after the history of such corruption or extinction; such a revolution every where, without historical record, being as unaccountable as the disappearance of the original religion for which it is brought to account. At first sight there is, to say the least, a considerable antecedent improbability in the notion, that, whereas we know the tenets and the history of the Stoic or the Academic philosophy, yet we do not know the main tenets, nor yet the fundamental principles, nor even the spirit and temper of Apostolic Christianity.

Under a sense of this improbability, in other words with an expectation that historical research would supply what they sought, our Divines at and since the Reformation have betaken themselves to the extant documents of the early Church, in order to determine thereby what the system of Primitive Christianity was; and so to elicit from Scripture more completely and accurately that revealed truth, which, though revealed there, is not on its surface, but needs to be deduced and developed from it. They went to the Fathers for information concerning matters, on which the Fathers at first sight certainly do promise to give information, just as inquirers into any other branch of knowledge might study those authors who have treated of it; and, whether or not they found what they sought, it surely was reasonable so to seek it, and cannot be condemned except by the event,—that is, by shewing that their expectation, however reasonable antecedently, is mistaken in fact, that after the search into history, no evidence is forthcoming concerning the text, nor yet the principles, nor even the temper which the Apostles inculcated.

A like expectation has actuated the present Publication; it has been conceived probable, to say the least, that the study of the writings of the Fathers will enable us to determine morally, to make up our minds for practical purposes, what the doctrines of the Apostles were, for instance whether or not they believed in our Lord's Divinity, or the general necessity of Baptism for salvation;—or if not the doctrines, still what were their principles, as whether or not or how far they allowed of using secular means for advancing Christian truth, or whether or not they sanctioned the monarchical principle, or again the centralizing principle, or again the principle of perpetuity in Church matters, or whether they considered that Scripture should be interpreted in the mere letter, or what is called spiritually;—or at least what was their temper, for instance, whether or not it was what is now called in reproach superstitious, or whether or not exclusive, or whether or not opposed to display and excitement. On some or other of these points there are surely grounds for expecting information from the Fathers, sufficient for our practice, and therefore having claims upon it.

Recourse then being had to the writings of the Fathers, in order to obtain information as to this historical fact, viz. the doctrines, the principles, and the religious temper of Apostolical Christianity, so far we have little to do with the personal endowments of the Fathers, except as these bear on the question of their fidelity. Their being men of strictest lives and most surpassing holiness, would not prove that they knew what it was the Apostles taught; and, were they but ordinary men, this need not incapacitate them from being faithful witnesses and serviceable informants, if they were in a position to be such. We should have but to take into account, and weigh against each other, their qualifications and disqualifications, for being evidence to a fact; we should have to balance honesty against prejudice, education against party influence, early attachments against reason, and so on. Thus we should treat them, taken one by one; but even this sort of personal scrutiny will be practically superseded, when we consult them, not separately, but as our Reformed Church ever has done, together; and demand their unanimous testimony to any point of doctrine or discipline, before we make any serious use of them: for, it stands to reason that, where they agree, the peculiarities of their respective nations, education, history, and period, instead of suggesting an indefinite suspicion against the subject-matter of their testimony, does but increase the evidence of its truth. Their testimony becomes the concurrence of many independent witnesses in behalf of the same facts; and, if it is to be slighted or disparaged, one does not see what knowledge of the past remains to us, or what matter for the historian. Viewing S. Cyril, for instance, as one of a body who bears a concordant evidence to the historical fact, that the Apostles taught that Christ is God^t, or that Baptism is the remedy of original sin^u, or that celibacy is not imperative on the clergy^x, whether he was Asiatic or African, of the Roman or the Oriental party, as little matters, as when we consider him as one of a company bearing witness to the historical^r fact, that the Apostles and their associates wrote the New Testament. Indeed, as the matter stands, there is something very remarkable and even startling to the reader of S. Cyril, to find in a divine of his school such a perfect agreement, for instance as regards the doctrine of the Trinity, with those Fathers who in his age were more famous as champions of it. Here is a writer, separated by whatever cause from what, speaking historically, may be called the Athanasian School, suspicious of its adherents, and suspected by them; yet he, when he comes to explain himself^y, expresses precisely the same doctrine as that of Athanasius or Gregory, while he merely abstains from the particular theological term in which the latter Fathers agreeably to the Nicene Council conveyed it. Can we have a clearer proof that the difference of opinion between them was not one of ecclesiastical and traditionary doctrine, but of practical judgment? that the Fathers at Nicæa wisely considered that, under the circumstances, the word in question was the only symbol which would secure the Church against the insidious heresy which was assailing it, while S. Cyril^z, with Eusebius of Cæsarea, Meletius, and others, shrunk from it, at least for a while, as if an addition to the Creed, or a word already taken into the service of an opposite heresy^a, and likely to introduce into the Church heretical notions? Their judgment, which was erroneous, was their own; their faith was not theirs only, but shared with them by the whole Christian world.

At the same time it must be granted, that this view of the Fathers as witnesses to Apostolic truth not individually but collectively, clear and unanswerable as it is, considered as a view, is open to some great practical inconveniences, when acted on in such an undertaking as that in which the present Editors are engaged. For since, by the supposition, no one of the Fathers is necessarily right in all his doctrine, taken by himself, but may be erroneous in secondary points, each taken by himself is in danger, by his own peculiarities, on the one hand of throwing discredit on all together, on the other of perplexing those who by means of the Fathers are inquiring after Catholic truth. And whereas in any publication of this nature, they cannot appear all at once, but first one and then another, and at all events cannot be read altogether, it follows that, during their gradual perusal, unavoidable prejudice or perplexity will often attach to the Fathers, and to the Catholic Faith, and to those who are enforcing the latter by means of the former. And thus Editors of the Fathers are pretty much in the condition of Architects, who lie under the disadvantage, from which Painters and Sculptors are exempt, of having their work exposed to public criticism through every stage of its execution, and being expected to provide symmetry and congruity in its parts independent of the whole.

Such are the circumstances in which we find ourselves, open to remark for every opinion, every sentence, every phrase, of every Father, before its meaning, relevancy, importance, or bearings are ascertained; before it is known whether it will be, as it were, hidden by others, or completed, or explained, or modified, or unanimously witnessed. And since the evil is in the nature of the case itself, we can do no more than have patience, and recommend patience to others, and with the racer in the Tragedy look forward steadily and hopefully to the event,—ΤΩ ΤΕΛΕΙ πίστιν φέγων,—when, as we trust, all that is inharmonious and anomalous in the details, will at length be practically smoothed. Meanwhile, as regards the condition of the reader himself, we consider that we shall sufficiently provide for his perplexity by reminding him of his duty to take his own Church for the present as his guide, and her decisions as a key and final arbiter, as regards the particular statements of the separate Fathers, which he may meet with; being fully confident, that her judgment which he begins by taking as a touchstone of each, will in the event be found to be really formed, as it ought to be, on a view of the testimony of all.

In expressing, however, these thoughts, it is obvious to anticipate an objection of another sort which is likely to be urged against our undertaking, to the effect that all these dangers and warnings are gratuitous, Scripture itself containing sufficient information concerning the doctrines, principles, and mind of the Apostles, without having recourse to the difficult and, as has been above confessed, the anxious task, whether ultimately successful or not, of collecting the object of our inquiry from the writings of the Fathers. This is not the place to treat of an objection, to which much attention has been drawn for several years past; yet thus much may be observed in passing:—If the sufficiency of Scripture for teaching as well as proving the Christian faith be maintained as a theological truth, the grounds in reason must be demanded, such as are independent of that inquiry into history which it is brought forward to prohibit. If it is urged as a truth obvious in matter of fact, and practically certain, then its maintainers have to account for the actual disagreement among readers of Scripture as to what the faith, principles, and temper of the Apostles were. And if it be urged on the authority of the sixth Article of our Church, then they must be asked, why if this Article contained a reason against deferring to Antiquity, the Convocation of 1571, which imposed it, at the same time, as is well known, ordered all preachers to teach according to the Catholic Fathers, and why our most eminent Divines, beginning with the writers of the Homilies themselves, have ever pursued that very method.

Nothing can be more certain than that Scripture contains all necessary doctrine; yet nothing, it is presumed, can be more certain either, than that, practically speaking, it needs an interpreter; nothing more certain than that our Church and her Divines assign the witness of the early ages of Christianity concerning Apostolic doctrine, as that interpreter.

Without, however, entering into a question which our Church seems to have determined for us, a few words shall be devoted to the explanation of a verbal difficulty by which it is often perplexed. An objection is made, which, when analyzed, resolves itself into the following form.

“ Either Antiquity does or does not teach something over and above Scripture: if it does, it adds to the inspired word;—if it does not, it is useless.—Does it then or does it not add to Scripture?” And, as if shewing that the question is a difficult one, of various writers who advocate the use of Antiquity, one may be found to speak of the writings of the Fathers as enabling us to ascertain and revive truths which have fallen into desuetude, while another may strenuously maintain, that they impart the knowledge of no new truths over and above what Scripture sets before us. Now, not to touch upon other points suggested by this question, it may be asked by way of explanation, whether the exposition of the true sense of any legal document, any statute or deed, which has been contested, is an addition to it or not? It is in point of words certainly; for if the words were the same, it would be no explanation; but it is no addition to the sense, for it professes to be neither more nor less than the very sense, which is expressed in one set of words in the original document, in another in the comment. In like manner, when our Saviour says, “ I and My Father are One,” and Antiquity interprets “ One ” to mean “ one in substance,” this is an addition to the wording, but no addition to the sense. Of many possible means of interpreting a word, it cuts away all but one, or if it recognizes others, it reduces them to harmony and subordination to that one. Unless the Evangelist wished his readers to be allowed to put any conceivable sense upon the word, the power of doing so is no privilege; rather it is a privilege to know that very meaning, which to the exclusion of all others is the true meaning. Catholic Tradition professes to do for Scripture just which is desirable, whether it is possible or not, to relieve us from the chance of taking one or other of the many senses which are wrong or insufficient, instead of the one sense which is true and complete.

But again, every diligent reader of the Bible has a certain idea in his own mind of what its teaching is, an idea which he cannot say is gained from this or that particular passage, but which he has gained from it as a whole, and which if he attempted to prove argumentatively, he might perplex himself or fall into inconsistencies, because he has never trained his mind in such logical processes; yet nevertheless he has in matter of fact a view of Scripture doctrine, and that gained from Scripture, and which, if he states it, he does not necessarily state in words of Scripture, and which, whether after all correct or not, is not incorrect merely because he does not express it in Scripture words, or because he cannot tell whence he got it, or logically refer it to, or prove it from, particular passages. One man is a Calvinist, another an Arminian, another a Latitudinarian; not logically merely, but from the impression gained from Scripture. Is the Latitudinarian necessarily adding to Scripture because he maintains the proposition, "religious opinions matter not, so that a man is sincere," a proposition not in terminis in Scripture? Surely he is unscriptural, not because he uses words not in Scripture, but because he thereby expresses ideas which are not expressed in Scripture. In answer then to the question, whether the Catholic system is an addition to Scripture, we reply, in one sense it is, in another it is not. It is not, inasmuch as it is not an addition to the range of independent ideas which Almighty God intended should be expressed and conveyed on the whole by the inspired text: it is an addition, inasmuch as it is in addition to their arrangement, and to the words containing them,—inasmuch as it stands as a conclusion contrasted with its premisses, inasmuch as it does that which every reader of the Scriptures does for himself, express and convey the ideas more explicitly and determinately than he finds them, and inasmuch as there may be difficulty in duly referring every part of the explicit doctrine to the various parts of Scripture which contain it.

Nothing here is intended beyond setting right an ambiguity of speech which both perplexes persons, and leads them to think that they differ from others, from whom they do not differ. No member of the English Church ever thought that the Church's doctrine was an addition to Scripture in any other sense than that in which an individual's own impression concerning the sense of Scripture is an addition to it; or ever referred to a supposed deposit of faith distinct from Scripture existing in the writings of the Fathers, in any other sense than in that in which asking a friend's opinion about the sense of Scripture, might be called imputing to him unscriptural opinions. The question of words then may easily be cleared up, though it often becomes a difficulty; the real subject in dispute, which is not here to be discussed, being this, how this one true sense of Scripture is to be learned, whether by philological criticism upon definite texts,—or by a promised superintendence of the Holy Ghost teaching the mind the true doctrines from Scripture, (whether by a general impression upon the mind, or by leading it, piecemeal text by text into doctrine by doctrine;)—or, on the other hand, by a blessing of the Spirit upon studying it in the right way, that is, in the way actually provided, in other words, according to the Church's interpretations. In all cases the text of Scripture and an exposition of it are supposed; in the one the exposition comes first and is brought to Scripture, in the other it is brought out after examination into Scripture; but you cannot help assigning some exposition or other, if you value the Bible at all. Those alone will be content to give no sense to Scripture, who think it matters not whether it has any sense or not. As to the case of a difference eventually occurring in any instance of importance, between what an individual considers to be the sense of Scripture and that which he finds Antiquity to put upon it, the previous question must be asked, whether such difference is likely to arise. It will not arise in the case of the majority, nor again in the case of serious, sensible, and humble minds; and where men are not such, it will be but one out of many difficulties. Such a person however, whether from his own fault or not, is in a difficulty; difficulties are often our lot, and we must bear them, as we think God would have us. We can cut the knot by throwing off the authority of the Fathers; and we can remain under the burden of the difficulty by allowing that authority; but, however we act, we have no licence to please our taste or humour, but we act under a responsibility.

Two main respects have been mentioned, in which the concordant testimony of the Fathers may be considered to throw light upon the sense of Scripture; on these a few words are now necessary with a special reference to S. Cyril,—first as regards the doctrine of Scripture, next as regards the interpretation of texts. Now it will be found that they are more concordant as to the doctrines contained in Scripture, than as to the passages in which these are contained and their comparative force in each; and, again, that they are more concordant in their view of the principles upon which Scripture is to be interpreted, than in their application of these, and their view of the sense in consequence to be assigned to particular texts. This was to be expected, as may easily be made appear.

There seems to have been no Catholic exposition of Scripture, no traditionary comment upon its continuous text. The subject-matter of Catholic tradition, as preserved in the writings of the Fathers, is, not Scripture interpretation or proof, but certain doctrines, professing to be those of the Gospel; and since among these we find this, “that Scripture contains all the Gospel doctrines,” we infer, that, according to the mind of the Fathers, those very doctrines which they declare to be the Christian faith are contained in and to be proved from Scripture. But where they occur in Scripture cannot be ascertained from the Fathers, except so far as the accidental course of controversy has brought out their joint witness concerning certain great passages, on which they do seem to have had traditionary information. The Arian and other heresies obliged them to appeal to Scripture in behalf of a certain cardinal doctrine which they held by uninterrupted tradition ; and thus have been the means of pointing out to us particular texts in which are contained the great truths which were assailed. But while we are thus furnished with a portion of the Scripture proof of Catholic doctrine, guaranteed to us by the unanimous consent of the Church, it is natural also, under the circumstances above mentioned, that many of the discussions which occurred should contain appeals to Scripture of a less cogent character, and evidencing the exercise of mere private judgment upon the text in default of Catholic Tradition. The early Church had read Scripture not for argument but for edification ; it is not wonderful that though holding the truth, and seeing it in the inspired text, and often seeing there what we fail to see, she should be as unable to distribute exactly each portion of the truth to each of its places in the text, and to analyze the grounds of those impressions which the whole conveyed, as religious persons in the private walks of life may be now-a-days. Accordingly her divines, one by one, while they witness to the truth itself most sufficiently, as speaking from Tradition, yet often prove it insufficiently, as relying necessarily on private judgment.

For instance, the text, He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father, is taken by S. Cyril, agreeably with other early writers, as a proof that Christ is in all things like (ὅμοιος ἐν παντί) to the Father ; (Lect. xi. 18.) and the text, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, as a proof of the necessity of Baptism. (Lect. iii. 4.) But though there are many of equal cogency, there are many also, about which there may be fairly difference of opinion, as when he interprets, Surely God is in thee, (Isai. 45, 14.) of the Indwelling of the Father in the Son. (Lect. xi. 16.)

And, while it is not at all surprising even though the Fathers should occasionally adduce texts as proofs of certain doctrines which are not so, neither is it strange that they should overlook proofs which did exist, and which we are able to discern. For they were in the light of a recent Tradition; we are in the twilight of a distant age; and our minds, like eyes accustomed to the twilight, may discern much in the dark parts of Scripture, which were hid from them by their very privilege.

Such imperfections, however, in the Scripture proofs adduced by the Fathers, whether in excess or defect, do not interfere at all with their maintenance of the great principles that there is a Faith, and that it is in Scripture. As far as S. Cyril is concerned, the following passages witness both truths clearly. "This Seal," he says, speaking of the Creed, "have thou ever in mind; which now by way of summary has been touched on in its heads, and, if the Lord grant, shall hereafter be set forth according to our power with Scripture proofs. For concerning the divine and sacred mysteries of the Faith, we ought not to deliver even the most casual remark without the Holy Scriptures; nor be drawn aside by mere probabilities, and the artifices of argument. Do not then believe me because I tell you these things, unless thou receive from the Holy Scriptures the proof of what is set forth; for this salvation, which is of our faith, is not by ingenious reasonings, but by proof from the Holy Scriptures." (Lect. iv. 17.)

Again: "Take thou and hold that faith only as a learner and in profession, which is by the Church delivered to thee, and is established from all Scripture. For since all cannot read the Scripture, but some as being unlearned, others by business, are hindered from the knowledge of them, in order that the soul may not perish for lack of instruction, in the Articles which are few we comprehend the whole doctrine of the faith . . . Commit to memory the Faith, merely listening to the words; and expect at the fitting season the proof of each of its parts from the Divine Scriptures. For the Articles of the Faith were not composed at the good pleasure of man; but the most important points chosen from all Scripture, make up the one teaching of the Faith. And as the mustard seed in a little grain contains many branches, thus also this Faith, in a few words, has enfolded in its bosom the whole knowledge of godliness contained both in the Old and New Testaments." (Lect. v. 12.) The doctrine, expressed in these and other passages of S. Cyril, is implied and assumed in a most striking way in a number of others^b.

So much on the Scripture proof of doctrine as contained in the Fathers; as to the doctrinal sense of Scripture, the second point to be spoken of, what has been already observed is quite consistent, not to say connected with the remark to be made concerning it, viz. that the Fathers are far more concordant in assigning principles of Scripture interpretation, than in the interpretation of particular passages. Indeed the very view they took of the Bible led to variety, apparent discordance, and private conjecture in interpreting it. They considered it to be a sort of storehouse of sacred treasures^c, contained under the letter in endless profusion, piled, as it were, one on another, with order indeed and by rule, but still often so deeply lodged within the text, that from ordinary eyes they were almost hidden^d. Hence it was considered as a duty and privilege proposed to the Christian, to find out the "wondrous things of God's law;" and no meaning was so remote from the literal text as to be proved thereby to be foreign to it in the Divine intention. While then, according to their disposition or school of theology, they were led, more or less, to attempt to search into the deep mysteries of Scripture for themselves^e, they felt little difficulty in multiplicity of interpretations, or fear of inconsistency. And while such a principle as has been described necessarily led them to diversity in their interpretations, that diversity does but increase our evidence of the fact of their one and all holding that principle; and thus, while their value as commentators varies with their personal qualifications, their adherence to that principle comes to us as a Catholic tradition.

Instances of individual, local, or transitory opinion, that is, of what would at present, rightly or wrongly, be called fancifulness and caprice, are frequent in S. Cyril's Lectures, and scarcely need specifying. Such, for example, is his interpreting, "Look unto the rock whence ye are hewn," of the Holy Sepulchre, (Lect. xiii. 35.) or "At evening time it shall be light," of the circumstances of the Crucifixion; (Lect. xiii. 24.) and much more his considering, "Thou hast wrought salvation in the midst of the earth," (Lect. xiii. 28.) to allude to Golgotha, and "the fountain sealed," to Christ in the sepulchre after the sealing of the stone. (Lect. xiv. 5.)

These interpretations, whether his own or not, and whether true or not, do not profess to be traditional, and are but witnesses, to the great principle from which they proceed, of the everliving intelligence, deep and varied meaning, and inexhaustible fulness of Holy Scripture. This indeed he himself declares in one place in words which may be suitably extracted. After giving two conjectures concerning the doctrinal meaning of the Blood and Water, which came from our Lord's side, viz. that it typifies the Jews' imprecation of His blood upon them and Pilate's washing his hands of it, or again the condemnation of the Jews and the baptismal pardon of Christians, he adds, "For nothing happened without a meaning, (οὐδὲν εἰκῆ γέγονεν.) Our fathers who have written comments, have given another reason of this matter. For since in the Gospel the power of salutary Baptism is two-fold, that bestowed by means of water on the Illuminated, and that to holy Martyrs in persecutions through their own blood, there came out of that salutary side blood and water," &c. (Lect. xiii. 21.)

When then it is inquired, what information is given us by the Fathers, concerning Scripture or Catholic doctrine, we reply, that they rather declare doctrine and say that it is in Scripture, than prove it by Scripture, at once concordantly and in detail; and again, that they rather tell us how we must set about interpreting Scripture, than authoritatively interpret it for us. It is presumed that this is on the whole correct; true as it also is, that on a number of the most important points of doctrine they have preserved to us, with an unanimity which is an evidence of its Apostolic origin, the very texts in which they are contained. Still after all they are rather led to dwell on Scripture by itself, and on the doctrinal system by itself, as two distinct, parallel, and substantive sources of divine information, than to blend and almost identify the two, as a variety of circumstances has occasioned or obliged us to do at this day.

It would at first sight seem unnecessary to add to what has been said, any remark on mistakes or apparent mistakes committed by S. Cyril in matters of fact; but as this is often a ground of misconception, the subject shall be briefly noticed. For instance, as to his statement concerning the discovery of the True Cross^f, he is to be treated as any other historical witness under the same circumstances, and the weight of his evidence, whatever it is, is to be balanced against the improbability of the fact recorded, whether antecedent, or arising from the silence concerning it of Eusebius and Constantine. Again, we may well allow he was not a natural historian, without hurting his theological character. It is true that he believed in the existence of the Phoenix^g, and argued from the analogy afforded by it in favour of the Resurrection. That is, he was philosophical on false grounds. And in like manner persons have proved, as they thought, the Noachical deluge from bones found on the top of hills, or have attributed it to the action of a comet, or have believed or doubted the existence of the sea serpent or the dodo, and never have been reckoned worse or better divines for either success or failure in such conjectures. It as little follows that a theologian must be an ornithologist, as that an ornithologist or comparative anatomist must be a theologian; and as no one in this day would reckon ignorance of divinity as a bar to eminence and authority in scientific researches, so it betrays a poverty of argument to reproach S. Cyril, or Eusebius, or S. Clement before them, with not being proficient in a branch of knowledge which has been a peculiar study of modern times. They did not profess to be natural historians; let it be enough for this age to cultivate physical science itself, without molesting the Fathers with its new standards of intellectual superiority. Let it be enough for it to despise the province of theology, without seeking to remodel it. The Fathers did not profess the science on which it prides itself; nothing but inspiration could secure them from shewing ignorance concerning it; and no one pretends that S. Cyril or S. Clement were inspired.

^f Lect. iv. 10. x. 19. xiii. 4.

It is only necessary to add with respect to the present Translation, that for almost the whole of it the Editors are indebted to Mr. CHURCH, Fellow of Oriel College. It has been made from the Benedictine Text compared with the Oxford Edition of Milles, the Benedictine Sections in the separate Lectures being marked by numbers at the beginning of the paragraphs, and the Oxford sections on the margin. The few notes which are introduced are almost confined to the elucidation of matter of fact, and have been kept clear as far as possible from the expression of opinions; in drawing them up, much use has been made of the valuable information contained in the Oxford and Benedictine Editions. Such words of S. Cyril as have a theological, controversial, or critical importance, are usually placed in the margin opposite their place in the Translation. The quotations from Scripture are given in the words of our received version, wherever the Greek of Cyril admitted of it; when otherwise, it has been signified in the margin.

OXFORD,

The feast of St. Matthew, 1838.

Notice concerning the Churches in which the Lectures were delivered.

IT has already been observed, that St. Cyril delivered the following Lectures in the year 347 or 348. He delivered them without book, in the Churches raised over the spot made sacred by our Lord's death, burial, and resurrection; those addressed to the Catechumens, excepting the Introductory Lecture, in the evening, that being the usual time for religious meetings during Lent; and those on the Mysteries, at noon.

It may be interesting to the reader to be put in possession of Eusebius's description of the Basilica and Church, which Constantine erected, in which the Lectures were delivered. The circumstance of its being contemporaneous history will be considered perhaps to compensate for the turgidness of the style. In his panegyric upon Constantine, he briefly noticed the buildings in question thus:

“As regards Palestine, in the midst of the royal home of the Hebrews, at the very place of the Saving Witness^a, he employed himself in ornamenting richly and with munificent earnestness a vast House of prayer and Holy Temple to the Saving Sign; and paid honour to the Great Saviour's tomb of eternal memory, His very trophy raised over death, with decorations not to be described.” c. 9.

And more at length in his life of the same Emperor. “He considered it his duty to constitute that most blessed spot in Jerusalem of the Saving Resurrection, an object of admiration and reverence to all. Accordingly he gave orders to construct there a House of Prayer, not projecting it apart from God, but moved in spirit by the Saviour Himself. For in former days irreligious men, or rather the whole race of evil spirits by means of them, had made it a point to consign over that divine monument of immortality to darkness and oblivion. . . . Not sparing their labour in the work, and bringing earth from other places, they conceal the whole place; and then raising it up high and paving it with stones, they bury the divine treasure somewhere beneath under this vast mound. Then as though nothing more was to be done, above that ground, they contrive a sepulchre, dreadful indeed for souls; by building a dark shrine of dead idols to the unchaste spirit called Venus. And there they offered impure sacrifices upon profane and guilty altars. . . . No one ever, governor, or general, or emperor himself, was found equal for the overthrow of this daring deed, but one, the favoured of the All Sovereign God. Influenced then by a Divine Spirit, he bore not that the place aforementioned should be hidden under that unholy mass, by the counsels of enemies, forgotten and unknown; he yielded not to the wickedness of the perpetrators of the deed; so, invoking God his Helper, he bids purify the place, deeming it fitting that what had been the most polluted by our enemies, should receive the noblest work of good through him. And upon the word the structures of falsehood began to fall upon the ground from their height above; and images, evil spirits, and the whole edifice of error fell into pieces and were demolished. Nor did the Emperor's zeal rest here; but he orders to carry off and cast away, far away from the spot, the materials, wood and stone. Deeds followed upon word; yet even at this point was he not satisfied. Again, divinely moved, he commanded to dig deep and carry out the soil itself, together with the mound, far away, as having been polluted by the mire of devilish sacrifices. This too was instantly done; on which another foundation instead of the first came to light, one in the depth of the earth, and the awful and all-holy Witness of the Saving Resurrection came to light beyond all hope; and then that cave, a holy of holies, began to image forth the scene of the revival of the Saviour. Thus after its setting in darkness, it again came forth to the light; and to those who came to see, it afforded a manifest view of the history of the things done there, witnessing by facts more vocally than any voice the Saviour's resurrection. All this being done, immediately the Emperor by pious edicts and unsparing contributions, commands to build about the Saving Cave, a House of prayer, worthy of God, with rich and royal magnificence, having long proposed this, and contemplated the future with special eagerness;—sending to the Governors of the Eastern provinces, by unsparing and loving contributions to accomplish an extraordinary, great, and rich work; and to the then Bishop of Jerusalem, [Macarius,] the following letter, &c. . . .

“ First of all, he set about the decorations of the Sacred Cave itself, that divine monument, by which an Angel dazzling with light once told good tidings of the regeneration manifested to all through the Saviour. This then first, as the beginning of the whole, the Emperor's devotion enriched with choice pillars and much embellishment, beautifying it with ornaments of every sort.

“ Next he passed over an ample space opened to the sky; which was paved with shining stone, and surrounded on three sides with long porticos.

“ But on the fourth side which was opposite the Cave, and looked eastward, was added the Royal Temple, [the Basilica,] an extraordinary work, rising to an immense height, and spread out in exceeding length and width. The inner walls were covered with marble slabs of various colours, and the outside face of the walls, shining with polished stones closely fitted together, was a specimen of supernatural beauty not inferior to the look of marble. The roof without was protected with lead, as a defence against the weather; and the roof within was composed of carved fretwork, and by means of compartments stretched its vast expanse over the whole Basilica, and was covered throughout with resplendent gold, so as to make the whole Temple dazzling as with a blaze of light.

“ On each side ran a portico with two ranges along the length of the Temple, both above and under ground ; and of this too the roof was enriched with gold. The outside ranges consisted of enormous columns ; and the inside of quadrangular buttresses highly ornamented. Three handsome doors on the East let in the multitude who would enter.

“ At the opposite end, was the perfection of the whole work, a hemisphere^b, at the top of the Basilica ; girt with twelve pillars according to the number of the Apostles of the Saviour, with capitals ornamented with large silver cups, which the Emperor himself gave as a most beautiful offering to his God.

“ Hence, as one goes forward to the entrances lying before the Temple, he interposed an open court ; and on each side, first a hall, then porticoes, and then hall doors. Next, reaching into the broad marketplace, was placed the vestibule of the whole tastefully fashioned, affording to those who were passing outside a striking view of the wonders within.

“ This Temple then the Emperor raised as a conspicuous Witness of the Saving Resurrection, beautifying it with rich and royal materials. And he embellished it with innumerable gifts of undescribable splendour, with gold, silver, precious stones of every kind ; of which the exquisite workmanship in particular, whether in size, number, or variety, does not admit of being recounted here.” (iii. 25—40.)

A ground-plan of the Church and Basilica is subjoined :—

^b i. e. the Apsis where the Altar was.

A. The Anastasis, that is, the Church upon the site of the Holy Sepulchre ; where S. Cyril delivered his last five Lectures. (Lect. xviii. 33.)

The Holy Sepulchre was within a stone's cast of the top of Golgotha, on the southern side of the hill. It originally consisted of two caves, (Lect. xiv. 9.) an inner and an outer, of which the latter was destroyed by Constantine. The former, which he left, and, as it would appear, (vid. above note a on Lect. xiv. 9.) cut off from the main body of the rock, is shaped round outside like a horseshoe with the circular part towards the West, and is entered by the East. Inside it remains apparently in its ancient form of a trapezium ; the roof can be touched with the hand, and on the North is an opening in the face of the rock, where our Lord's body seems to have been placed. The stone which had been placed at the mouth of the cave lay in S. Cyril's time near the Sepulchre whether within or without. (Lect. xiii. 39.) The Church built over the Holy Sepulchre was circular.

B. Golgotha or Calvary, the place of our Lord's Crucifixion.

The whole mount, including the site of the sacred buildings, was sometimes called Golgotha. (Vid. Lect. iv. 10. 14. xvi. 4.) Sometimes only its top where the Crucifixion actually took place, which was to the north of the Basilica of the Holy Cross. (Lect. xiii. 4.) It was without the walls of the ancient city, to the north of Mount Sion, and about a mile and a half to the West of the Mount of Olives ; and in S. Cyril's time it was a wild desolate spot, some traces remaining of the garden in which the Sepulchre was situated. (Lect. xiv. 5.)

C. The Basilica of Constantine, or Church of the Holy Cross, (Euseb. Laud. C. 9.) called also the Martyrium or Testimony, as being built close upon and in memory of our Lord's Passion ; where S. Cyril delivered his first eighteen Lectures.

The Basilica of the Holy Cross, lay to the West of the Holy Sepulchre, being connected with it by a court open above, paved with choice marble, and bounded on all but the west side with a portico. It lay higher than the court, from which it seems to have been entered by steps ; and there were three doors at the entrance, through which the Holy Sepulchre and the summit of Golgotha were seen. Porticos ran along the north and south, and the Altar was at the West end.

LECTURES ADDRESSED TO CANDIDATES FOR BAPTISM DURING LENT, IN THE BASILICA OF THE HOLY CROSS.

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE.

[Delivered in full Church, and therefore perhaps on a Sunday.]

LECTURE I.

ON THE PURPOSE OF MIND NECESSARY FOR BAPTISM.

Isaiah i. 16—19.

Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before Mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land.

[Probably in the first week.]

ON THE POWER OF REPENTANCE FOR THE REMISSION OF SIN.

Ezekiel xviii. 20—23.

The righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him. But if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all My statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die. All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him; in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live. Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God: and not that he should return from his ways, and live?

LECTURE III.

ON HOLY BAPTISM.

Romans vi. 3, 4.

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into His death? Therefore we are buried with Him by Baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

[Probably in the first week.]

LECTURE IV.

ON THE TEN POINTS OF FAITH.

Colossians ii. 8.

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.

[Probably in the first week.]

ON FAITH.

Hebrews xi. 1, 2.

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen: for by it the elders obtained a good report.

Isaiah vii. 10—14.

Moreover the Lord spake again unto Ahaz, saying, Ask thee a sign of the Lord thy God; ask it either in the depth, or in the height above. And Ahaz said, I will not ask, neither will I tempt the Lord. And he said, Hear ye now, O House of David; is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also? Therefore the Lord Himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a Son, and shall call His Name Immanuel.

INTRODUCTORY LECTURE.

1. ALREADY is there on you the savour of blessedness, O (1.) ye who are soon to be enlightened: already are you gathering spiritual flowers, to weave heavenly crowns withal: already hath the fragrance of the Holy Ghost refreshed you: already are you at the entrance hall of the King's house: may you be brought into it by the King! For now the blossoms of the trees have budded; may but the fruit likewise be perfected! Thus far, your names have been given in, and the roll-call made for service; there are the torches of the bridal train, and the longings after heavenly citizenship, and a good purpose, and a hope attendant; for He cannot lie who hath said, To them that love God, all things work together for good. Rom. 8, 28. God is indeed lavish in His benefits: yet He looks for each man's honest resolve: so the Apostle subjoins, To those who are called according to their purpose. ^{πρὸς αὐτοὺς} _{σιν.} Honesty of purpose makes thee called: for though the body be here, yet if the mind be away, it avails nothing.

2. Even Simon Magus once came to the Laver of Baptism, he was baptized, but not enlightened^a. His body he dipped in water, but admitted not the Spirit to illuminate his heart.

^a S. Austin considers Simon Magus demnation. Vid. in Ps. 103. i. 9. to be born again, but to a greater con-soul benighted with sins, and a defiled purpose. Entered thou hast: thou hast passed, thou hast been enrolled. Seest thou these venerable arrangements of the Church? Viewest thou her order and discipline, the reading of the Scriptures, the presence of the religious, the course of teaching? Let then the place affect thee, let the sight sober thee. Depart in good time now, and enter to-morrow in better. If avarice has been the fashion of thy soul, put on another, and then come in: put off what thou hadst, cloke it not over: put off, I pray thee, fornication and uncleanness, and put on the most bright robe of soberness. This charge I give thee, before Jesus the spouse of souls come in, and see their fashion. Thou art allowed a distant day; thou hast a penitence of forty^b; thou hast full time to put off, and to wash thee, to put on, and to enter in. But if thou abide in thy evil purpose, he who speaks is blameless, but thou must not look for grace: for though the water shall receive thee, the Spirit will not accept thee. Whoso is conscious of a wound, let him take the salve: whoso has fallen, let him rise: let there be no Simon among you, no hypocrisy, no idle curiosity about the matter.

5. Perhaps thou comest on another ground. A man may (4.) be wishing to pay court to a woman, and on that account come hither: and the same applies to women likewise: again, a slave often wishes thus to please his master, or one friend another. I avail myself of this angler's bait, and receive thee, as one who has come indeed with an unsound purpose, but art to be saved by a good hope. Thou knewest not perchance whither thou wast coming, nor what net was taking thee. Thou art within the Church's nets, submit to be taken; flee not, for Jesus would secure thee, not to make thee die, but by death to make thee live. For thou must die and rise again; thou hast heard the Apostle saying, Dead indeed to sin, but alive unto righteousness. Die then to thy sins, and live to righteousness: yea, from this day forth, live.

6. Look, I beseech thee, how great dignity Jesus presents to thee. Thou wert called a Catechumen, which means, hearing with the ears, hearing hope, and not perceiving;

^b In some Churches this period was of thirty days; in other twenty; in the Churches of Italy it seems to have been more than forty.

INTROD. hearing mysteries, yet not understanding: hearing Scriptures, LECT. yet not knowing their depth. Thou no longer hearest with the ears, but thou hearest within; for the indwelling Spirit henceforth fashions thy mind into a house of God. When thou shalt hear what is written concerning mysteries, then thou shalt understand, what hitherto thou knewest not. And think not it is a trifle thou receivest. Thou, a wretched man, πίστος, a receiver the Name of God; for hear the words of Paul, God is believer; faithful; and another Scripture, God is faithful and just.

δικαίος, justified. This the Psalmist foreseeing, since men were to receive the Name ascribed to God, said in the person of God, I have said, ye are Gods, and are all the children of the Most High.

1 Cor. 1, 9. But beware lest with the name of believer thou have the purpose of an unbeliever. Thou hast entered into the struggle; labour therefore in the race, for season thou hast none other such. If thou hadst thy wedding day before thee, wouldest thou not make light of aught besides, and be full of preparations for the feast? And wilt thou not then, when on the eve of consecrating thy soul to a heavenly spouse, let go carnal things that thou mayest take hold of spiritual?

Ps. 82, 6.

7. The bath of Baptism we may not receive twice or thrice; else, it might be said, Though I fail once, I shall go right next time: whereas if thou failest once, there is no setting things right, for there is One Lord, and One Faith, and One Baptism: none but heretics are re-baptized, since their former baptism was not baptism^c.

(5.) 8. For God seeks nothing else from us, save a good purpose. Say not, How are my sins blotted out? I tell thee, from willing, from believing; what is shorter than this? But if thy lips declare thy willing, but thy heart is silent, He knows the heart who judgeth thee. Cease then henceforth from every wicked thing: refrain thy tongue from light words, thine eye from sin, thy mind from roving after useless matters.

9. Let thy feet hasten to the Catechisings, receive with earnestness the Exorcisms; for whether thou art breathed

^c The Marcionites allowed of Baptism three times. Epiph. Hær. xlii. 3. Valentinus twice. Hieron. in Eph. iv. 5. What Cyril says about heretical baptism should be observed. The Roman Church considered it invalid only when (the offi-ciator being ordained) the words or water was not duly used. S. Cyprian, and the African Church of his day, considered it invalid in all cases; so did the Churches of Asia Minor at the same date. S. Dionysius of Alexandria is claimed on both sides.

upon, or exorcised, the Ordinance is to thee salvation. It is as though thou hadst gold unwrought or alloyed, blended with various substances, with brass, and tin, and iron, and lead: we seek to have the gold pure, but it cannot be cleansed from foreign substances without fire. Even so, without Exorcisms, the soul cannot be cleansed; and they are divine, collected from the divine Scriptures. Thy face is veiled^d, that thy mind may be henceforth at leisure; lest a roving eye cause a roving heart. But though thine eyes be veiled, thine ears are not hindered receiving what is saving. For as the goldsmith, conveying the blast upon the fire through delicate instruments, and as it were breathing on the gold which is hid in the hollow of the forge, stimulates the flame it acts upon, and so obtains what he is seeking; so also, exorcisers, infusing fear by the Holy Ghost, and setting the soul on fire in the crucible of the body, make the evil spirit flee, who is our enemy, and salvation and the hope of eternal life abide; and henceforth the soul, cleansed from its sins, hath salvation. Let us then, brethren, abide in hope, surrendering ourselves (6.) and hoping; so may the God of all, seeing our purpose, cleanse us from sins, and impart to us good hopes of our estate, and grant us saving penitence! He who calls, is God, and thou art the person called.

10. Abide thou in the Catechisings: though our discourse be long, let not thy mind be wearied out. For thou art receiving thine armour against the antagonist power; against heresies, against Jews, and Samaritans, and Gentiles. Thou hast many enemies; take to thee many darts; thou hast many to hurl them at. And thou hast need to learn how to hurl them at the Greek; how to do battle against heretic, against Jew and Samaritan. The armour indeed is ready, and most ready is the sword of the Spirit; but thou also must stretch forth thy hands with good resolve, that thou mayest war the Lord's warfare, mayest overcome the powers that oppose thee, mayest escape defeat from every heretical attempt.

11. This charge also I give thee. Study the things that are spoken, and keep them for ever. Think not that they are the ordinary Homilies, which are excellent indeed, and trustworthy, but if neglected to-day, may be attended to

^d For this custom, vid. Bingham, An- Dissert. xii. 15.

INTRCD. to-morrow. On the contrary, the teaching concerning the LECT. laver of regeneration, delivered in course, how shall it be made up, if to-day it be neglected? Consider it to be the planting season; unless we dig, and that deeply, how shall that afterwards be planted rightly, which has once been planted ill? Or consider Catechising to be a kind of building: unless we dig deep, and lay the foundation,—unless by successive fastenings in the masonry, we bind the frame-work of the house together, that no opening be detected, nor the work be left unsound, nought avails all our former labour. But stone must succeed stone in course, and corner must follow corner, and, inequalities being smoothed away, the masonry must rise regular. In like manner we are bringing to thee the stones, as it were, of knowledge; thou must hear concerning the Living God; concerning Judgment; concerning Christ; concerning the Resurrection; and many things are made to follow one the other, which though now dropped one by one, at length are presented in harmonious connection. But if thou wilt not connect them into one whole, and remember what is first, and what is second, the builder indeed buildeth, but the building will be unstable.

- (7.) 12. Now when the Catechising has taken place, should a Catechumen ask, what the teachers have said, tell nothing to a stranger; for we deliver to thee a mystery, even the hope of the life to come: keep the mystery for Him who pays thee. Let no man say to thee. What harm, if I also know it? So the sick ask for wine; but if it be unseasonably given them, it occasions delirium, and two evils follow; the sick man dies, and the physician gets an ill name. Thus is it with the Catechumen also if he should hear from the Believer: the Catechumen is made delirious, for not understanding what he has heard, he finds fault with it, and scoffs at it, and the Believer bears the blame of a betrayer. But now thou art standing on the frontiers; see thou let out nothing; not that the things spoken do not deserve telling, but the ear that hears does not deserve receiving. Thou thyself wast once a Catechumen, and then I told thee not what was coming. When thou hast by practice reached the height of what is taught thee, then wilt thou understand that the Catechumens are unworthy to hear them.

13. Ye who have been enrolled, are become the sons and daughters of one Mother. When ye have entered in before (8.) the hour of exorcising, let one of you speak what may promote godliness: and if any of your number be not present, seek for him. If thou wert called to a banquet, wouldest thou not wait for thy fellow-guest? If thou hadst a brother, wouldest thou not seek thy brother's good? Henceforth meddle not unprofitably with external matters; what the city hath done, or the town, or Prince, or Bishop, or Presbyter. Look upward, thy present hour hath need of that. Be still, <sup>συχολάσαι, i.e.

be disengaged.</sup> and know that I am God. If thou seest the Believers ministering without care, yet they enjoy security, they know what they have received, they are in possession of grace. But <sup>Ps. 46, 10.</sup> thou art just now in the turn of the scale, to be received or not: thou must not copy those who are free from care, but cherish fear.

14. And when the Exorcism is made, until the rest who are exorcised be come, let the men stay with the men, and the women with the women. Here I would allude to Noah's ark; in which were Noah and his sons, and his wife and their wives; and though the ark was one, and the door was shut, yet had things been arranged suitably. And though the Church be shut, and all of you within it, yet let there be a distinction, of men with men and women with women. Let not the ground of your salvation become a means of destruction. Even though there be good ground for your sitting near each other, yet let passions be away. Then, let the men when sitting have a useful book; and let one read, and another listen: and if there be no book, let the one pray, and another speak something useful; and let the party of young women be so ordered, that they may either be singing or reading, but without noise, so that their lips may speak, but others may not hear. For, says the Apostle, I suffer <sup>1 Cor.
14, 34.</sup> not a woman to speak in the Church: and let the married woman do the same; let her pray, moving her lips, her voice not sounding: that Samuel may come, and thy barren <sup>Vid.
1 Sam. 1,
13. 17.</sup> soul may bear the salvation of God who hears prayer; for this is the meaning of the word Samuel.

15. I will behold each man's earnestness; each woman's (9.) reverence. Let your mind be refined as by fire unto reverence, let your soul be forged as metal. Let the stubbornness

INTROD. of unbelief feel the anvil, let the superfluous scales drop off LECT. as of iron, and what is pure remain: let the rust be rubbed off, and the true metal be left. May God at length shew you that night, that darkness which shews like day^d, concerning Ps. 139, which it is said, The darkness shall not be darkened from thee, and the night shall be light as the day. At that time, to each man and woman among you may the gate of paradise be opened; may you then enjoy the fragrant waters, which contain Christ; may you then receive Christ's name, and the efficacious power of divine things! Even now, I beseech you, lift up the eye of your understanding; imagine the angelic choirs, and God the Lord of all sitting, and His Only-begotten Son sitting with Him on His right-hand, and the Spirit with them present, and thrones and dominions doing service, and each man and woman among you receiving salvation. Even now let your ears ring with the sound: long for that glorious sound, which after your salvation, the angels shall chant over you, Blessed are they whose iniquities have been forgiven, and whose sins have been covered; when, like stars of the Church, you shall enter in it, bright in the outward man and radiant in your souls.

(10.) 16. Great indeed is the Baptism which is offered you. It is a ransom to captives; the remission of offences; the death of sin; the regeneration of the soul; the garment of light; the holy seal indissoluble; the chariot to heaven; the luxury of paradise; a procuring of the kingdom; the gift of adoption. But a serpent by the wayside is watching the passengers; beware lest he bite thee with unbelief; he sees so many receiving salvation, and seeks to devour some of them. Thou art going to the Father of Spirits, but thou art going past that serpent; how then must thou pass him?

Eph. 6, Have thy feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; that even if he bite, he may not hurt thee. Have faith indwelling, strong hope, a sandal of power, wherewith to pass the enemy, and enter the presence of thy Lord. Prepare thine own heart to receive doctrine, to have fellowship in holy mysteries. Pray more often, that God may make thee worthy of the heavenly and immortal mysteries.

though in the eyes of the world an unprofitable element. 9

Let neither day be without its work, nor night, but when sleep fails thine eyes, at once abandon thy thoughts to prayer. And shouldest thou find any shameful, any base imagination rising, reflect upon God's judgment, to remind thee of salvation; give up thy mind to sacred studies, that it may forget wicked things. If thou find any one saying to thee, And art thou going to the water, to be baptized in it? what, hath not the city baths of late? Be sure that it is the dragon of the sea, who is plotting this against thee; give no heed to the lips of him who speaketh, but to God who worketh. Guard thine own soul, that thou mayest escape the snare, that abiding in hope, thou mayest become the heir of everlasting salvation.

17. We indeed, as men, charge and teach these things; (11.) for you, see you make not our building hay, and stubble, ^{1 Cor. 3,} and chaff; that we may not suffer loss, our work being ^{12. 15.} burnt; but make our work, gold and silver and precious stones. It is for me to speak, but thine to second me, and God's part to perfect. Let us nerve our minds; let us brace up our souls; let us prepare our hearts; the race is for our soul, our hope about eternal things. God is able, who knows your hearts, and perceives who is sincere, and who is a hypocrite, both to preserve the sincere, and to give faith to the hypocrite; nay even to the unbeliever, if he give Him but his heart. And may He blot out the hand-writing that Col. 2, is against you, and grant you forgiveness of your former ^{14.} trespasses; may He plant you in the Church, and enlist you for Himself, putting on you the armour of righteousness! And may He fill you with the heavenly things of the New Testament, and give you the indelible seal of the Holy Spirit, throughout all ages, in Christ Jesus our Lord, <sup>σφραγί-

To the Reader.

These Catechetical Lectures thou mayest put into the hands of candidates for Baptism and of baptized believers, but by no means of Catechumens, nor of any others who are not Christians; as thou shalt answer to the Lord. And if thou takest a copy of them, write this in the beginning, as in the sight of the Lord.

LECTURE I.

ON THE PURPOSE OF MIND NECESSARY FOR BAPTISM.

ISAIAH i. 16—19.

Wash you, make you clean ; put away the evil of your doings from before Mine eyes ; cease to do evil ; learn to do well ; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord : though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow ; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land.

LECT. I. 1. DISCIPLES of the New Testament, and communicants in the mysteries of Christ, as yet indeed by calling only, but ere long by grace, make you a new heart, and a new spirit, that there may be gladness among the inhabitants of heaven ; for if over one sinner that repenteth there is joy, according to the Gospel, how much more shall the salvation of so many souls move the inhabitants of heaven to gladness ? Ye have betaken yourselves to a good, a most glorious path ; run with awe the race of godliness. Here is present, all-prepared to redeem you, the Only-begotten Son of God, and says, Come unto Me all ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and I will refresh you. You that have on you the harsh clothing of offences, who are holden with the cords of your own sins, listen to the Prophet's voice, saying, Wash you, make you clean ; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes ; that the company of Angels may chant over you, Blessed are they whose iniquities have been forgiven, and whose sins have been covered. Ye who have just lighted the torches of faith, preserve them in your hands unquenched : that He, who once, on this most holy Calvary, opened Paradise to the robber on account of his faith, may grant to you to sing the bridal hymn.

2. Whoever here is a slave of sin, let him promptly prepare (2.) himself through faith, for the new birth into freedom and adoption: let him put off the miserable bondage of his sins, let him take on him the blessed bondage of the Lord, that so he may be counted worthy to inherit the kingdom of Heaven. Put off the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, by means of the Confession; that you may put on the new man, which is renewed after the knowledge of Him that created him. Get you the earnest of the Holy Spirit, through faith, that you may be able to be received into the everlasting habitations. Come for the mystical Seal, that you may be well-known to the Master: be ye numbered with the holy and spiritual flock of Christ, so shall ye be set apart on His right hand, and inherit the life which is prepared for you. For they, who are yet encompassed with the rough covering of their sins, have their lot on His left hand, because they come not to the grace of God, which is given through Christ at the new birth of the Holy Bath; a new birth not of bodies, but the spiritual new birth of the soul. For our bodies are born by means of parents who are seen, but our souls are born again by means of faith; for the Spirit bloweth where It listeth. And then it is given thee to hear, if thou be worthy, Well done, thou good and faithful servant, when thy conscience is found clean from hypocrisy.

3. For if there be any one here who thinks to tempt grace, (3.) he deceives himself, and knows not its power. Keep thy soul free from hypocrisy, O man, by reason of Him who searcheth hearts and reins: for as those who make a levy for war inquire into the ages and the make of their recruits, so also doth the Lord, enlisting souls, examine into their purpose of mind. If any has a secret hypocrisy, He rejects that man as unfit for the true service: but if He find a man worthy, to him He gives grace readily. He gives not holy things to dogs; but when He discerns the good conscience, there He gives that Seal of salvation, that wondrous Seal, which devils tremble at, and Angels recognize: that the one may be scared away and flee, and the others may attend on it, as kindred to themselves. From those then who receive this spiritual or saving Seal, is required a disposition of mind kindred to it: for as a

LECT. writing-reed or a dart has need of one to use it, so does grace
I. require believing minds.

(4.) 4. Such thou art receiving, no perishable instrument, but a spiritual. Henceforth thou art planted in the paradise which the mind sees. Thou receivest a new name, which before thou hadst not: before thou wast a Catechumen, now thou wilt be a Believer. Henceforth thou art transplanted among the invisible olive trees, being grafted from the wild into the fruitful, from sins into righteousness, from pollution into purity. Thou hast communion in the Holy Vine: if then thou abide in the vine, thou shalt increase as a fruitful branch; if thou abide not, thou shalt be utterly consumed by the fire. Let us then bear fruit, as is worthy; God forbid that in us should be fulfilled what was done to the barren fig-tree, or that Jesus coming should even now curse us for our barrenness. Rather, may all be able to say, I am like a green olive tree in the house of God; my trust is in the tender mercy of God, for ever and ever, an olive tree not meeting the senses, but the mind, and full of light; as then it is His part to plant and to water, so it is thine to bear fruit: it is God's to grant grace, thine to receive and preserve. Despise not the gift, because it is given freely, but when thou hast received it, devoutly treasure it.

(5.) 5. The present is the season of Confession: confess therefore what thou hast done, whether in word, or in deed; whether in the day, or in the night; confess in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation receive the heavenly treasure. Devote thy time to the Exorcisms; be constant at the Catechisings, and store up in memory the matter of them, for they are spoken, not to the ears only, but that faith may stamp them on the mind; wipe out from thee every care of earth; thou art running for thy soul. Thou art utterly abandoning the things of the world; what thou art abandoning is little, what the Lord is giving is great. Forsake things present, have faith in things to come. Hast thou run so many circles of the year, fruitlessly devoted to the world, and wilt thou not for forty days, devote thyself to prayer, for thy soul's sake? Be still, and know that I am God, saith the Scripture. Give over talking many idle words, neither backbite, nor lend a willing ear to backbiters, rather be prompt to prayer. Shew by ascetic exercises that thine heart is nerved. Cleanse thy vessel, that thou mayest receive the gift more abundant: for remission of sins is given equally to all: but the communication of the Holy Ghost is bestowed according to each man's faith. If thou hast laboured little, thou shalt receive little: but if thou hast wrought much, ample is the hire: thou runnest for thyself: see to thine own interest.

6. If thou hast aught against any man, forgive it: thou (6.) comest here to receive forgiveness of offences; thou art bound in turn to pardon the offender; else with what face wilt thou say to the Lord, Forgive me my many offences, Mat. 18, 23—35. while thou thyself hast not remitted even the small offence of thy fellow-servant? Attend diligently at Church: not only εις τας συναζεις. now, when thy attendance is required by the Ministers, but also after thou hast received the gift: for if before it was good to do it, surely it must be good after the bestowal. If before thou wast grafted in, it was a safe course to be watered and tended, it is much more right after the planting. Wrestle for thine own soul, especially in days like these; nourish thy soul with sacred readings. For the Lord hath prepared for thee a spiritual table; therefore do thou also say, after the Psalmist, The Lord is my shepherd, therefore can I lack nothing; He Ps. 23, 1—3. shall feed me in a green pasture, and lead me forth beside the waters of comfort; He shall convert my soul; that Angels may share your joy, and Christ Himself the great High Priest, accepting your holy resolve and offering you one and all to the Father, may say, Behold I, and the children whom God Heb. 2, 13. hath given Me. May God Himself keep you all, well-pleasing in His sight. To whom be glory and power everlasting. Amen.

LECTURE II.

ON THE POWER OF REPENTANCE FOR THE REMISSION OF SIN.

EZEKIEL xviii. 20—23.

The righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him. But if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all My statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die. All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him : in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live. Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord God : and not that he should return from his ways, and live ?

LECT. II. — ἀντιζούσιν προαιρέ-σις.
21.

1. SIN is a fearful thing, and unrighteousness is the sorest ailment of the soul, secretly sapping its sinews, and exposing it to eternal fire; a self-chosen evil, the offspring of a man's set purpose of mind. For that of our own purpose we sin, the Prophet says plainly in one place. I planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed: how then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto Me? The planting is good, the fruit evil: and that evil is from our purpose of mind. The planter is blameless, but the vine shall be burnt with fire: for it was planted for good, yet hath of its own purpose borne fruit to evil. For God, according to the Preacher, hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions. And the Apostle says, We are His workmanship, created unto good works. The Creator then, being good, created for good works: but the creature, of its own set purpose, turned to wickedness. Sin, then, is a fearful evil, as was said, but not an incurable one; fearful to him who clings to it, but quite admitting of a cure when a man through penitence puts it off. For suppose a man holding fire in his hand: while he holds the live coal, he is certainly on fire; but were he to put it away, he would also rid himself of that which was burning him. And if any think that while sinning, he is not on fire, to him saith the Scripture, Can a man take Prov. 6, fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned? For sin²⁷ burns the sinews of the soul.

Eccles. 7, 29.
Eph. 2, 10.

2. But some one will say, What can sin be? Is it a living (2.) thing—an angel—an evil spirit? What is this which works in us? It is no foe from without, O man, wrestling against thee: but a shoot of evil taking its increase from thyself. Let thine eyes look right on, and lust does not exist; keep Prov. 4, thine own, and take not another's, and a stop is put to²⁵ robbery; remember the Judgment, and neither fornication, nor adultery, nor murder, nor any unrighteousness shall prevail in thee. But when thou forgettest God, forthwith thou beginnest to devise wickedness, and to accomplish unrighteousness.

3. However, nature is not the sole cause of this evil; there is another, who miserably prompts to it, the devil. He prompts all, yet he prevails only over those who listen to him. Therefore saith the Preacher, If a spirit of the powerful rise up Eccles. 10, 4. against thee, leave not thy place. Shut thy door, and keep him far from thee, and he shall not hurt thee. But if thou indulgently admit the thought of lust, through thine imaginations, it will strike its roots into thee, and enthrall thy mind, and drag thee down into a pit of evils. But perhaps thou sayest, I am a Believer; lust does not gain the ascendant over me, even though my mind dwells on the objects of it: knowest thou not that even a rock is cleft at length by a root which for a long while adheres to it? Admit not the seed, for it will break in pieces thy faith: root out the mischief, ere it blossom, lest by being idle at the beginning, thou have the trouble of axes and fire afterwards. When thine eyes first ail, attend to them in time, lest after thou art blinded thou begin to seek the physician.

4. The devil then is the chief author of sin, and the parent (3.) of evils; and this hath the Lord said, not I: The devil sinneth 1 John 3, 8. from the beginning; before him sinned no one. But he sinned, not as having received by necessity of nature the principle of sin; (else the blame of sin returns to Him who thus framed LICT. him;) but having been framed good, he became a devil from his own purpose of mind, and received his name from his conduct. For being an Archangel, he was called devil, or slanderer, from his slandering; and from a good servant of God, he became Satan fitly so named; for Satan means an Adversary. These doctrines are not mine, but the inspired prophet Ezekiel's. For he, taking up a lamentation against him, says, Ez. 28, Thou sealest up the sum, full of wisdom, and perfect in 12—17. beauty, thou hast been in Eden, the garden of God; and soon after, Thou wast perfect in thy ways, from the day that thou wast created, till iniquity was found in thee. Very rightly hath he said, was found in thee; for it was not brought in from without, but thou thyself didst beget evil. And the reason he assigns afterwards: thine heart was lifted up, because of thy beauty; I will cast thee as profane out of the mountain of God, I will cast thee to the ground. Parallel to this, is what the Lord says in the Gospel, I beheld Satan as lightning fallen from heaven. Thou seest the harmony of the Old Testament with the New. He, on his falling, drew many away with him. He puts lusts into those who listen to him: from him is adultery, fornication, and all evil: through him our forefather Adam was cast out, and exchanged a paradise of wonderful and spontaneous fruits, for this earth with its thorns and thistles.

- (4.) 5. What then? some one will say. We have been seduced and are lost; is there no chance of salvation? We have fallen; cannot we rise? We have been blinded; cannot we recover our sight? We have been crippled; cannot our feet become straight again? In a word, we are dead; is there no resurrection? Shall not He, O man, who woke Lazarus, a corpse of four days, which stank, shall not He much more easily raise up thee, a living man? He who shed His precious blood for us, the same shall rescue us from sin. Let us not give sentence against ourselves, brethren; let us not abandon our case as hopeless: not to believe there is hope in penitence, is dreadful indeed. For he who is without expectation of salvation, spares not to increase the evil; but he who hopes for a cure, is easily induced to spare himself. Thus the robber who expects no mercy runs into recklessness; but if he hopes for pardon, often betakes himself to repentance. Nay does the serpent strip himself of old age, and shall not we cast the slough of wickedness? Does thorny ground by good tillage become fruitful, and is salvation to us irrecoverable? Nature then admits of salvation; all that is wanting is the purpose of mind.

6. God is loving to man, and that not a little. For say (5.) not, "I have committed whoredom and adultery: fearful things have been done by me, nor once only but often; will He forgive, will He forget?" Hear what the Psalmist says; Ps. 31, O how plentiful is Thy goodness, O Lord. Thy accumulated ^{20.} sins surpass not the multitude of the mercies of God; thy wounds baffle not the skill of the chief Physician. Only give thyself to Him in faith: tell the Physician thine ailment; say thou also as David did; I said, I will confess my ^{Ps. 32,} sins unto the Lord: and what he says next shall also be ^{5.} fulfilled in thee; And so Thou forgavest the wickedness of my sin.

7. Wouldest thou see the loving-kindness of God, O thou that art lately come to the Catechising? wouldest thou see the loving-kindness of God, and the abundance of His long-suffering? Hear thou concerning Adam. Adam disobeyed, the first whom God created; might He not at once have visited him with death? But see what the Lord does, in His great love towards man: though He casts him out of Paradise, his sin making him unfit to continue there, yet He places him opposite to Paradise, that seeing what he had <sup>κατίναν-

Cain, the first born man, became a fratricide, a deviser of evils, the cause of murders, and the first who envied; yet when he had slain his brother, to what is he doomed? a fugitive and a vagabond ^{Gen. 4,} shalt thou be in the earth. How great the sin, how light ^{12.} the doom!

8. This then in very deed is loving-kindness in God, yet it is small compared with what follows: for consider, I pray, the history of Noe. The giants sinned, and lawlessness was there lavishly poured out upon the earth; and in consequence the deluge was ordained to come upon it. In his five hundredth year God puts forth the threat, and in his six hundredth He brought the deluge on the earth. Seest thou

18 Instance of Rahab an encouragement to penitent sinners.

LECT. II. the breadth of God's loving-kindness, extending over the space of a hundred years? what He did then after the hundred years, could He not have done at once? but on purpose did He extend it, to give room for repentance. Seest thou the goodness of God? And had those men repented, they would not have come short of His loving-kindness.

- (6.) 9. Let us proceed to others, who have been saved by repentance. Perchance some among the women will say, "I have committed whoredom and adultery, I have defiled my body with excesses; is there salvation?" Cast thine eyes, O woman, to Rahab, and do thou also expect salvation; for if she who openly and publicly committed whoredom was saved through repentance, shall not she, who has committed one such act before the gift of grace, be saved through penitence and by fastings? For enquire how she was saved: this only said Josh. 11, she, The Lord your God, He is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath. Your God, for she dared not call Him her own, on account of her unchastity. And if thou wouldest receive a written witness that she was saved, thou hast it Ps. 87, recorded in the Psalms, I will think upon Rahab and Babylon with them that know me^a. Oh the great loving-mercy of God, which makes mention even of harlots in the Scriptures: and not simply I will think upon Rahab and Babylon, but with this added, with them that know me. On men therefore, and likewise on women, is salvation, viz. that which is secured to us through repentance.

10. And though the people sin as one body, it does not surpass God's loving-kindness. The people made a calf, yet did not God give over His loving-kindness. Men denied God, but God denied not Himself. These are thy gods, O Israel, they said; yet again, as was His wont, The God of Israel became their Saviour. And not only did the people sin, but Deut. 9, Aaron too the high-priest. For it is Moses who says, And upon Aaron came the wrath of the Lord; and I entreated,

^a In the Psalm referred to, Rahab stands for Egypt. Vid. Ps. 89, 10. Isai. 51, 9. S. Jerome, in Ps. 87, 4, considers Rahab a type of the Gentile Church called out of Jericho, the world. Egypt in the Psalm is a type of the same. Penitent Rahab then may as naturally stand for a type of penitent Egypt, as the abandoned woman in the Revelations for impenitent Babylon. And as what is said of Hagar in Gen. 21, 10, is meant of Jerusalem, so Rahab may really be named in this Psalm, yet Egypt meant as its scope, and beyond that the Gentile Church.

he says, for him, and God forgave him. What then? Did Moses, entreating for a high-priest who had sinned, prevail with the Lord, and does not Jesus, the Only-begotten, when He entreats for us, prevail with God? And did He admit Aaron, in spite of his fall, to the high-priesthood, and will He obstruct thy entrance to salvation who art come from the Gentiles? Repent, O man, henceforth thyself, and the gift shall not be withheld thee. Present thy conduct unrebukable before Him henceforward: for God is in very truth loving to man, nor can the whole race of man worthily tell out His loving-kindness. No, not if all the tongues of men were to come together, could they even thus unfold some part of His loving-kindness. For we declare some part of what is written concerning His loving-kindness to men: but we know not how much He forgave to Angels: for them also did He forgive^b, since One only is sinless, Jesus, who purgeth our sins;—but of these enough.

11. If thou wilt, I will set before thee additional precedents (7.) respecting our state. Let us come to the blessed David, and take him for an ensample of repentance. He fell, that highly gifted man. Walking in the evening-tide on the house-top

^b Very little having been authoritatively delivered to the Apostles on the subject of the Angels, what was believed or surmised in the early Church seems to have been gathered from various sources, trustworthy and not; and of the latter especially Platonism. The proof that the sources in question were not apostolic, is the discordance or uncertainty of the opinions themselves. The Fathers indeed bear witness concordantly to the truth, that God alone is singly and absolutely perfect and above all judgment, using it as an argument for the divinity of the Son and the Holy Ghost, that they too are sinless or beyond judgment. (vid. Clem. Pædag. i. 2. Origen. in Cant. Hom. 3. fin. Theodor. in Num. 9. Ambros. de Sp. S. iii. 18. n. 132, &c. Hieron. in Pelag. 3. p. 203. col. 1. Athan. Orat. in Arian. ii. 6. Ambros. in Fid. v. 11. n. 140, 141. Cyril Alex. Thesaur. 21. They built this doctrine on such passages of Scripture as Job 4, 18. Rev. 2. and 8. (which they considered to imply the truth of the literal sense in the truth of the figurative, which was primarily and directly intended.) Col. 1, 20. Eph. 3, 10. Acts 17, 31. &c. Some of the Fathers considered, that, besides the devil and his angels, who were beyond grace, there were orders of angels still on their trial, or who were, or had been, responsible for more or less of sin, or in danger of sin, and within the reach of mercy, or who on their trial had sinned more or less, and been forgiven, as Cyril seems here to hold. (vid. Nyss. vol. ii. p. 644. Hieron. in Eph. 4, 16. Ambrosiast. in Eph. 3, 10. Origen. Tom. 13, 28. in Luc. Hom. 35. Ignat. ad Smyrn. 6. Nazianz. Carm. p. 169.) Such, for instance, (as they considered,) were the tutelary angels of countries, places, or persons. Origen. in Num. Hom. 20. 3. Hieron. in Mich. 6. 1. And such "the Sons of God," who were seduced in the interval between the creation and the flood. (Justin. Apol. ii. 5. Athenag. Apol. 24. Iren. iv. 16. Clem. Strom. v. p. 550. Tertull. de Idolatr. 9. Origen. in Cels. Ambros. de Noe, iv. 8. 9. Nazianz. Carm. p. 64.) Origen, and even Gregory Nyssen, are accused of admitting the restoration of the author of evil. Vid. Diss. Bened. in Cyril, iii. 5.

LECT. 11. after his sleep, he looked unguardedly, and was moved by human passion. His sin was completed; but in it perished not that nobleness of mind which confesses a transgression. Nathan the prophet came, swiftly, to detect and to heal his wound. The Lord is wroth, he says, and thou hast sinned. So spoke the subject to him who had the kingdom; yet the king, though in purple clad, did not take it ill, as regarding not the speaker, but Him that sent him. He was not blinded by the military circle which stood about him; for his mind discerned the Lord's angelical host, and as seeing the Invisible, he submitted in the anguish, replying to his visitor, or rather through him to Him who sent him, I have sinned against the Lord. Thou seest how a king could be humble-minded, how he could make confession. Had it been brought home to him by any one? Were many privy to the matter? The matter was done quickly, and forthwith the Prophet came an accuser, and the sinner acknowledges the crime. And according to the frankness of his confession was the speed of his cure, for the prophet Nathan who had threatened him, says straightway, And the Lord hath put away thy sin. Thou seest how very quick was the relenting of the God of loving-kindness. Yet he says, Thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme. For though on account of thy righteousness thou hadst many foes, yet thy self-command was thy protection; but now that thou hast let go thy best weapon, thy foes, who were standing ready, are risen up against thee. The Prophet then thus comforted him.

12. But holy David, for all he heard it said, The Lord hath put away thy sin, shrunk not from penitence, king though he was: but put on sackcloth for purple, and for his gilded throne sat down, a king, in ashes on the ground; not only Ps. 102, sat but fed on ashes, (as he saith himself, I have eaten ashes as it were bread;) and wasted with tears his lustful eye. Ps. 7, 7. Every night, he says, wash I my bed and water my couch with my tears. When his lords urged him to eat bread, he would not: for seven whole days he prolonged his fast. If a king thus made confession, oughtest not thou a private man to make confession? And after Absalom's rebellion, though he had many roads for escaping, he chose to flee by the Mount of Olives, all but invoking mentally the Redeemer who should thence ascend to heaven. And when Shimei cursed him bitterly, he said, Let him alone; for he knew that he who forgiveth, shall be forgiven. 2 Sam. 16, 10. 11.

13. Thou seest how excellent it is to confess; thou seest (8.) that to the penitent there is salvation. Solomon also fell; but what saith he? Afterwards I repented^c. Though Ahab, king of Samaria, was a most abandoned idolater, a monster, the murderer of prophets, a stranger to godliness, the coveter of other men's fields and vineyards, yet when the prophet Elias came to him after he had slain Naboth through Jezebel, and only threatened him, he rent his clothes and put on sackcloth; and what says the merciful God to Elias? Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before Me? as if, almost, He would persuade the fiery temper of the prophet to condescend to the penitent: for I will not bring, He saith, the evil in his days. Thus, though Ahab on his pardon was not about to leave his evil courses, the God of pardon pardoned him;—not as ignorant of the future, but bestowing on the penitence of the moment its corresponding pardon: for a just judge suitably answers each case as it arises. Prov. 24, 32. Septuag. vers.

14. Again, as Jeroboam stood sacrificing to idols on the altar, his hand withered, when he bade seize the Prophet who denounced him. On this experience of his power, he says, Entreat the face of the Lord thy God; and for this word his hand was restored. If the Prophet healed Jeroboam, has not Christ healing power to deliver thee from thy sins? Manasses, again, was most extravagant in his crimes, who sawed asunder Esaias, and was polluted with idolatries of every kind, and filled Jerusalem with innocent blood: yet, when he was led captive to Babylon, he converted his afflictions into a healing course of penitence: for Scripture says, that Manasses humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, and prayed to Him; and He was entreated of him, and heard his supplications, and brought him again into his kingdom. If he who sawed a Prophet in sunder, was saved through penitence, mayest not thou be saved, who hast not done ought so great? 1 Kings 13, 6. 2 Chron. 33, 12, 13.

^c The following Fathers agree with Cyril in considering that Solomon repented; in Ps. 52. n. 12. Ambros. Apol. David. 3. n. 13. Hieron. Ep. 85 init. vid. also in Eccles. 1, 12. The opposite opinion is held by others; e. g. apparently by Aug. in Ps. 126. n. 2. Basil. Ep. 42. n. 2.

LECT. II. (10.) 15. Beware lest thou rashly mistrust its power; wouldest thou know how great force it hath? wouldest thou know this strong weapon of salvation, and learn what strength Confession hath? An hundred and eighty-five thousand enemies did Hezekias turn to flight through Confession. Yet great as this really is, it is but trifling compared with what is still to be told. Through repentance, the same king recalled a Divine decree which had already gone forth. For when he was sick, Esaias said to him, Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live. What was there to expect more? what remaining hope of life, when the Prophet said, For thou shalt die. Yet Ezekias did not stop from penitence; for remembering what was written, For turning away and sighing thou shalt be saved, he turned away to the wall, and lifting his thoughts from his bed heavenwards, (for no thickness of walls hinder prayers devoutly offered up,) he said, "Lord, remember me: for it is sufficient for my cure that Thou remember me. Thou art not controlled by times, but Thou Thyself givest law to life; for not on our nativity, and on stars in conjunction, depends our life, as some idly talk; but of life and its duration Thou Thyself art the Lawgiver, according to Thy will." And thus he, who through the prophet's sentence despaired of life, received an addition of fifteen years, the sun, in sign of it, tracing his course back. Now the sun turned back for Ezekias; for Christ, it was eclipsed; not retracing his steps, but suffering eclipse, and thereby shewing the difference of the two, Ezekias and Jesus. Ezekias prevailed to the cancelling of a sentence of God; and will not Jesus vouchsafe His free gift, the forgiveness of sins? Turn away, and bewail thyself, shut to thy door, and pray Him to forgive thee, and remove from around thee the burning fires; for Confession^d has strength to quench even fire; has strength to tame even lions.

^d The ecclesiastical word ἑξομολόγησις, here translated Confession, means properly a declaration in God's presence of the facts of religion of whatever kind, with relation to God or man; and is thus contrasted with Prayer, which contemplates objects not realized as yet. Praise, thanksgiving, profession of our faith, are parts of it, as well as confession of sin. Psalms, Hymns, Creeds, are Confessions. Ἐξομολογίσθε and Confitemini, are the words used respectively in the Septuagint and Vulgate versions of the Psalms, for "Praise," and "Give thanks to the Lord." Hence S. Cyril here calls the Song of the Three Children, and the meditations of Daniel in the lions' den, Confessions; whereas, grant-

16. But if thou disbelieve, consider what befel Hananiah (11.) and the rest. What fountains did they open? How many waterpots had quenched a flame, which rose to forty-nine cubits? But wherever the flame exceeded ever so little, there faith gushed out like a river, and there they uttered a spell against their sufferings, saying, Just art Thou, O Lord, over all things which Thou hast done towards us: for we have sinned, and broke Thy commandments. And penitence destroyed the flames. If thou disbelieve that it can quench the fire of hell, learn it from the history of Hananiah. But some quick hearer will say, "Them God rescued justly; because they would not commit idolatry, God gave them this power." Since this has been suggested, I will proceed to one more example of penitence.

17. What thinkest thou of Nebuchadonosor? Hast thou not heard from the Scriptures that he was bloodthirsty, savage, having a lion's mind? hast thou not heard how he disinterred the bones of the kings? how he led the people into captivity? how he blinded the eyes of the reigning prince, first giving him to see the slaughter of his children? Hast thou not heard that he broke to pieces the cherubim, not the invisible—no, suppose it not, O man—but the carved cherubim; and that mercy-seat, from which God used to speak audibly? Nebuchadonosor trampled down the veil of holiness: he carried off the censer to a temple of idols; he seized on all the offerings; and burned down the Temple to its foundations? What multiplied punishments did he deserve for slaying kings, setting fire to holy things, leading captive the chosen people, and placing the sacred vessels within idol temples? Was he not worthy of ten thousand deaths?

18. Such was the greatness of his evil deeds; now turn to the loving-kindness of God. He was turned into a wild beast; he abode in the wilderness, he was scourged that he might be saved. He had claws like a lion, for he made the saints his prey; he had a lion's mane, for he was a ramping and a roaring lion. He ate grass as an ox; for he was as cattle not knowing Him who had given him the kingdom.

 32. offered up sounds of thanksgiving to God, and came to feel grief for what he had done, and learnt his own weakness, then God restored to him the honour of the kingdom.

(12.) 19. What then? Hath He given Nebuchadonosor, after such acts, pardon and the kingdom, on his confession, and shall He not give to thee on repenting the forgiveness of sins, and the kingdom of heaven, if thy life be in accordance? The Lord is loving to men, and swift to pardon, slow to vengeance; let no one then despair of his own salvation. Peter, the chiefest and first of the Apostles, before a little maid thrice denied the Lord; but when remorse touched him he wept bitterly; and to weep shews a heartfelt penitence. Wherefore, not only received he forgiveness for the denial, but was spared his Apostolic dignity.

20. Having then, brethren, many ensamples of men who have sinned, and repented, and been saved, do ye also heartily make your confession to the Lord: that ye may both receive the pardon of your past sins, and be counted worthy of the heavenly gift, and inherit the heavenly kingdom with all the Saints in Christ Jesus; to whom is the glory for ever and ever. Amen.

LECTURE III.

ON HOLY BAPTISM.

ROMANS vi. 3, 4.

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into His death? Therefore we are buried with Him by Baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life.

LET the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad, for those Ps. 96, who are to be sprinkled with hyssop; to be cleansed with ^{11.} the invisible hyssop, by His power, who at His passion received the hyssop and the reed. Let the Heavenly Powers rejoice, and let the souls now to be joined to their Invisible Spouse, get ready. For there is the voice of one crying in the Is. 40, 3. wilderness, Make ready the way of the Lord. For this is no light matter, no ordinary and chance union according to the flesh: but the All-searching Spirit's election that is of faith. For the world's espousals and arrangements are not always ^{1 Cor.} made with judgment; but wealth or beauty forthwith attracts ^{11, 10.} the bridegroom; here it is not beauty of person, but the soul's clear conscience, not the condemned mammon, but the soul rich in seriousness.

2. Yield then, O ye children of righteousness, to John's persuasion, exhorting you, and saying, Make straight the John 1, way of the Lord. Remove all blocks and stumbling-stones, ^{23.} that ye may hold straight on unto life eternal. Make ready the chambers of the soul, purifying them through faith unfeigned, for the reception of the Holy Ghost. Begin to wash your robes through penitence, that when summoned to the bride-chamber ye may be found clean. For the Bridegroom invites indeed all without conditions, because His grace is lavish, and the voice of His loud-sounding Heralds brings

(2.) 3. This is in truth a serious matter, brethren, and you must approach it solemnly. You are, each of you, on the point of being presented to God, before innumerable hosts of Angels: the Holy Ghost is on the point of setting a seal on your souls: ye are coming for enlistment under the Great King. Make ready therefore; prepare, not by wearing robes of shining whiteness, but arraying the soul with the devoutness of a clear conscience. Regard the Sacred Laver not as simple water; regard rather the spiritual grace given with the water. For as the sacrifices at the altars, being by nature without meaning, by invocation of the idols become polluted, so contrariwise, plain water, after the invocation of the Holy Ghost, and of Christ, and of the Father, gains a sanctifying power.

4. For whereas man's nature is twofold, soul and body, twofold also is his cleansing; the spiritual for the spiritual, the material for his body. The water cleanses his body, the Heb. 10, Spirit seals his soul: that being by the Spirit sprinkled in
22. heart, and washed in body with pure water, we may draw near to God. Now then that thou art to descend into the waters, consider not the bare element; look for its saving power by the operation of the Holy Ghost; for without the two thou canst not be made perfect. This is not my word, but the Lord Jesus Christ's, who has the power to do it; He saith, Except a man be born again, and he enlarges, of water Joh.3,3. and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Neither he who is baptized with water, without the privilege of the Spirit, hath the gift entire; nor be he ever so virtuous in his deeds, shall he enter into the kingdom of heaven, except with the seal vouchafed through water. A bold word, but it is not mine; Jesus hath uttered it; and here is the proof of it from Holy Scripture. Cornelius was a just man; he was Acts 10. honoured with visions of Angels; he had raised his prayers and alms in the sight of God, as a goodly monument in the heavens. Peter came, and the Spirit was poured on them that believed, and they spake with other tongues, and prophesied. Yet after the gift of the Spirit, the Scripture saith, that Peter commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ: that the soul having been regenerated through their faith, the body also, by means of the water, might share the gift ^a.

5. And if any one is anxious to know, why the gift is given through water and not through some other element, let him take up Holy Scripture, and he shall learn. For water is a noble thing, and, of the world's four visible elements, the most beautiful. Heaven is the abode of Angels, and the heavens are of the waters: earth is the place of men, and the earth is of the waters: and before all the six days fashioning of creation, the Spirit of God moved on the face of the waters. Gen. 1, Water was the beginning of the world: the Jordan was the ²beginning of the Gospel preaching. Rescue from Pharaoh came to Israel through the sea: rescue from sins to the world through the Laver of water by the word of God. Where there Eph. 5, is a covenant with any, there also is water: after the flood, a ²⁶covenant was made with Noe: a covenant with Israel from Mount Sina; but with water, and scarlet wool, and hyssop. Heb. 9, Elias is received up, but not without water: for first he ¹⁹crosses Jordan, then horses carry him to heaven. The high-priest first bathes, and then burns incense: for Aaron first

LECT. III. bathed, and then was made high-priest; for how might he intercede for the rest, who had not yet been cleansed by water? Moreover the Laver, set apart within the Tabernacle, was an emblem of Baptism.

(3.) 6. Baptism is the end of the Old Testament, and the beginning of the New. For John who began it, than whom was not one greater among those born of women, was the end of the Prophets; for all the Law and the Prophets were until John. Moreover, he was the first-fruits of the Gospel-Mat. 11, 3. state, for it is said, The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, &c. and then, John was in the desert baptizing. You may instance indeed Elias the Tishbite, who was taken to heaven, yet is not greater than John. Enoch was translated, yet he is not greater than John. Moses was the greatest lawgiver, and the Prophets are all wonderful men, yet not greater than John. I do not venture to compare prophet with prophet: but their Master and ours, the Lord Mark 1, 1. Jesus, hath declared; Among those that are born of women, there hath not risen a greater than John. Not “among those born of virgins,” but born of women. The comparison is between the chief servant, and his fellow-servants: for the Son’s preeminence and grace over the household is beyond all comparison. Seest thou how great a man God hath chosen to be the first minister of this grace? a man possession-less and solitary, yet not a misanthrope; eating locusts, and pluming his soul for heaven; feasting on honey, and speaking what is sweeter and more wholesome; clad in camel’s hair, and shewing in himself what an ascetic’s life should be: who also while yet borne in his mother’s womb, was sanctified by the Holy Ghost. Jeremiah was sanctified, but he prophesied not in the womb: only John, while yet unborn, leaped for joy: and though he saw not with the eyes of the flesh, knew his Master by the Spirit: for since great was the grace of Baptism, great must needs be its minister.

(4.) 7. He began to baptize in Jordan, and all Jerusalem went out to him, enjoying the first-fruits of Baptism: for the prerogative in all good things was in Jerusalem. But, men of Jerusalem, observe how they that went out were baptized of him: confessing their sins, saith he. First they shewed their wounds, then he applied the remedies, and gave to them that believed, redemption from eternal fire^b. And if thou wouldest be persuaded of this, that the Baptism of John is redemption from the peril of fire, hear thou him saying, Ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Be thou then no longer a viper, he⁷ saith, but as thou hast been one of the brood, put off thy former sinful self. And as the snake is wont to delve into some corner to cast away his age, and rubbing off his old slough, is henceforth young in body; so thou too, saith he, force thee through the narrow and strait gate: and roughly handling thee with fasting, strip thee of thy ruin; put off the old man with his deeds, and say in the words of the Canticles, I have put off my coat, how shall I put it on?

But perhaps there is some one among you, a hypocrite, a man-pleaser, professing religion, but not believing from his heart: having the hypocrisy of Simon Magus, approaching not to partake of grace, but busily to pry into what is given. Seekest thou great things, yet givest not of small?—Though thou be a publican, though a fornicator, yet hope for salvation; The publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you: and Paul witnesseth the same, saying, Neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor any of this sort, shall inherit the kingdom of God; and such were some of you; but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified. He saith not, such are some of you, but such were some of you.

LECT. Sin in the state of ignorance is pardoned, but depravity which
 III. continues is condemned.

- (6.) 9. Thou hast, as the glory of Baptism, the Son of God Himself, the Only-begotten. For why should I henceforth speak of man? John was great, but what is he to the Lord? Loud was that voice, but what is it to the Word? Most glorious was the herald, but what to the King? Glorious was he who baptized with water, but what to Him who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost and with fire? With the Holy Ghost and with fire the Saviour baptized the Apostles, when Acts 2, 2. suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting; and there appeared unto them cloven tongues as of fire, and it sat upon each of them, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost.
- (7.) 10. Unless a man receive Baptism, he hath not salvation; except Martyrs alone, who even without the water, receive the kingdom. For the Saviour who redeemed the world through the Cross, when His side was pierced, gave forth blood and water: that in times of peace men should be baptized with water, in times of persecution with their own blood. For the Saviour was minded to call martyrdom, Baptism, saying, Can ye drink of the cup which I drink of, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with? Martyrs too make confession, being made a spectacle to the world, and to Angels, and to men: and thou shalt make confession shortly: but it is not yet time for thee to hear concerning these matters.
- (8.) 11. Jesus sanctified Baptism, being Himself baptized. Since the Son of God was baptized, what religious man can despise Baptism? He, however, was baptized, not to receive forgiveness of sins, for He was sinless: but being sinless, to grant divine grace and dignity to the baptized. Since the children are partakers of flesh and blood, He also Himself likewise shared the same, that we, partaking of His bodily presence, might partake also of His divine grace; and so again Jesus was baptized, that through this also, we by the participation, might with salvation receive dignity. 12. Thou descendest into the water bearing sins, but the (9.)
invocation of grace having sealed thy soul, allows not that ^{ἡ τῆς} thou shouldest henceforth be swallowed up by the fearful ^{χάριτος} Dragon. Dead in sins thou wentest down, quickened in ^{ἐπίκλη-} righteousness thou comest up: for if thou wert planted ^{σις. Vid.}
together in the likeness of the Saviour's death, thou shalt ^{above} be counted worthy of His resurrection also. For as Jesus ^{n. 3.} took on Him the world's sins, and died, that having been the death of sin, He might raise thee up in righteousness, so thou also, by descending into the water, and in some sense being in the waters buried, as He was in the rock, are raised again, to walk in newness of life. ^{Rom. 6,} ^{2, 5.}

13. Afterwards, when thou hast been counted worthy of the gift, He gives to thee the faculty to wrestle against the powers that are against thee^c. For like as after His Baptism, He was tempted forty days, not because He could not overcome even before this, but because He would do all things regularly and in order, so thou also, though before Baptism afraid to wrestle with thine adversaries, yet when thou shalt have received the grace, being henceforth confident in the 2 Cor. 8,

14. Jesus Christ was the Son of God, yet before Baptism (10.)
He preached not. If the Master Himself entered upon His time in regular order, ought we the servants to venture out of order? Jesus began to preach from the time that the Holy Ghost descended upon Him in a bodily shape, like a dove: not that Jesus might see Him as if for the first time; (for He knew Him even before He came in a bodily shape;) but that John who baptized Him, might behold Him. For, as he says, ^{John 1,}
I knew Him not: but He who sent me to baptize with water, ^{33.}

LECT. III. the same said unto me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining upon Him, the same is He. And if thou hast seriousness unfeigned, the Holy Ghost is coming down on thee likewise, and upon thee, the Father's voice shall sound from on high, not, "He is my son," but, "He hath now become My son." For "is" belongs to Him alone; since In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. To Him belongs that word, "Is;" since at all times He is the Son of God; but to thee belongs, "Is now become;" since thou hast not the Sonship by nature, but receivest it by adoption: He is Son eternally; thou receivest this grace by advancement.

John 1,

(11.) 15. Therefore, make ready the vessel of thy soul, that thou mayest become a Son of God, an Heir of God, and Joint-heir with Christ; if thou preparest thyself, that thou mayest also receive; if thou by faith drawest near, that thou mayest be made a faithful man; if thou of thine own set purpose put away the old man. For every thing that thou hast committed shall be forgiven thee, even fornication, or adultery, or any other sort of licentiousness. What is greater than crucifying Christ? Yet even of this is Baptism a purification. For thus spake Peter to the three thousand who came to him; and they the crucifiers of the Lord, when they asked and said, Men and brethren, what shall we do? for great is our wound; thou hast turned our thoughts, O Peter, to our fall, in saying, Ye have killed the Prince of life. What salve is there for so great a wound? What cleansing for so great pollution? What salvation for so great a death? to them, I say, Peter saith, Repent, and be baptized each of you in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord for the remission of sins, and

If any of you hath by blasphemous words crucified Christ; if any of you hath through ignorance denied Him before men; if any of you, through wicked works, hath led to the doctrine's being evil spoken of, let him be of good hope in repenting, for the same grace is also present now.

filth of His sons and daughters, by the Spirit of judgment and by the Spirit of burning: He shall sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be cleansed from all your sin. Angels in their choirs shall surround you, and shall say, Who is this that cometh up in white apparel, leaning on her near of kin? For the soul that was before a servant, hath now professed her Master to be her kindred, and He, favourably allowing her sincere purpose, will cry out in response, Behold thou art fair, my love; behold thou art fair; thy teeth are as flocks of shorn sheep, because of her true-hearted confession; and farther, All of them bearing twins, because of the twofold gift, that, I mean, perfected by water and the Spirit^d, or that announced in the Old and the New Testaments. And may all of you, having finished the course of fasting, remembering what hath been said, bearing fruit in good works, standing blameless before the Invisible Bridegroom, obtain the remission of sins at God's hand: to whom be glory with the Son and the Holy Ghost, for ever. Amen.

^d The Fathers sometimes speak as if Baptism was primarily the Sacrament of remission of sins, and upon that came the gift of the Spirit, which notwithstanding was but begun in Baptism and completed in Confirmation. Vid. Tertullian. de Bapt. 7. 8. supr. i. 5 fin. Hence, as in the text, Baptism may be said to be made up of two gifts, Water which is Christ's blood, and the Spirit. There is no real difference between this and the ordinary way of speaking on the subject;—Water, which conveys both gifts, is considered as a type of one especially,—conveys both remission of sins through Christ's blood and the grace of the Spirit, but is the type of one, viz. the blood of Christ, as the Oil in Confirmation is of the other. And again, remission of sins is a complete gift given at once, sanctification an increasing one.

LECTURE IV.

ON THE TEN POINTS OF FAITH ^a.

COLOSSIANS ii. 8.

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.

- LECT. IV. 1. WICKEDNESS imitates goodness: and the tares strive to be taken for wheat, being like it in appearance, but detected in their taste by the discerning. Even the devil transformeth himself into an angel of light: not that he may reascend to where he was; for being in heart like an anvil, incapable of all impression, he has now and for ever an impenitent will; but that he may environ in the darkness of blindness, and amid the pestilence of unbelief, those who are living an Angel's life. Many wolves are ranging about in sheep's clothing, in the clothing, I say, of sheep, but with claws and fangs too. Enveloped in the skin of a gentle animal, and by their appearance deceiving the guileless, they shed on them from their jaws the deadly poison of impiety. Need have we then of Divine grace, and of an abstinent spirit, and of seeing eyes: lest eating tares as wheat, we out of ignorance come to harm; lest taking the wolf for a sheep, we be made his prey; lest imagining the Devil, the Destroyer, to be an Angel of mercy, we be devoured; for he goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour, according to the Scriptures. For this cause the Church admonisheth; for this cause are the present classes; for this, the reading of lessons.
- 2 Cor. 11, 14.
Mat. 7, 15.
1 Pet. 5, 8.

^a This title is taken from Theodoret. The number is variously made out. Some MSS. say eleven for ten. An enumeration is here made somewhat different both from that in Mills' and in the Benedictine Edd.

2. For the course of godliness is made up of these two; (2.) pious doctrines, and good works: neither are the doctrines without good works acceptable to God; nor are works allowable works done apart from pious doctrines. For what boots it, to know excellently the doctrines concerning God, and to commit vile fornication? or what again avails it to possess an excellent self-command, and to blaspheme impiously? An exceeding great gain then is learning in doctrines; and we have need of sobriety of mind, since many are they who would spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit. And the Greeks ^{Col. 2. 8.} by their smooth tongues draw you aside, for honey distils ^{Prov. 5,} from the lips of a strange woman; but they of the circumcision by means of the Holy Scriptures, which they miserably wrest from their meaning, deceive those who come to them, versed in them from childhood to age, and growing old in ignorance. And the sons of the Heretics, by good words and ^{Rom. 16, 18.} fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple, disguising with the name of Christ, as with honey, the envenomed darts of their irreligious doctrines: concerning all of whom together, the Lord saith, Beware lest any deceive you. This gives ^{Mat. 24,} occasion to the teaching of the Faith, and expositions upon ^{4.} it.

3. But before making this tradition of the Faith, it seems to me fitting, to make at this time a short summary of necessary doctrines: lest the multitude of things to be spoken, and the lengthening out of the sacred season of Lent, be too much for the memories of the more simple among you: and that having now strewn some seeds in a general way, we may retain the same things, when provided in a larger crop afterwards. And let those here who are more practised in these things, and have their senses now exercised to discern ^{Heb. 5,} both good and evil, bear with things rather fitted for children, ^{14.} and to a course (as it were) of milk: so that while they who ^{Heb. 5,} stand in need of Catechising receive benefit, they who have ^{13.} knowledge, may now freshen the remembrance of what they knew before.

I. OF GOD.

4. Lay then in your souls as a sure foundation the doctrine (3.) concerning God: That God is only one, unbegotten, unorigi-

And that He is also good and just: so that, if ever thou hear a heretic saying, that the Just God is one and the Good God another, being put on thy guard, thou mayest at once detect the poisoned dart of heresy. For some have dared impiously to divide the One God in their teaching^b. Again, some have said that the Artificer and Lord of the soul was one, and of the body another^c, a doctrine at once absurd and blasphemous. For how should man become the one servant of two masters, when the Lord saith in the Gospel, No man can serve two masters? There is then One Only God, the Maker both of souls and bodies: there is One the Artificer of heaven and earth, the Maker both of Angels and Archangels,—the Artificer of many things, but the Father of One only before the worlds, even of His One Only-begotten Son our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom He made all things, visible and invisible.

5. He, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, is not confined to any place^d; nor is He less than the heavens: but the heavens are the work of His fingers, and the whole earth is holden in the hollow of His hand. He is in and around all things. Think not that the sun is brighter than He, or is equal to Him: for He who formed the sun in the beginning, must needs be without comparison far greater and brighter. He foresees the future: He is mightier than all things: He knows all things, and does what He wills; not subjected to antecedents or consequents, or to nativities, or chance, or fate; in all things perfect, and possessing in Himself the absolute form of every excellence; neither waning, nor increasing, but in mode and circumstance ever the same; who hath prepared chastisement for the sinners, and a crown for the righteous.

- (4.) 6. Seeing then that many have in divers ways gone astray from the One God,—some having deified the sun, and so forsooth, when he went down, abiding during the night-season godless,—others the moon, so as in the day-time to have no god,—others, the other parts of the world,—some, again, having deified the arts,—others, meats,—others, pleasures,—while some, mad after women, have set up on high the image of a naked woman, and calling it Venus, have bowed down to their own lusts, under the visible emblem,—and others, dazzled by the brightness of gold, have deified that, and other portions of matter,—seeing, I say, that these things are so, and that if one first stablish in his soul the doctrine of the One God, from whom are all things, and believe in it, he gets rid at once of all the multiplied evils of idolatry, and heretical error, do thou first settle firmly this doctrine of godliness in thy soul, by means of faith.

II. OF CHRIST.

7. Believe also in the Son of God, One and Only, our Lord (5.) Jesus Christ: God of God begotten: Life of Life begotten: Light of Light begotten: like in all things^e to Him that begat Him: who began not His existence in time, but was before all ages eternally and incomprehensibly begotten of the Father: who is God's Wisdom and Power, and Righteousness personally subsisting: who before all ages is set down at the right hand of the Father. Not that He received the throne on God's right hand, as some have thought, by reason of His patient suffering merely, being after His passion crowned as it were by God; but all the time He hath been in being, which is from an everlasting generation, He hath the Kingly prerogative, sitting together with the Father, being God, and Wisdom, and Power, as hath been shewn; together with the Father reigning, and by reason of the Father being the Artificer of all things; wanting nothing to the dignity of Godhead, and knowing His Father, even as He is known by His Father,—and, to speak briefly, in εὐαγγ- γελίοις. remember what is written in the Gospel, None knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any the Father, save 27. Mat. 11, the Son.

8. And neither do thou separate the Son from the Father, nor by confusing them together believe that the Son is the LECT. IV. Father^f. But believe that of One God is One Only-begotten Son, who was before all ages, God the Word: the Word, not uttered externally and dispersed abroad in the air, nor like to words impersonal^g, but the Word, the Son, the Maker of all who have the Word, the Word who hears the Father and Himself speak. And of these things we will speak more at large in due season, if God permit: for we do not forget our purpose, that at present we are but introducing the Faith after the manner of a summary.

III. OF HIS INCARNATION.

His Birth of the Virgin.

(6.) 9. And believe that He, the Only-begotten Son of God, for our sins came down from heaven to the earth, having taken a manhood of like feelings with us, and being born of the Holy Virgin and the Holy Ghost, not in appearance or imagination^h, but in truth: nor did He pass through the Virgin as through a channelⁱ; but truly took flesh of her, and of her was truly nourished with milk, and truly ate as we do, and truly drank as we do: for if the Incarnation was a phantom, salvation likewise is a phantom. Christ was twofold, Man in what was seen, God in what was not seen: eating truly as Man like us, (for He had like feelings of the flesh with us,) but feeding with five loaves the five thousand as God: dying as Man truly, but as God raising him who had been four days dead: sleeping in the ship truly as Man, and walking on the waters as God.

His Cross.

(7.) 10. He was crucified for our sins truly: shouldest thou be disposed to deny it, the very place which all can see refutes thee, even this blessed Golgotha^k, in which, on account of ⁱ This was the doctrine of the Valentinians. Vid. Iren. Hær. i. 1. §. 13.

^k The spot where our Lord was crucified and buried had been hidden by an artificial mound, and desecrated by a statue of Venus. Constantine cleared the ground, and his mother Helena built a church there. Euseb. Vit. Const. iii. 25, 26.

Him who was crucified on it, we are now assembled: and further, the whole world is filled with the portions of the wood of the Cross¹. But He was crucified, not for sins of His, but that we might be freed from our own sins. And though He was despised of men and beaten as a man, yet He was acknowledged by the creature as God; for the sun, beholding his Lord outraged, hid his light in trembling, not enduring the sight.

His Burial.

11. He was laid truly as man in a tomb of rock, but the rocks burst asunder through fear because of Him. He descended to the regions beneath the earth, that from thence also He might redeem the just^m. For wouldest thou, I pray, that the living should enjoy His grace, and that, being most of them unholy; and that those who from Adam had been imprisoned long while, should not now obtain deliverance? The prophet Esaias heralded with a loud voice so many things concerning Him: and wouldest thou not that the King should descend and rescue His herald? David was there, and Samuel, and all the Prophets, and John himself, who said by his messenger, Art thou He that should come, or Mat. 11, do we look for another? Wouldest thou not that He should³ descend and rescue such as these?

His Resurrection.

12. But He who descended to the regions beneath the earth, again ascended thence, and Jesus who was buried, rose again truly on the third day. And should the Jews ever harass you, meet them quickly by asking thus: Did Jonas after three days come forth from the whale, and hath not Christ then after three days risen from the earth? Was the dead man raised who touched the bones of Eliseus, and shall not the Maker of men much more easily be raised by the

His Ascension.

(10.) 13. And Jesus having finished His race of patience, and having redeemed men from their sins, ascended again into the heavens, a cloud receiving Him: and Angels stood by as He went up, and Apostles gazed. But if any doubt what he hears, let him believe the power of what he now sees. All kings when they die, have their power extinguished with their life: but Christ after being crucified, is worshipped by the whole world. We proclaim the Crucified, and the devils tremble; yet many others have in course of time been crucified, but when has the invocation of any one of these scared away the devils?

14. Let us not then be ashamed of the Cross of Christ; but though another hide it, do thou openly seal it on thy browⁿ: that the devils beholding that princely Sign, may flee far away trembling. But make thou this Sign, when thou eatest and drinkest, sittest or liest down, risest up, speakest, walkest: in a word, on every occasion: for He who was here crucified, is above in the heavens. For if, when crucified and buried, He had remained in the tomb, then we had had shame: but now He who was crucified on this Golgotha, hath from the Mount of Olives on the East ascended into heaven: for having hence descended into hell, and come back again to us, from us did He ascend again into heaven, His Father addressing Him and saying, Sit thou on my right hand, until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool.

IV. OF THE FUTURE JUDGMENT.

15. This Jesus Christ who hath ascended, cometh again (11.) from heaven, not from earth. And I say, not from earth, because many Antichrists are now to come from earth; for, as thou hast seen, many have already begun to say, I am ^{Mat. 24,} Christ: and besides there is to come the Abomination of ^{5. 15.} Desolation, usurping the name of Christ. But do thou look for the true Christ, the Son of God, the Only-begotten, who is henceforth to come not from the earth, but from heaven, appearing to all more bright than any lightning or other brilliance, with Angels for His guards, that He may judge quick and dead, and reign with a kingdom, heavenly, eternal, and without end. Be sure to settle your belief in this point also, since there are many who say that Christ's kingdom has an end°.

V. OF THE HOLY GHOST.

16. Believe also on the Holy Ghost, and hold concerning (12.) Him the same opinion which has been delivered to thee to hold concerning the Father and the Son: and not according to those who teach blasphemous things of Himⁿ. But do thou learn that this Holy Ghost is One, indivisible, of manifold power; working many things, yet Himself without parts; who knoweth mysteries, who searcheth all things, even the ^{1 Cor. 2,} deep things of God; who descended on our Lord Jesus ^{10.} Christ in the form of a dove; who wrought in the Law and the Prophets: who, even now, at the season of Baptism sealeth thy soul; of whose holiness every intellectual nature hath also need; against whom if a man dare to blaspheme, he hath no forgiveness, either in this world, or in that which ^{Mat. 12,} is to come; who with the Father and the Son is exalted ^{32.} with the glory of the Godhead; of whom Thrones also, and Dominions, Principalities and Powers, stand in need. For there is One God, the Father of Christ; and One Lord Jesus Christ, of the Only God the Only-begotten Son: and One Holy Ghost, who halloweth and deifieth all, who spake in ^{τὸ ἔσο-} the Law and the Prophets, both in the Old and New ^{παιδί.} Testaments.

LECT.
IV.

17. This seal have thou ever on thy mind; which now by way of summary has been touched on in its heads, and if the Lord grant, shall hereafter be set forth according to our power, with Scripture-proofs. For concerning the divine and sacred Mysteries of the Faith, we ought not to deliver even the most casual remark without the Holy Scriptures: nor be drawn aside by mere probabilities and the artifices of argument. Do not then believe me because I tell you these things, unless thou receive from the Holy Scriptures the proof of what is set forth: for this salvation, which is of our faith, is not by ingenious reasonings, but by proof from the Holy Scriptures.

VI. OF THE SOUL.

(13.) 18. After knowing this venerable and glorious and most holy Faith, next thou hast to know thyself: know that thou art a twofold man consisting of soul and body, and that, as was said a little before, the same God is the Artificer both of the soul and of the body. And know thou hast a soul possessed of freedom⁹, the fairest work of God, made after the image of Him who formed it: immortal because of God who has made it immortal: a living thing, reasonable, undecaying, because of Him who hath bestowed these gifts: having power to do what it willeth. For it is not according to thy nativity that thou sinnest, nor is thy fornication according to thy fortune, nor, as some idly talk, do the conjunctions of the stars force thee to live in lasciviousness. Why, to avoid confession of thy wretchedness, dost thou blame the guiltless stars? Henceforth have nothing to do with astrologers: for of these saith the divine Scripture, Let now the astrologers stand up and save thee, &c. Behold they shall be as stubble: the fire shall burn them: they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame.

19. And learn this also; that before the soul be come into the world, it hath in nothing sinned: but that having come into the world sinless¹, we now of our own choice sin.

¹ It was both a Pythagorean and an heretical doctrine, that the soul had sinned in some preexistent state. Clem. Strom. iii. 3. Iren. Hær. i. 25.

Listen not, I pray thee, to any one perversely expounding the Scripture, If then I do that which I would not, and the Rom. 7, rest: but remember Him who says, If ye be willing and 16. obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse 20. and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword, and the rest: and again, As ye have yielded your members servants of un- Rom. 6, cleanness and of iniquity unto iniquity; even so now yield 19. your members servants to righteousness unto holiness. Remember also the Scripture which says, And as they did not Rom. 1, like to retain God in their knowledge, and, That which may 28. be known of God is manifest in them: and, Their eyes have Rom. 1, they closed. 19. Remember too how God says against them, Yet Mat. 13, I had planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed; how 15. then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange Jer. 2, vine unto Me? 21.

20. The soul is immortal; and all souls are alike, both of (14.) men and women; only there is a difference of person^s. τὰ γὰρ There is not one order of souls^t which by nature sin, and μίλη τοῦ σώματος another order of souls which by nature act righteously, but διακρί- both act from choice, the essence of the soul being one in κρινται μόνον. kind and alike in all.

Now I know that I am speaking at length, and that the time is far advanced: but what is preferable to salvation? Dost thou not care, though with trouble, to take provision for the way against the heretics? wilt thou not be told the turns of the road, lest out of ignorance thou fall down a precipice? If thy teachers think it no small gain for thee to learn these things, shouldest not thou, the learner, receive gladly the multitude of the things told thee?

21. The soul has freedom; and though the devil can tempt, he is not free to force it against deliberate choice. He suggests to thee the thought of fornication; if thou wilt, thou hast admitted it; if thou wilt not, thou hast not. For if thou wert a fornicator by necessity, then wherefore did God prepare hell? If thou did justly by nature and not by choice, wherefore hath God prepared crowns of glory ineffable? The sheep is meek, yet it hath never been crowned for its meek-by nature.

VII. OF THE BODY.

(15.) 22. Thou hast been taught, beloved, for the present, concerning the Soul: now receive, as far as may be, the doctrine concerning the Body. Endure not any of those who say, that the body belongs not to God^u: for they who hold this, and that the soul dwells in it as in a vessel which belongeth not to itself, readily abuse it to fornication. But for what have they condemned this wonderful body? in comeliness what lack has it? And what is there of its fashioning not wrought with art? Ought they not to have considered how bright the eyes are; and how the ears placed obliquely receive sounds without hindrance; and how the sense of smell is discriminating in scents, and eagerly discerns incense; and how the tongue is the minister of two things, the faculty of tasting, and the power of speech? And how the lungs, placed out of sight, are unceasingly occupied in respiring air? Who gave the heart its unremitted beating? Who divided so many veins and arteries? Who skilfully interwove the bones with the muscles? Who while assigning a part of our food for our substance, separated the rest in a seemly manner; and hath hidden our uncomely members in a more comely disposition? Who, when mankind was like to have failed, rendered it by a simple fellowship perpetual?

(16.) 23. Say not, I pray, that the body is the cause of sin. For if the body be the cause of sin, how is it that a corpse is without sin? Put a sword in the right hand of one just dead, and there is no murder committed; let beauty of every sort pass before the young just dead, yet is no impure desire excited. Why? Because it is not the body which sins of itself, but the soul by means of the body. The body is the instrument, and as it were the garment and robe of the soul; if then it be abandoned by the soul to fornication, it becomes unclean; but if it dwell with a holy soul, it becomes the temple of the Holy Ghost. It is not I who say this, but 1 Cor. 6, Paul the Apostle hath said; Know ye not that your bodies are
19. the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you. Be tender

^u This was the doctrine of Gnostics and Manichees.

then of thy body, as being the temple of the Holy Ghost; sully not thy flesh with fornication; defile not this thy fairest robe; but if thou hast defiled it, cleanse it now through penitence; while the time allows, wash it.

24. And as to the doctrine of chastity, above all, let the order of Solitaries and of Virgins attend to it, who are establishing in the world an Angelic life; and then, the rest of the Church's people also. Great is the crown laid up for you, brethren; for a poor indulgence barter not a high dignity. Listen to the Apostle, saying, Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person as Esau, who for one morsel of meat sold his birthright. Having been enrolled in the Angelical books for thy purpose of chastity, beware lest thou be blotted out again for thy deed of fornication.

25. Nor again on the other hand, while observing chastity, be thou puffed up against those who choose the humbler path of wedlock. For marriage is honourable, and the bed undefiled, as saith the Apostle. Thou too who keepest thy purity, wert thou not born of married persons? Do not, because thou hast a possession of gold, set at nought the silver. But let those also who are married be of good cheer, who use marriage lawfully; who subject their marriage to laws, not making it wanton by unbounded licence; who observe seasons of abstinence, that they may give themselves unto prayer; who with pure garments bring their bodies also pure to the assemblies of the Church; who have entered into the state of matrimony, not for indulgence, but that they may have a home.

26. And let not those who have been but once married, set at nought them who have involved themselves in a second marriage^x. Continence is indeed a noble thing and an admirable; yet we should make allowance for a second marriage, that the weak may not commit fornication. It is good for them if they abide even as I, saith the Apostle; but if they cannot contain, let them marry; it is better to marry than to burn. But every thing else, be it put away far from ^x The Montanists condemned second marriages; vid. Tertull. de Monogam. 8; de Exhort. Cast. 9. and the Novatians, Epiph. Hær. lix. 3. Second marriages were an impediment to holy orders. They are spoken of by the Fathers as at best a concession. e. g. Iren. Hær. iii. 17. Chrysost. in Mat. Hom. 32. fin.

Meats.

- (17.) 27. And concerning food, let these be your doctrines; since many stumble concerning meats also. For some indifferently draw near to things sacrificed to idols; and others, while they are austere, condemn them who eat: and thus in different ways the soul of some is defiled in the matter of meats, while they are ignorant of the profitable reasons, for eating or abstaining. For we fast, abstaining from wine and flesh, not because we abhor them as abominations, but because we look for the reward; that scorning things sensible, Ps. 126, we may enjoy the spiritual and invisible table, and that sowing now in tears, we may reap in joy in the world to come. Despise not however those who eat, and partake 5.
1 Tim. because of their bodies' weakness; nor blame those who use a little wine, for their stomach's sake, and their often infirmities; nor condemn them as sinners. Nor abhor thou flesh as being an unchristian thing; for the Apostle knew 5, 23.
1 Tim. some such when he spake of those, forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe^y. In abstaining then from them, abstain not from them as abominable, otherwise thou hast no reward; but look down on them though good, for the sake of those nobler spiritual things which are set before thee.

28. For thy soul's sake, at no time eat ought of the things offered to idols. For concerning these meats, not I only, but the Apostles also before now, and James, the Bishop of this Church, have taken thought: and the Apostles and Elders write to all the Gentiles a Catholic Epistle, bidding them

^y The various sects of Gnostics, and the Manichees, considered certain meats and drinks, as flesh and wine, to be polluting. Vid. Iren. Hær. i. 28. Clem. Pæd. ii. 2. p. 186. Epiph. Hær. xlvii. 2. xlviii. 1. &c. &c. August. Hær. 46. vid. Canon. Apost. 43. "If any Bishop &c.

abstain, chiefly from things sacrificed to idols, and then from blood also and things strangled. For many men being of a savage nature, and living like dogs, both lap up blood, copying the way of the most savage wild beasts; and also eat greedily without scruple things strangled^z. But do thou, the servant of Christ, when eating, observe to eat with reverence. Thus much concerning meats.

Apparel.

29. Be thou clad with plain apparel, not for vain ornament's sake, but for a necessary covering; nor to make a display, but that thou mayest be warm in winter, and mayest hide thine uncomeliness. Beware lest, under colour of hiding thine uncomeliness, by thy extravagant robes thou fall into uncomeliness of another sort.

VIII. OF THE RESURRECTION.

30. Be tender, I beseech thee, of this body; and know (19.) that thou shalt arise from the dead, to be judged with this body. But if any thought of unbelief steal upon thee, as though the thing were impossible, consider from thine own case the things which appear not. For tell me; think where thou wert thyself, an hundred or more years ago? From what an element, from what a very small and mean substance, hast thou come to so great stature, and to such dignity of comeliness. Cannot then He who brought into being that which was not, raise up again that which has been and has decayed? He who year by year raises up the corn which we sow, when it is dead, shall He find difficulty in raising us up, for whose sakes He was raised Himself? Thou seest how the trees have stood now for so many months fruitless and leafless; but when the winter is passed, they revive in all their parts as it were from the dead. Shall not we then much rather, yea and much more easily, live again? The rod of Moses was by the counsel of God changed into the dissimilar nature of a serpent: and shall not man who has fallen into death be again restored to himself?

^z The prohibition of idol-sacrifices, blood, and things strangled, was long in force in the East; but in the West as regards blood, and things strangled, it had become almost obsolete by S. Austin's age. Contr. Faust. xxxii. 13.

LECT. IV. 31. Heed not them who say that this body is not raised :
 Is. 26, for it is raised : and Esaias testifieth this, saying, The dead
 19. Sept. shall arise, and they in the tombs shall be raised. So Daniel,
 Dan. 12, Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall arise ;
 2. Sept. some to everlasting life, and some to everlasting shame. But though the resurrection is common to all men, it is not alike to all ; for we all indeed receive everlasting bodies, but not all the same bodies. For the just receive them, that through eternity, they may join the Choirs of Angels ; but the sinners, that they may undergo for everlasting the torment of their sins.

IX. OF THE HOLY LAVER.

32. Wherefore, the Lord of His lovingkindness has been beforehand with us, giving us the repentance of the Laver, that having cast away the chief, yea rather the whole burden of our sins, and having received the seal of the Holy Ghost, we may become heirs of life eternal. But seeing that we have before spoken sufficiently of the Laver of Baptism, let us go on to what remains of our preparatory teaching.

X. OF THE DIVINE SCRIPTURES.

(20.) 33. These things are taught us by the inspired Scriptures, both of the Old and of the New Testament. For the God of both Testaments is one, by whom Christ who appeared in the New Testament, was foretold in the Old ; who through the Law and the Prophets brought us as a Schoolmaster to Gal. 3, Christ. For before faith came, we were kept under the Law :
 23. 24. and, The Law was our Schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ.
 And if ever thou hear any of the heretics blaspheming the Law or the Prophets, utter against them the saving voice, Mat. 5, saying, Jesus came not to destroy the Law, but to fulfil.
 17. Learn, also, diligently, and from the Church, which are the books of the Old Testament, and which of the New : and ἀποκρύ- read not, I pray, any of the uncertain books^a. For why φων. shouldest thou, who knowest not those which are acknowledged by all, take needless trouble about those which are

^a Or apocryphal, a word which did not convey any reproach in the early Church, but merely signified that the book so named was not in the canon. Vid. Pearson, Vind. Ignat. i. 4. The questioned? Read the Holy Scriptures, these two and twenty books of the Old Testament, which were interpreted by the seventy-two interpreters.

34. For^b after the death of Alexander the king of the (21.) Macedonians, and the division of his kingdom into four principalities, into Babylonia, and Macedonia, and Asia, and Egypt, one of the kings of Egypt, Ptolemy Philadelphus, a king very fond of learning, when he was collecting the books which were in every place, heard from Demetrius of Phalerum, who was over the library, concerning the Divine Scriptures of the Law and the Prophets, and judging it far better to abstain from getting the books by force from unwilling persons, but rather to conciliate their possessors by presents and friendship, knowing moreover, that what is forced from men, being given against their choice, is oftentimes tampered with, whereas that which is given of free choice is presented with all sincerity,—he sent exceeding many gifts to Eleazar the priest at that time, for the temple at Jerusalem, and caused to be sent to him six men out of each of the twelve tribes of Israel, for the work of interpretation. Then, to prove whether the books were divine or no, and to prevent them who had been sent from combining together among themselves, he assigned to each of the interpreters his several dwelling, in the place called Pharos, which adjoins Alexandria, and bade each translate all the Scriptures. And when they had accomplished the work in seventy-two days, he brought together the translations of all, which they had made in different cells

^b This account is also found in Euseb. Præp. Evang. viii. 1—5. Philon. vit. Mos. ii. 658. Joseph. Antiq. xii. 2. Justin. Apol. i. §. 31. p. 62. Iren. Hist. iii. 25. Clem. Strom. p. 342. These, to which may be added Hilary, Austin, and Philastrius, are in addition to Aristeas, who is the original authority. Epiphanius makes the same general statement with some further particulars in detail. This concordant testimony of the Fathers does not prove the fact alleged, which seems to have come from the Jews, yet may prove the doctrine implied and involved in it, that there is something, more than ordinary, of the Divine Hand in the Translation in question,—a doctrine which is confirmed by the deference and reliance which the inspired writers of the New Testament evince towards it. e.g. Acts xiii. 34. xv. 17. We may believe this doctrine, and yet with entire consistency reject the particular story which symbolizes, and got currency by, the primitive belief in it. Prideaux (Connect. part ii. b.1.) comes to the following conclusions:—that the book which goes under the name of Aristeas, nay of Aristobulus, is a forgery of some Hellenistic Jew, with a view to add honour to the Septuagint version; and that in reality that version was gradually made in successive ages, first as far as the Law, then the Prophets, &c. It should be observed, that S. Jerome rejects the history of the separate Cells with great contempt. Præf. ad Pentat.

IV. without approaching one another; and he found them agreeing not in sense only, but in words. For the matter was not one of witty invention, or a contrivance of man's cunning devices; but the interpretation of the Divine Scriptures, spoken by the Holy Ghost, was, of the Holy Ghost, accomplished.

(22.) 35. Read the two and twenty books of these Scriptures: and have nothing to do with the uncertain books. Those only study earnestly, which we read confidently even in Church. Far wiser than thou, and more devout, were the Apostles, and the ancient Bishops, the rulers of the Church, who have handed down these: thou, therefore, who art a child of the Church, trench not on their sanctions. And of the Old Testament, as hath been said, study the two and twenty books; and these, if thou art diligent, strive to remember by name, as I repeat them. Of the Law, are the first five books of Moses; Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy: then Joshua the son of Nun: and the book of Judges and of Ruth, which is numbered the seventh. Of the remaining Historical books, the first and second books of Kings are among the Hebrews one book, and so the third and fourth books; and likewise the first and second books of Chronicles make one book; and the first and second books of Esdras are one; and the twelfth is the book of Esther: these are the Historical books. The books which are written in verses are five; Job, and the book of Psalms, and Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Songs, which is the seventeenth book. After these come the five Prophetic books: the one book of the Twelve Prophets; the book of Esaias; the book of Jeremias, which with Baruch, the Lamentations, and the Epistle makes one book; then Ezekiel; and the book of Daniel is the twenty-second book of the Old Testament.

36. Of the New Testament, there are only the four Gospels: the rest are forged and mischievous. The Manichæans also wrote a Gospel according to Thomas, which made acceptable with the fragrance of the evangelic name, corrupts the souls of the simpler sort. And receive also the Acts of the Twelve Apostles: and in addition to these, the seven Catholic Epistles, of James and Peter and John and Jude: and the final seal of all, and the last work of the disciples, the fourteen Epistles of Paul^c. But all the rest, let them be put aside into the second rank; and what is not read in the churches, that read not by thyself, according as thou hast heard. Thus far of these things.

37. Fly also from every devilish work, and listen not to (23.) that apostate Serpent, who has of his own choice changed himself from a good nature; who can persuade those who are willing, but can force no one. And give heed neither to observations of the stars, nor to auguries, nor to omens, nor to the fabulous divinations of the Greeks. And sorcery, and the craft of charms, and their most wicked practices for calling up the dead, receive not even to listen to them. Stand aloof from every sort of intemperance, being neither a glutton, nor a lover of pleasure; raised above all covetousness, and the taking of usury. Nor throw thyself into the assemblies of the heathen spectacles: nor ever use amulets in thy sicknesses: and put away from thee also the pollution of tavern-haunting. And fall not into Judaism, nor into the sect of the Samaritans: for henceforth hath Jesus Christ ransomed thee. Abstain from all observance of Sabbaths, and from calling any indifferent meat "common or unclean." Especially abhor all the assemblies of wicked heretics: and in every way make thine own soul safe, by fastings, by prayers, by alms, by reading of the divine oracles: that living in soberness and godly doctrine for the rest of thy time in the flesh, thou mayest enjoy the one salvation of the Laver of Regeneration, and having been thus listed in the heavenly hosts by God and the Father, thou mayest also be counted worthy of the heavenly crown, in Christ Jesus our Lord, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

^c S. Cyril keeps silence about the Apocalypse, after the usage of the early Greek Church (vid. Tillemont S. John, note 9.) as the Latins with respect to the Epistle to the Hebrews.

LECTURE V.

ON FAITH^a.

HEBREWS xi. 1, 2.

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen : for by it the elders obtained a good report.

LECT. V. 1. How great the dignity is which the Lord bestows on you, in transferring you from the order of Catechumens to that of the Faithful, Paul the Apostle sets before you, saying, 1 Cor. 1, God is Faithful, by whom ye were called to the fellowship of His Son Jesus Christ. For as God is called Faithful, thou likewise receivest this title, receiving in it a great dignity. For as God is called Good, Just, Almighty, the Artificer of the Universe, so also He is called Faithful; think then to how great a dignity thou art rising, being on the eve of sharing a title of God.

2. Now then it is only required, that a man be found among you faithful in his conscience: for a faithful man, Prov. 20, saith Scripture, who can find? Not that thou shouldest shew 1 Cor. 4, thy conscience to me; for thou art not to be judged of man's 3. judgment; but that thou manifest to God a guileless faith, Ps. 7, 9. who trieth the reins and the hearts, and knoweth the thoughts Ps. 94, of men. A faithful man is something great, and wealthier than 11.

^a S. Cyril treats in this and five following Lectures of the following articles in succession, which make up the Creed of Jerusalem. "I believe" (Lecture 5) in one God (6) The Father (7) Almighty (8) Maker of heaven and earth, and of all things visible and invisible (9) And in One Lord Jesus Christ (10) the Only-begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds, Very God by whom all things were made (11) Who was incarnate and made man (12) crucified and buried (13) and rose from the dead the third day and ascended into the heavens, and sat down at the right hand of the Father (14) and is coming to judge quick and dead (15) And in the Holy Ghost, the Paraclete, Who spake by the Prophets (16. 17) and in One Holy Catholic Church, and resurrection of the flesh, and in life everlasting (18). Mills in loc. also Ed. Benedict. p. 84.

any wealthy. For to the faithful man belongs the whole Prov. 17, world of riches, in that he thinks lightly of them, and tramples 6. Sept.
 them under foot. For those who in appearance are wealthy, and possess much, yet are poor in soul : for in proportion as they amass, do they pine from longing for what is still wanting.
 But the faithful man, most wondrously, in poverty is rich ;
 for knowing that we need only to have raiment and food, 1 Tim.
 and being content with these, he has put riches under foot. 6, 8.

3. Nor is it only among us, who bear the title of Christ, (2.) that the dignity of faith is great : for likewise all that is accomplished in the world, even by those who are aliens from the Church, is accomplished by faith. By faith, marriage laws knit together persons unknown one to another : and one who is strange to us, through the faith placed in marriage compacts, becomes a sharer in strange persons and strange possessions.
 By faith is husbandry also upheld : for he who does not believe he shall receive a harvest, endures not its toils. By faith, sea-faring men, putting their trust in a very slender plank, exchange that most solid element the earth, for the unsteady motion of the waves ; yielding themselves to uncertain hopes, and carrying with them as something surer than any anchor, their faith. By faith then most affairs of men hold together : and this not among us only, but likewise among those who are without, as hath been said ; for though they receive not the Scriptures, but bring forward doctrines of their own, yet these also do they receive by faith.

4. To that faith which is true, the lesson which was read today likewise calls you, setting before you, how you also must please God ; for, He saith, without faith it is impossible Heb. 11, to please Him. For when will a man set himself to serve 6.
 God, unless he believes that He is a rewarder ? When will a young woman choose a virgin life, or a young man be sober minded, unless they believe that chastity has a crown un-fading ? Faith is the eye which enlightens the whole conscience, and creates in it understanding ; for the Prophet saith, And if ye believe not, neither shall ye understand. Is. 7, 9.
 Faith stops the mouths of lions, according to Daniel ; for the Sept.
 Scripture saith concerning him, that Daniel was taken up Dan. 6, out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, 23.
because he believed in his God. Is there aught more fearful

LECT. V. than the devil? But even against him we have no other weapon than faith, an impalpable buckler against an unseen foe. For he discharges manifold darts, and shoots in the darkness those who are not watching; but, since the foe is unseen, we have, as a stout defence, faith, according to the Eph. 6, saying of the Apostle, Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. For when, as oft-times happens, a fiery dart of desire of base indulgence is hurled by the devil, faith, shadowing forth the judgment, cools the soul, and quenches it.

(3.) 5. Now we have many things to say concerning faith, and the whole day would not suffice us discoursing of it: for the present be we content with Abraham alone, one of the examples of the Old Testament, seeing that we also are become his sons through faith. He was justified not only by works, but by faith also: and though he did many things well, yet was he never called the friend of God, except when he believed; moreover every deed of his was perfected by faith. By faith he left his parents: by faith he abandoned country, dwelling-place, and home. As then he was justified, so be thou also justified. Further, his body was dead: for he was νεκρὸς πρὸς τὴν σαρκοῦ. an old man, and his wife Sarah was old also, and no hope of children was left him. God promises offspring to the old Rom. 4, man: and Abraham, not being weak in faith, nor considering his own body now dead; thinking not of his body's infirmity, Heb. 11, but of the power of Him who promised, and judging Him faithful who had promised, in a wondrous manner gained a child from bodies as good as dead. And when after he had gained a son, he was ordered to offer him, although he had Gen. 21, heard that, In Isaac shall thy seed be called, he offered his only-begotten son to God, believing that God was able even to raise him from the dead. So having bound his son, and laid him upon the wood, in intent he offered him, but by the goodness of God, who gave him a lamb instead of his child, he received his son alive. Wherefore, he being faithful, was Rom. 4, sealed unto righteousness, and received circumcision, the seal of the righteousness which he had yet being uncircumcised; Gen. 17, having received the promise that he should be the father of many nations.

6. How then is Abraham the father of many nations? Of the Jews he is confessedly, by the succession according to the flesh. But if we give heed to that which is according to the flesh, we shall be forced to say that the oracle is false: for according to the flesh he is no longer the father of us all; but a faith, of which his is the type, makes us all sons of Abraham. How and after what sort? It is incredible among men, that one should arise from the dead; it is incredible also, that of the aged, in their bodies dead, a child should be born; yet when Christ is preached, as having been crucified on the tree, dead and risen again, we believe it. By likeness then of faith we come to the sonship of Abraham: and then, upon our faith, like him, we receive the spiritual seal: being circumcised by the Holy Ghost through the Sacred Laver, not in the uncircumcision of the body but of the heart, as Jeremias saith, Circumcise yourselves to the Lord, and take away the uncircumcision of your heart; and as the Apostle saith, by the circumcision of Christ, buried with Him in baptism; and the rest. Jerem. 4, 4. Col. 2, 11. 12.

7. This faith if we keep, we shall be clear of condemnation, (4.) and shall be adorned with virtues of every kind. For so great power hath faith, that it even gives buoyancy to men walking on the sea. Peter was a man like unto us, formed of flesh and blood, and living upon like food: but believing Jesus, when He said, Come, he walked on the waters, having his faith for a support on the waters, surer than any foundation; and his heavy body was kept afloat by the buoyancy of his faith. But though as long as he believed, he had a sure footing on the water; yet as soon as he doubted, he began to sink: for as his faith gradually relaxed, his body also was carried along with it. And beholding his evil case, Jesus, the Corrector of the evils of our souls, said to him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? and again, nerved by Him who took hold of his right hand, from the moment he believed again, being led by the hand of the Lord, he regained the same power of walking on the waters. For thus the Gospel hath indirectly recorded, in the words, when they went up into the ship. For it says not that Peter by swimming went up into the ship; but it gives us to understand, that as far as he had gone to Jesus, such a distance did he retrace, going up again into the ship. Mat. 14, 29. Mat. 14, 32.

LECT. V. 8. Yea, so much power hath faith, that not only the person believing is saved, but one man has been saved by others (5.) believing. The palsied man at Capernaum was not faithful; Mark 2. but they who bore him, and let him down through the tiles, believed; for the soul of the sick man shared in the sickness of his body. Think not that I accuse him groundlessly; for Mat. 9. the Gospel itself hath said, Jesus beholding, not, his faith, but 2. 6. their faith, saith to the sick of the palsy, Arise. The bearers believed, and the sick of the palsy enjoyed the blessing of the cure.

9. Wouldest thou see yet more certainly, that some have John 11. been saved by others' faith? Lazarus died: one day passed, and a second and a third: his sinews were decayed and corruption was now preying on his body. How could a man four days dead believe, and call to the deliverer on his own behalf? But what was wanting in the dead, was supplied by his true sisters. For when the Lord came, his sister fell at His feet: and when to His question, Where have ye laid him? she answered, Lord, by this time he stinketh, for he hath been dead four days, He saith, If thou wilt believe, thou shalt see the glory of God. As if saying, "Fill thou up what is wanting, for the faith of this dead;" and so availed the sisters' faith, that it recalled the dead from the gates of hell. Have men then, believing one for the other, availed for a resurrection from the dead, and shalt not thou, if thou believe sincerely concerning thyself, much rather be profited? Nay, though thou be faithless, or have but little faith, yet is the Lord merciful; He will condescend to thee when thou repentest: only do thou also say to Him with a honest heart, Mark 9. Lord, I believe, help Thou mine unbelief. And if thou think- 24. est that thou art indeed faithful, but hast not yet attained the perfection of faith, thou hast need to say with the Apostles, Luke 17. Lord, increase our faith: for part thou hast of thine own 5. self, but the much greater part thou receivest of Him.

(6.) 10. For Faith, though in name one, is distinguished into two kinds. For there is one sort of faith, which is of doctrines, implying the acquiescence^b of the mind concerning some certain thing: and this faith profits the soul, as the Lord saith, He that heareth my words, and believeth in Him ^{John 5,} that sent Me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into ^{24.} condemnation; and again, He that believeth on the Son is not ^{John 3,} condemned: but is passed from death into life. O the great ^{18.} ^{John 5,} loving-kindness of God! The righteous were many years ^{24.} in pleasing Him; but what they obtained, by their pleasing Him well for many years, this is now bestowed on thee by Jesus in one hour. For if thou shalt believe that Jesus Christ is Lord, and that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved and translated into Paradise, by Him who brought the robber into Paradise. And do not disbelieve the possibility of this; for He who in this holy Golgotha saved the robber in one hour, the same will also save thee when thou shalt believe.

11. But there is a second sort of faith, bestowed as a gift by Christ in the way of grace. For to one is given by the ^{1 Cor.} Spirit the word of wisdom, to another the word of knowledge ^{12, 8, 9.} by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing. Now this faith which is given of grace by the Spirit, is not only a faith in doctrine; but it also worketh things beyond man's power. For he who hath this faith shall say to this mountain, Remove hence to yonder ^{Mat. 17,} place, and it shall remove. For when any one shall say this ^{20.} by faith, believing that it shall come to pass, and shall not ^{Mark 11,} waver in his heart, then he receiveth the grace. And it is of ^{23.} this faith that it is said, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard ^{Mat. 17,} seed. For like as a grain of mustard seed is small in bulk, ^{20.} but fiery in operation,—and though sown in a narrow space, has a circuit of mighty branches, and being grown up is able even to shelter the fowls; thus faith too accomplishes in the soul, in the briefest moment, the greatest things. Illuminated by faith the soul hath visions of God, yea, and, as far as it may, beholds God: and ranges along the bounds of the universe, and before the end of this world, already gazes upon the judgment, and the giving of rewards that is promised. Cherish then the faith in Him, which is of thyself; that thou (7.) mayest also receive from Him that faith which works things above man's power.

12. But take thou and hold that faith only as a learner and

 V. and is established from all Scripture. For since all cannot read the Scripture, but some as being unlearned, others by business, are hindered from the knowledge of them; in order that the soul may not perish for lack of instruction, in the Articles which are few we comprehend the whole doctrine of the Faith. This I wish you to remember even in the very phrase, and to rehearse it with all diligence among yourselves, not writing it on paper, but by memory gravating it on your heart as on a monument: being watchful, during your exercise, lest haply some of the Cate-chumens overhear the things delivered to you. This I wish you to keep all through your life as a provision for the way, and besides this to receive no other ever:
 whether we ourselves should change and contradict what we now teach; or some opposing Angel, transformed into an Angel of light, should aim at leading you astray. For though we, or an Angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

And for the present, commit to memory the Faith, merely listening to the words; and expect at the fitting season the proof of each of its parts from the Divine Scriptures. For the Articles of the Faith were not composed at the good pleasure of men: but the most important points chosen from all Scripture, make up the one teaching of the Faith. And, as the mustard seed in a little grain contains many branches, thus also this Faith, in a few words, hath enfolded in its bosom the whole knowledge of godliness any of the things delivered unto you. For Faith is like casting down money on the table: and this we have now done; but God requires of you an account of the deposit.

LECTURE VI.

ON THE UNITY OF GOD¹.

ISAIAH xlv. 16, 17.

*They shall go to confusion together that are partakers of idols :
but Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation, ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded world without end.*

LECT. VI. 1. BLESSED be God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; and blessed also be His only-begotten Son. For in the idea of God, let the idea of Father be included; that glory may be ascribed indivisibly to Father and Son with the Holy Ghost. For there is not one glory to Father, and another to Son, but one and the same with the Holy Ghost. Since the Son is the Only-begotten of the Father, and when the Father receives, the Son shares the glory; for the Son's glory is from His Father's honour: and again, when the Son is glorified, the Father of that infinitely good Gift is honoured mightily.

2. Now, though the motions of the intellect are most rapid, yet the tongue requires words, and the medium of discussion drawn out at full length. For the eye takes in at once a great company of stars; but if one wishes to tell of each in particular, which is the morning star, and which the evening, and so of each single star, there is need of many words. In like manner, the mind in the shortest moment of time compasses earth and sea, and all the bounds of the world; but that which is thought of in an instant, takes many words to express. Yet forcible as is the instance I have given, still it is after all weak and inadequate. For we speak, not what we ought concerning God, (for to Him only is this known,) but what man's nature can, and our weakness is equal to. For we explain not what God is; but we honestly confess that we have no exact knowledge of Him; for on the subject of God, it is great knowledge to confess our want of knowledge ^b.

Magnify, then, the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name Ps. 34, together. All of us jointly; for one is unequal to it; yea ³. rather, though all of us united, we should not even then do it adequately; not only not you who are present, but not even if all the nurslings of all the universal Church, present and to come, should meet together, could they, worthily, sing the praises of the Shepherd.

3. Abraham was great and honourable,—but great in com- (2.)
parison of men; but when he drew nigh to God, then honestly avowing the truth, he saith, I am earth and ashes. He said Gen. 18, not, “Earth” only, and then was silent, lest he should call ²⁷. himself by the name of that mighty element: but he added, “and ashes;” that he might represent his mouldering and frail nature. “Is there, saith he, any thing smaller or lighter than ashes?” Take, he saith, the comparison of ashes with a house, of a house with a city, of a city with a province, of a province with the Roman empire, of the Roman empire with all the earth, and all its bounds; then compare all the earth with the embosoming heaven, the earth, which holds such proportion to the heaven, as the centre of the wheel to all its circumference, (for such is the proportion between earth and heaven;)—think then that this first heaven which we see, is smaller than the second, and the second than the third, (for thus far hath Scripture named them, not that they are so many only, but so many only was it expedient for us to know,)—and when thou hast in thought surveyed all the heavens, yet not even shall the heavens be able to praise God according to what He is, no, not though they should resound with a voice louder than thunder. But if the spheres of heaven, being so many, cannot worthily sing God’s praise, how shall earth and ashes, that least and smallest of things existing, succeed in sending up a worthy song to God, or worthily to speak of God, that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and Is. 40, the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers. ²².

4. If any take in hand to speak concerning God, first let (3.) him declare the bounds of the earth. Thou dwellest on the ^b Vid. Hooker, Eccles. Pol. i. 2. §. 2. of man,” &c.

“Dangerous it were for the feeble brain

LICT. VI. earth, and knowest not the limit of the earth which is thy dwelling; how then wilt thou be able worthily to think of its Creator? Thou beholdest the stars, but their Maker thou beholdest not: count the stars, which are seen, and then set forth Him who is not seen; Who telleth the number of the stars, and calleth them all by their names! The pouring rains, which lately came down on us, well nigh destroyed us: number the drops which fell in this city only: nay, on thine own house in one hour, if thou canst; but thou canst not. Know thou thine own weakness; and thence know the power of God; for by Him are numbered the drops of rain, which have been poured down on the whole earth, not only now, but ever. The sun is the workmanship of God, great indeed, yet but a spot in comparison of the whole of heaven; first gaze stedfastly on the sun, and then curiously scan his Lord. Seek not that which is deeper than thou, and that which is stronger than thou search not out; but what is appointed thee, that consider.

(4.) 5. But some one will say, If the Divine Nature is incomprehensible, why then dost thou discourse concerning these things? Shall I then, since I cannot drink up all the river, not take in due measure even what is expedient for me? Because I cannot sustain with these eyes of mine the whole sun, shall I not behold even as much of him as suffices for my wants? or, when I have entered into a great park, because I cannot eat all the fruits, wouldest thou have me depart actually hungry? I praise and glorify Him who hath made us: for it is a Divine call which says, Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. I am attempting now to glorify the Lord, not to declare Him; knowing indeed right well that I must fall short of worthily glorifying Him, but deeming it a work of godliness even to attempt it at all. For the Lord Jesus encourages my infirmity, saying, No one hath seen God at any time.

6. What then, some one will say, means the text, The Angels of the little ones always behold the face of My Father which is in heaven. Yes, but the Angels behold, not according to what God is, but as they are able. For it is Jesus Himself who saith, Not that any hath seen the Father, save He which is of God: He hath seen the Father. The Angels then behold as they can bear, and the Archangels as they are able; and Thrones and Dominions, though more fully than these, yet less than God's excellency. But only the Holy Ghost, together with the Son, can behold Him worthily: for the Spirit searcheth all things, and knoweth even the deep ^{1 Cor. 2, 10.} things of God. For as the Only-begotten Son, together with the Holy Ghost, fully knoweth the Father, (for neither ^{Mat. 11, 27.} knoweth any one the Father, saith He, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him,) so while He beholdeth fully, He, with and through the Holy Ghost, revealeth God, according as each can bear: since the Only-begotten Son together with the Holy Ghost is a partaker of the Father's Godhead. He, who without passion was begotten ^{δ γεννη-} before the world began, knoweth Him who begat; and He who ^{ἐκ τῆς ἀπα-} begat knoweth Him who was begotten. When even Angels ^{θῶς.} ^{2 Tim. 1, 9.} then are ignorant, (for to each according to his own capacity doth the Only-begotten reveal Him through and with the Holy Ghost, as we have said,) let none of men be ashamed to own his ignorance. I am now speaking, as all do in place; but how we speak, we cannot tell: how then can I declare Him who hath given us the gift of speech? I who have a soul, yet cannot tell its lineaments; how then shall I be equal to describe its Giver?

7. It suffices us for devotion, to know that we have a (5.) God; a God who is One, a God who is, is always; always like unto Himself; and has no Father, none mightier than Himself, no successor to dispossess Him of His kingdom: manifold in name, all-powerful, in substance uniform. For ^{μονοσιδῆ} ^{τὴν ὑπό-} ^{στασιν.} though He is called Good, and Just, and Almighty, and Sabaoth^a, He is not therefore distinct and various; but being Himself one and the same, He dispenses the countless operations of the Godhead, not abounding here and deficient there, but being in all things like unto Himself. Not great in loving-kindness only, and little in wisdom, but with wisdom and loving-kindness in equal measure; not seeing here, and not seeing there; but being all eye, and all ear, and all mind; not as we, perceiving here, and ignorant there; for Him, here and there, then His sight too is here and there, and not all-perfect: which is blasphemy. God is to be accounted perfect in all things, according to the Saviour's saying,

 Mat. 5, Your Father which is in heaven is perfect: perfect in sight,

10. Though God is so great, yea, and greater—(for though the whole of me became tongue, it could not speak adequately, rather, not even all Angels joined together would suffice,) though I say, the Great and Good God is such, yet did man grave a stone, and dare to say to it, Thou art my God! O great blindness, from such greatness descending to such abjectness! The tree which God has planted, and the rain increased, and which then is burnt to ashes, this forsooth is named God; but the true God is made light of. The wickedness of idolatry wrought lavishly; and cat, dog, wolf, were worshipped instead of God. The lion who devours man was worshipped for God who tenderly loves him; serpent and dragon, counterparts of him who cast us out of Paradise, were worshipped; He who planted Paradise was thought lightly of. Nay, I feel shame while I say it, even onions have been before now worshipped. Wine was given, to make glad the heart of man; and Bacchus was worshipped in the place of God: God made corn by saying, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed after its kind, that bread might strengthen man's heart; whence then was Ceres worshipped? fire even to this day is struck out from stones by collision; whence then Vulcan, the maker of fire? 11. Whence the Greek false doctrine of many gods? God is incorporeal; whence then the adulteries, which are charged upon their so called gods? I will be silent of the changes of Jupiter into a swan: I am ashamed to speak of his transformations into a bull; as if lowings were worthy of a god.

LECT.
VI.

The god of the Greeks is convicted of adultery, yet are they not ashamed: but if he is an adulterer, let him not be called god. They tell too of deaths among their gods, and expulsions, and blastings by thunder; seest thou how high they were and now how fallen? Surely it was not for nought that the Son of God came down from heaven, when it was to heal so great a wound; it was not for nought the Son came, that the Father might be acknowledged. Thou hast learned, what moved the Only-begotten to come down from the throne on God's right hand. The Father was despised; it behoved the Son to set right this departure; for it behoved Him by whom all things were made, to bring all things near unto the Lord of all. The wound had to be cured; for what was worse than such a sickness, the worshipping a stone for God?

- (8.) 12. And not only among the Gentiles hath the Devil waged this contest; but many falsely called Christians, wrongfully designated by the sweet name of Christ, have been impious enough to dare separate God from His own works. I mean the tribe of heretics, men of evil name and utter ungodliness, in pretence lovers of Christ, but altogether His enemies: for he who blasphemes Christ's Father, is an enemy of the Son. These men^b have dared to say that there are two godheads, one good, and one evil. Exceeding blindness! If a Godhead then, must it not be altogether good? but if not good, why called Godhead? for goodness belongs to God. For since there belongeth to God, loving-kindness, beneficence, omnipotence, let them do one of two things; let them call Him God in operation as well as in name; or if they mean to deprive Him of His operative power, let them not give Him the bare name.

13. Heretics have dared to say, that there are two Gods, a source of good, and a source of evil, and that both these are unoriginate. If both are unoriginate, certainly they must be equal also, and both mighty: how then doth the light destroy the darkness? Again, are they ever together, or are they separate? Together they cannot be, for what fellowship hath light with darkness, saith the Apostle; but if they are far one from another, doubtless each has his own place, and if so, doubtless we are in the realms of one God: doubtless also we worship one God. Thus the argument holds for the worship of one God, even granting their absurd doctrine. Next let us examine what they say of the good God. Is He powerful, or powerless? If powerful, how came evil, against His will? and how does the evil substance introduce itself, without His consent? If He knows, but cannot hinder, they impute to Him want of power; but unfaithfulness, if He is able, yet hinders it not. And consider their inconsistency; at one time they say, that as to the world's creation the evil God has nothing in common with the good God: at another time, only the fourth part. And they say that the good God is the Father of Christ; yet they call the sun, Christ. If then the world, according to them, was made by the evil God, and the sun is in the world; how is the Son of the good God an unwilling minister in the works of the evil God? It is to touch mire even to say these things; but I say them, lest any here present from not knowing better fall into heretical mire themselves. I know that I am polluting my own mouth, and your ears: but it is expedient; fitter much that you should hear these monstrous things charged against third persons, than out of ignorance fall into them: that thou shouldest know the mire and hate it, than know it not and fall into it. Heretical impiety is a way with many branches; when a man once strays from the one direct road, he often gets into precipitous ground.

14. And of all heresy Simon Magus was the originator,— (9.) Simon who in the Acts of the Apostles, expected to purchase with money the unpurchaseable gift of the Spirit, and who heard these words, Thou hast neither part nor lot in this Acts 8, matter, and the rest;—of whom it is written, They went out 18—21. from us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, 1 John 2, 19. they would no doubt have continued with us. Having come to Rome, after he had been cast out by the Apostles, and gaining over a profligate woman called Helena, he commenced by daring with blasphemous lips to say, that he had appeared as the Father on Mount Sinai; that afterward among the Jews, he had shewn himself as Christ, not in the flesh, but in appearance: and after this as the Holy Ghost, of whom Christ had

LACT. VI. promised, that He should be sent as the Comforter. And he so deceived the Roman state, that Claudius set up a statue of him, writing under it in the Roman tongue, SIMONI DEO SANCTO: which being interpreted is, "To Simon the Holy God^c."

προσά- 15. The error spreading, that goodly pair, Peter and Paul, ται. vid. the rulers of the Church, being present, set matters right above again; and on Simon the supposed God, attempting a dis- Lect. iv. play, they straightway laid him dead. Simon, that is, §. 35. promised that he should be raised aloft towards heaven, and accordingly was borne through the air on a chariot of Dæmons; on which the servants of God falling on their knees, gave an instance of that agreement, of which Jesus said, If

Mat. 18, two of you shall agree as touching any thing that they shall 19. ask, it shall be done for them: and reaching the sorcerer with this unanimity of their prayer, they precipitated him to the earth. For is this strange, though it be strange? for

Mat. 16, it was Peter, he who bears with him the keys of heaven: 19. is it astonishing? for it was Paul, he who was caught up into

2 Cor. 12, 2. 4. the third Heaven, and into paradise, and who heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

It was these, I say, who precipitated from air to earth the supposed God, on his journey to the place under the earth. He then was the first serpent of evil: but though one head had been cut off, the root of evil turned out many-headed.

(10.) 16. Cerinthus wasted the Church, and Menander, and Carpocrates: and the Ebionites, and Marcion, a very mouth-piece of ungodliness; for one who teaches different Gods, one

^c This account originates in Justin Martyr, who says he saw the statue in the island of the Tiber. A doubt, however, is cast on it, from a stone having been dug up in this very island in the Pontificate of Gregory XIII, A.D. 1585, with this inscription, Semoni Sango Deo Sacrum.

Sex. Pompeius &c. Sangus or Sancus was a Sabine God. vid. Lact. i. 15. Aust. de Civ. D. xviii, 19. That Simon was struck dead at Rome by St. Peter is confirmed by the cautious Eusebius, but the details of the occurrence are not certain.

next, the originator of another error; for being refuted by the texts from the Old Testament which are cited in the New, he who had already effaced the idea of God, was the first to venture also on cutting out those very testimonies to the word of faith preached in the Gospel; and to consent to weaken the Church's faith, as though there had been no heralds of it.

17. Next came Basilides, of evil fame, plausible in his bearing, and a preacher of profligacy. Valentinus aided the (11.) wretched cause, with his announcement of thirty Gods. The Greeks tell of few: but this man, in name though not in truth a Christian, carried on their fiction to a whole thirty^d. And he says that Bythus, the Abyss, begat Silence; (for it became him who is the abyss of wickedness, to begin his doctrine from the Abyss;) and that of Silence he begat the Word.—This Bythus is worse than the Jupiter of the Greeks, who was married to his sister: for Silence was said to be the child of Bythus. What a monstrous doctrine to be cloked under the pretence of Christianity! but wait awhile, and thou shalt hate the impious creed. He says that of him were begotten eight Æons, or Ages: and of them, ten more: and of them, other twelve, male and female. And what is the proof of all this? their arguments are as absurd as their creed; how dost thou demonstrate the thirty Æons? because, says he, it is written, that Jesus was baptized, being thirty years old: Luke 3, granting the fact, what a demonstration is this? He broke ^{23.} five loaves among five thousand; are there therefore five Gods? or because He had twelve disciples, must there be twelve?

18. Even this however is little compared with the impious things which follow: he says, that the last of the Gods is both male and female; (thus he dares to speak,) and that this is Wisdom: what blasphemy! for Christ is the Wisdom of God, His only-begotten Son: and yet his doctrine degraded the ^{1 Cor. 1, 24.} Wisdom of God to a female nature, and a thirtieth principle, and the last creation. And he says, that Wisdom attempted to behold the first God; but that, not bearing his brightness, she fell from heaven, and forfeited the thirtieth place; that

LECT. VI. then as she groaned, her groans begat the devil: and while she wept her downfall, she gave being to the sea. What blasphemy! as if the devil could be born from Wisdom, and evil from understanding, or from light, darkness? And he says, that the devil begat others, some of whom framed the world; and that the Christ came down, to make men revolt from the Maker of the World.

19. Now listen, whom they say that Christ Jesus is; that thou mayest hate them still more. They teach then, that when Wisdom was cast out, in order that the number of the thirty might not be incomplete, the nine and twenty Æons each contributed some little element, and formed the Christ: and him again, as they say, both male and female. Can there be aught more blasphemous, aught more miserable than this? I go through their heresy, to make you hate them more. Flee then such blasphemy, nor bid such an one God speed, lest thou have fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness. And be not curious about them, nor seek to converse with them.

(12.) 20. Thou must hate all heretics, but especially him who even in name is a Maniac; who arose lately under the Emperor Probus: (for the error is just seventy years standing,) and there are to this day men who have seen him with their own eyes. But hate him not for this, that he is of recent date; but because of his impious doctrines, hate thou this worker of evil, this reservoir of all pollution, who hath taken on him the filth of every heresy. For being ambitious of distinction among the bad, he took the doctrines of all, and having framed one heresy filled with blasphemies, and with all wickedness, he devastates the Church, (or rather those without it,) like a lion ranging about, and devouring. Heed not thou their fair speeches, nor their supposed humility: for they are serpents, the offspring of vipers. Judas too said, Hail Master, and betrayed Him: heed not that they kiss, but guard against their venom.

21. Lest I seem to bring these charges without grounds, I will go out of the way to say who this Manes is, and to a certain point what he teaches; as to giving a full account of his foul teaching, no time would be long enough. It will serve as an aid in season, to lay up in thy memory what I have said on other occasions and shall repeat now, with the view of informing the ignorant and reminding the informed. Manes did not rise from the Christian body; God forbid! nor like Simon was he cast out of the Church, neither he, nor those who taught before him, for he is a pilferer and appropriator of other men's sins;—but how, and after what manner, ye must hear.

22. There was in Egypt a certain Scythianus, a Saracen^e (13.) by race, without any thing in common either with Judaism, or with Christianity. This man, who dwelt at Alexandria, as an Aristotelian, composed four books: one called the Gospel, yet not an account of the acts of Christ, though bearing this title; and another called the Book of Chapters; and a third called the Book of Mysteries; and a fourth, which they now use, called the Treasure. This man had a disciple, Terebinthus by name; as for Scythianus himself he passed into Judæa, and while he was engaged in infecting that country, the Lord took him off by a sickness, and stopped the plague.

23. Terebinthus, his disciple in wicked error, was heir of his gold, his books, and his heresy: he made his appearance in Palestine; but on being recognized and condemned in Judæa, he resolved to pass into Persia; and to prevent a second recognition from his name, he changed it to Buddas. But there he found opponents, the ministers of Mithras: and being subjected to a series of defeats in discussion and controversy, at last hard pressed, he betakes himself to a certain widow. Then having gone up to the top of the house, and invoked the Dæmons of the air, whom the Manichæans to this day invoke upon their detestable ceremony of the fig^f, he was stricken of God, fell headlong from the house, and gave up the ghost: and thus the second monster was cut off.

24. The books, however, the records of impiety, remained; and these and the property the widow inherited. And whereas she had neither kinsman, nor any one else, she determined out of the money to purchase a boy, named Cubricus: and having adopted him, she brought him up as a son in the LECT. VI. learning of the Persians, and thus sharpened an evil weapon against mankind. So Cubricus, her wicked servant, grew up in the midst of philosophers; and on her death, inherited the books, and the money. Then, lest the name of slavery should be a reproach to him, he called himself instead of Cubricus, Manes, which in the Persian language means, discourse: for since a disputant seemed to be a character of weight, he so surnamed himself, as though he were a most excellent discourser. But though he put himself to pains to gain repute according to the Persian language, yet by the Divine dispensation he was made still an unwilling witness against himself; so as to honour himself in Persia, at the expense of proclaiming himself a maniac among the Greeks.

(14.) 25. And he dared to say that he was the Paraclete^s; Mark 3, though it be written, But he who shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost, hath no forgiveness. He then blasphemed, saying that he was the Holy Ghost; let him that hath fellowship with them, take heed with whom he is ranking himself. The Prov. 30, servant shook the world, since for three things the earth is disquieted, and the fourth it cannot bear, when a servant reigneth. And having come into public, he now began to promise things superhuman. The son of the king of the Persians was sick, and a great crowd of physicians was in attendance. Manes promised to restore him by prayer, as though he were a devout man. The physicians departed, and the child's life with them,—this detected the man's impiety; our philosopher came into bonds, being cast into prison, not for reproving the king for truth's sake, not for overthrowing the idols, but for promising to save, and lying; yea rather, to say truth, for committing murder. For a patient who might have been cured by medical treatment, he in sending away the physicians, murdered by want of that treatment.

26. But in this enumeration of his multiplied offences, remember first his blasphemy; secondly, his slavery; (not that slavery is a shame to a man, but that for a man who is a slave to feign himself free, is an offence;) thirdly, the falsehood of his promise; fourthly, the murder of the child; fifthly, the shame of the prison. And there was not only the shame of the prison, but also the flight from the prison; yea, he who said that he was the Paraclete, and the champion of Truth, fled. He was not a successor of Jesus, who readily came to the cross; he was the reverse, a runaway. Then the king of Persia ordered the keepers of the prison to be led off to capital punishment. Manes was through his presumption the cause of the child's death: so too was he the cause of the keepers' death through his flight. Is he then who has a share in murder, fit to be worshipped? Ought he not to have followed Jesus, and said, If ye seek me, let these go their way? ought he not to have said like Jonas, Take me, and cast me into the sea; for my sake is this great tempest? John 18, 8. Jonah 1, 12.

27. He flies from prison, and comes to Mesopotamia; but (15.) there the Bishop Archelaus meets him as a weapon of righteousness, who argued with him before philosophers as judges, bringing together a Gentile audience, lest if Christians judged, the judges might be considered partial. And he says to Manes, "Tell us what thou preachest." He, whose mouth was an open sepulchre, began his defence with blasphemies against the Maker of all things. "The God of the Old Testament is the inventor of evil; for he saith of himself, I am a consuming fire." But Archelaus skilfully met the blasphemous argument; "If the God of the Old Testament, he said, according to thy words, calls Himself fire, whose Son is He who saith, I am come to send fire on the earth! If thou find fault with Him who saith, The Lord killeth and maketh alive, wherefore honourest thou Peter, who though he raised Tabitha, yet slew Sapphira? If again thou findest fault with Him as preparing fire, wherefore not with Him who says, Depart from me into everlasting fire? If with Him who says, I am the God that maketh peace and create evil; explain how Jesus saith, I am not come to send peace, but a sword? Since both speak the same language, one of two things must follow: either both are right, because they agree in these words: or if Jesus is unreprouceable in so speaking, why reproachest thou Him who in the Old Testament says the same?" Ps. 5, 9. Deut. 4, 24. Luke 12, 49. 1 Sam. 2, 6. Mat. 25, 41. Is. 45, 7. Mat. 10, 34. ἄμφότες - ροικαλοί.

28. Then says Manes to him: "And what sort of God is he who blinds men? For it is Paul who says, In whom the" 2 Cor. 4, 4.

Was it because He hated them, that He would not that they should see? or was it because of this unworthiness, since

Mat. 13, 15. they had closed their eyes? For where there is self-chosen depravity, there is also the withholding of grace: for to him

Mat. 23, 29. that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have."

Luke 8, 18. 29. Or we may say, as some explain, and not despicably, If

He hath indeed blinded the minds of the unbelievers, He hath blinded them for good purpose, that they may look up to what is good; for He hath not said, "He hath blinded the soul," but, the thoughts of the unbelievers. For what He says is something of this kind; "Blind the profligate thoughts of the profligate man, and he is saved: blind the rapacious and plundering spirit of the robber, and he is saved." If thou wilt not so take it, there is yet another exposition of it. The sun too blinds those who are dull of sight; and men with weak eyes are blinded, the light distressing them; not that the sun is of a blinding nature, but because their eyes themselves do not see. And he hath not said, "He hath blinded their thoughts,"

Mat. 13, 13. that they might not hear the Gospel, but, that the light of the glory of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ should not shine

Mark 4, 34. unto them. For to hear the Gospel is allowed to all: but the glory of the Gospel is set apart for them who are truly Christ's. Therefore our Lord spake in parables to them who were not able to hear; but to His disciples He expounded them privately: for the brightness of glory is for the Illuminated, but blindness for the unbelievers. These mysteries which the Church now speaks to thee who art removed from among the Catechumens, it is not the custom to speak to Gentiles: for to a Gentile we speak not the mysteries concerning the Father and the Son, and the Holy Spirit, nor before Catechumens do we discourse plainly about mysteries; but many things many times we speak in a covert manner, that the faithful who know may understand, and that those who know not may receive no hurt.

30. With such words and many more was the serpent overcome; thus did Archelaus wrestle with Manes, and threw him. Again he, who had fled from prison, flies from this (17.) place also: and, having escaped his adversary, he comes to a very mean village; like the serpent in Paradise who left Adam, and came to Eve. But the good shepherd Archelaus taking thought for the sheep, when he heard of his flight, straightway with all speed hastened in search of the wolf. Manes seeing his adversary unexpectedly, rushed away and fled; and fled for the last time. For the guards of the king of Persia, being on the search, arrest the runaway, and inflict on him the sentence which he was on the point of receiving at the see ^{ἐπὶ τοῦ} ^{Ἀρχι-} ^{λάου.} of Archelaus. That Manes, who is now worshipped by his ^{i. e. from} ^{the po-} ^{pulace.} disciples, is seized, and led to the king; the king cast in his teeth his falsehood and flight; derided his slavish condition; avenged the murder of his son; condemned him also for the murder of the jailors. He orders Manes to be flayed after the Persian fashion; and the rest of his body was thrown as food for wild beasts: but his skin, that receptacle of a most foul mind, was hung up like a sack before the gates. He who called himself the Paraclete, and professed to know things to come, knew not his own flight and seizure^b.

31. This man had three disciples, Thomas, and Baddas, (18.) and Hermas. Let no one read the gospel according to Thomas, for it is the work, not of one of the Twelve Apostles, but of one of the three evil followers of Manes. Let no one join himself to the soul-wasting Manichees,—who affect the harshness of fasting with chaff and water, who gorge ^{τοῖς} ^{ἀχύρω} ^{ὑδασι.} themselves with the daintiest of meats, while they speak against the Creator, who teach, that he who plucks up a herb, is changed into itⁱ. For if he who crops a herb, or any vegetable, is changed into it, into how many will husbandmen and the tribe of gardeners be changed? Into how

VI. which then of these is he transformed? Ridiculous doctrines truly, and fraught with their own condemnation and shame! A shepherd both sacrifices a sheep and slays a wolf; into which is he changed? Many men have both netted fishes and limed birds; into which are they changed?

32. Let the Manichees, children of sloth, answer; who themselves work not, and eat up the labours of those who do; who receive with smiling countenances those who bring them meats, and return them curses instead of blessings. For when some simple person brings them any thing, the Manichee says, "Stand forth a little, and I will bless thee:" then having received the bread into his hand, (as some of them who have repented have confessed,) he says to the bread, "I did not make thee;" and he utters curses against the Highest, and curses him that made the bread, and thus eats what is made. If thou hatest food, why didst thou look with a smiling face on him who brought it? If thou art grateful to him who brought it, why utterest thou blasphemy against God who made and fashioned it? And again he says, "I did not sow thee; may the sower of thee be sown! I did not reap thee with a sickle; may the reaper of thee be reaped! I baked thee not with fire; may the baker of thee be baked!" A fair return this for kindness.

- (19.) 33. These are great offences, yet but small in comparison of what remains behind. I do not venture to describe their Baptism^k before men and women. I do not venture to say what they dispense to their wretched congregations^l. It is truly a pollution of our lips to speak on the subject. Are Greeks more loathsome? are Samaritans more abandoned? are Jews more blasphemous? are open profligates more unclean? Suffice it thee to know the fact; attempt not to learn by experience.—God thunders, and we all tremble; but they blaspheme. God lightens, and we all bow down to earth; but they have blasphemous tongues concerning the heavens,—which are written in their books, and which we have read, disbelieving those who affirmed them: yes, for your salvation, we have closely inquired into their deadly doctrines".

35. But may the Lord deliver us from such error: and may (20.) you be vouchsafed enmity against the serpent; that as they watch the heel, so you in turn may trample on their head. LECTURE VII.

ON GOD, THE FATHER.

EPH. iii. 14, 15.

For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family of heaven and earth is named.

1. OF God as the One Principle of all things I said enough yesterday; enough, I mean, not in respect to the subject, (for mortal nature cannot reach this,) but in the measure of our weakness; and I trod the bye paths which have been variously struck out by profane heretics: now, shaking from us their foul and soul-destroying doctrine, and remembering it not to our hurt, but for their detestation, let us revert to ourselves, and receive the salutary articles of the true Faith, joining to the dignity of God's sole sovereignty, the attribute of Father, and believing in One God the Father. It is not enough to believe in One God: we must receive with reverence this also, that He is the Father of the Only-begotten, our Lord Jesus Christ.

2. For thus our view of religion will rise above the Jewish. (2.) For the Jews receive indeed the doctrine of the One God; (though they have often denied this too by committing idolatry;) but they deny that He is also the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, differing from their own Prophets, who say in Holy Scripture, The Lord hath said unto Me, Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee. Even to this day they rage and gather against the Lord and against His Christ, thinking that the Father may be made their friend, apart from devotion towards the Son; knowing not that no man cometh to the Father, but by the Son, who saith, I am the door, and I am the way. He then who declines the Way which leads to the Father, and denies the Door, how shall he be vouchsafed entrance to God? They contradict too the words of the eighty-eighth^a Psalm: He shall cry unto Me, Thou art My Father, My God, and the rock of My salvation;

^a i. e. Psalm 89. In the Greek and Latin Versions, as need scarcely be said, the Psalms are numbered differently from the English.

LECT. VII. also, I will make Him My first-born, higher than the kings of the earth. If they contend that these things are spoken to David, or Solomon, or some of their successors, they have to shew how the throne of him whom they consider to be the object of the prophecy, is as the days of heaven, and as the sun before God, and as the moon stablished in heaven; and how is it they feel no awe about the text, From the womb, before the star of dawn I begat thee: and again, He shall endure with the sun, and before the moon, from generation to generation? To apply these things to a man, argues a mind utterly and entirely insensible.

3. But let the Jews, since they so will, be troubled with their accustomed sickness, and disbelieve these and such like Scriptures; but let us embrace the godly doctrine of the Faith, worshipping one God, the Father of Christ. For it were profane indeed, when He has given unto all the prerogative of parents, to deny to Him the like. And let us believe in One God the Father, that even before proceeding to treat of Christ, our previous discourse concerning the Father, may lay deeply in your hearts, not retard, faith in the Only-begotten.

τοῖς πα-
σι τοῖς

μενον.

(3.) 4. For the name of the Father, in its very utterance implies the Son: as in like manner to name the Son, is at once to imply the Father also. For if He is a Father, plainly the Father of a Son; and if a Son, plainly the Son of a Father. Therefore, lest when we say, We believe, “in one God, the Father Almighty; Maker of Heaven and Earth; and of all things visible and invisible,” and then add, “and in One Lord Jesus Christ,” it should be irreverently thought, that the Only-begotten is second in rank to heaven and earth, therefore before naming them, we named God, the Father; that as soon as we think of the Father, we may also think of the Son, for between the Son and the Father no being whatever comes.

5. God then, though He is in an improper sense the Father of many things, yet by nature and in truth is Father of One only, the Only-begotten Son our Lord, Jesus Christ: not becoming so in course of time, but being from everlasting the Father of the Only-begotten; not first without Son, and then becoming a Father, by a change of purpose; but before all substance, and all intelligence, before times and all ages, hath God the prerogative of Father; and more honoured in this than in all the rest. A father, not by passion, not by union, not in ignorance, not by effluence, not by diminution, not by alteration^b: for every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. He is a perfect Father of a perfect Son: who has delivered every thing to Him who is begotten; (for all things, He saith, are delivered to Me of My Father:) and is honoured of the Only-begotten; For I honour My Father, saith the Son: and again, Even as I have kept My Father's commandments, and abide in His love. Therefore we say like the Apostle; Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all consolation; and we bow our knees unto the Father, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, glorifying Him with the Only-begotten: for he who denieth the Father, denieth the Son also: and again, He who confesseth the Son, hath also the Father; knowing that Jesus Christ is Lord to the glory of God the Father.

6. We worship then the Father of Christ, the Maker of Heaven and Earth, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; to whose honour the former temple also, over against us, was built in this place; without toleration of the Heretics, who sever the Old from the New Testament, and in submission to Christ, who says of the temple, Wist ye not that I must be in My Father's place? and again, Take these things hence; and make not My Father's house an house of merchandise; which are plain avowals that the former temple in Jerusalem is His own Father's house. But if any one is so unbelieving as to require yet more proofs of the Father of Christ being the Maker of the World; let him attend to these words of his, in addition; Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall to the ground without My Father which is in heaven. And, Behold the fowls of the

^b These ideas were introduced by the heretics of the Gnostic and Manichæan schools, and imputed by the Arians to the Catholic doctrine, and especially to the word ὁμοούσιον. Accordingly, explanations were given on the subject at the Council of Nicæa; as e.g. Constantine's, which is thus reported in Eusebius's letter to his Church; αὐτὸς ἡρμήνευσε λίγων, ὅτι μὴ κατὰ τὰ τῶν σωμάτων πάθη λέγειν.  this, He said without hesitation, I go to My Father, and your

 and using at first in its proper meaning, to My Father, which was by adoption. For though we have been allowed to say without qualification in our prayers, "Our Father, which art in Heaven," this is a privilege from God's loving-kindness. For we do not call Him Father, because we were by nature begotten of the "Father which is in Heaven:"

 but having been translated from bondage to adoption, by the Father's grace, through the Son and the Holy Ghost, we are by ineffable loving-kindness allowed thus to speak.

8. And if any wishes to learn, how we call God, Father, let him hear Moses, the most excellent of elementary teachers;
 Deut. Is not He thy Father, he says, that hath bought thee?
 32, 6. Hath He not made thee, and established thee? And Esaias
 Is. 64, 8. the prophet; But now, O Lord, Thou art our Father: we are the clay, and we all are the work of Thy hand. In the plainest way has the Prophetic gift shewn, that not by nature, but of God's grace, and by adoption, we call Him Father.

9. Let Paul too explain to thee still more certainly, that in Holy Scriptures, it is not by any means the father according to the flesh only, who is called father; for he says, For though 1 Cor. ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not 4, 15. many fathers; for, in Christ Jesus have I begotten you through the Gospel. For not by begetting them according to the flesh, but in teaching and begetting them again according to the Spirit, was Paul the Father of the Corinthians. Again, ἀναγιγ-νῆσαι κατὰ πνεύ-
 μα. consider Job's words, I was a father to the poor. For he Job 29, named himself a father, not as having begotten them all, but
 16. as taking care of them. And the Only-begotten Son of God

Himself, when at His crucifixion, His flesh was nailed to the tree, seeing Mary His mother according to the flesh, and John His dearest disciple, says to him, Behold thy mother; John 19, and to her, Behold thy son: teaching her the parental 26. 27. affection due to him, and indirectly explaining that which is said in Luke, and His father and His mother marvelled at Luke 2, Him: words which heretical schools catch at, as if He were 33. begotten of a man and a woman. For like as Mary was Joseph, called the mother of John, from her parental affection to him, received not from having given him birth: so was Joseph called the text; but father of Christ, not as being really so, (for he knew her not, Gries- says the Gospel, till she had brought forth her first-born Son,) bach but on account of his care in nurturing Him. reads as Cyril. Mat. 1, 25.

10. Thus much then, in the way of a digression, to put you in remembrance. However, I will add yet another text in proof that God is called the father of men, but in an improper sense. Considering Isaiah says to God, Thou art our Father, Is. 63, though Abraham be ignorant of us; and Sara travailed not with 16. vid. us, is it necessary to pursue the enquiry? And when the Psalmist says, They shall be troubled from His countenance, Ps. 67, 6. the Father of the fatherless, and Judge of the widows, is it Sept. not evident at once to all, that when God is called the (68, 5.) Father of orphans who have lately lost their own fathers, He is thus named, not as having begotten them of Himself, but as tending and shielding them? Of men, then, He is, in an improper sense, the Father, as has been said: but only of Christ the Father by nature and not by adoption: moreover, of men in time, but of Christ before all time, as Christ Himself says, And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me with Thine John 17, own self, with the glory which I had with Thee before the 5. world was.

11. We believe then in One God the Father, the Unsearch- (5.) able, and the Ineffable: whom none of men hath seen, but John 1, the Only-begotten hath declared Him: for He which is of 18. God, He hath seen the Father: whose countenance the John 6, Angels continually behold, yet behold, according to the 46. measure of their respective orders; but the undimmed vision Mat. 18, of the Father is reserved in its purity for the Son with the 10. Holy Ghost.

12. At this point, recollecting what I have been just saying

LECT. VII. concerning God being called the Father of men, I am greatly amazed at men's insensibility. For while God has with unspeakable loving-kindness deigned to be called their Father,—He in heaven, they upon earth; He the Maker of Eternity, they the production of time; He who holdeth the earth in the hollow of His hand, they upon the earth as grasshoppers,—yet man, having forsaken his heavenly Father, has said to a stock, Thou art my father; and to a stone, Thou hast brought me forth; and methinks, for this cause the Psalmist says to human nature, Forget also thine own people, and thy father's house, whom thou hast chosen for thy father, whom thou hast coveted, to thy destruction.

13. And not only stocks and stones, but even Satan himself, some have ere now chosen for their father, even the destroyer of souls: these men the Lord thus reproves, Ye do the deeds of your father; that is, of the devil, who is the father of men, not by nature, but by deceit; for like as Paul for his godly teaching was called the father of the Corinthians, thus also the devil is called the father of those who of their own choice consent with him. For they are not to be tolerated who pervert the text, By this we know the children of God, and the children of the devil, as if by a law of nature some among men were to be saved, and some to perish: whereas neither do we come to such holy sonship of necessity, but of choice; nor was it by nature that the traitor Judas was the son of the devil and of perdition: else he would never at all have cast out devils in the name of Christ, for Satan casteth not out Satan; nor on the other hand would Paul have turned from persecuting to preaching the Gospel; but the adoption is at our choice, as saith John, But as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in His name. For not before faith, but from faith, we of our own choice have been counted worthy to become the sons of God.

(6.) 14. Knowing this then, let us walk spiritually, that we may be counted worthy of God's adoption: for as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For it avails us nought to possess the name of Christians, unless the works follow; lest to us also the words apply, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

For if we call on the Father, who without respect of person ^{1 Pet. 1,} judgeth according to every man's work, let us pass the time of ^{17.}
 our sojourning here in fear; not loving the world, neither the ^{1 John} things that are in the world; for if any man love the world, ^{2, 15.} the love of the Father is not in him. Therefore, my beloved children, let us offer glory to our Father which is in heaven, through our works: that they may see our good works, and ^{Mat. 5,} glorify our Father which is in heaven; casting all our care ^{16.}
 upon Him; for our Father knoweth what things we have ^{1 Pet. 5,} need of. ^{7.}
Mat. 6,
8.

15. And while we honour our Heavenly Father, let us also ^(7.)
 honour the fathers of our flesh: since the Lord hath evidently ^{Heb. 12,} so appointed in the Law and the Prophets, saying, Honour ^{9.} thy father and thy mother, that it may be well with thee, and thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. This command claims especial attention from those here present, who actually have fathers and mothers.
 Children, obey your parents in all things, for this is well ^{Col. 3,} pleasing to the Lord. For the Lord said not, He who loveth ^{20.}
 father or mother is not worthy of me, lest thou shouldst ^{Mat. 10,} from ignorance understand badly a good word, but added, ^{37.} more than Me. For when our fathers upon earth have views at variance with those of our Father which is in heaven, then we must obey this word: when, however, not hindered by them in respect of godliness, but from want of affectionate feeling, and forgetfulness of their benefits to us, we despise them, then that oracle will have place, which saith, He that ^{Exod.}
curseth father or mother, let him die the death. ^{21, 17.}
Mat. 15,

16. The first virtuous observance in a Christian is, to ^{4.} honour his parents, to requite their troubles, and with all his might to provide for their comfort: (for though we ^{ἀντιγεν-} should repay them ever so much, yet we never can be what ^{νήσαι} they have been to us:) so that they enjoying comfort of our ^{τούτους} providing, may establish us in blessings, which Jacob the ^{οὐδίποτε} supplanter knew the value of, when he appropriated them: ^{δυσήσ-} and that our Heavenly Father approving our virtuous course, ^{μισθα.}
 may count us worthy to shine with the just as the sun, in the ^{τὴν ἀγα-} kingdom of our Father: to whom be glory, with the Only- ^{θὴν προ-} begotten, our Saviour Jesus Christ, with the Holy and life- ^{αἰσιν.} giving Spirit, now and ever, to all eternity. Amen. ^{Mat. 13,}

LECTURE VIII.

ON THE SOVEREIGNTY OF GOD^a.

JER. xxxii. 18, 19.

The Great, the Mighty God; the Lord of Hosts is His Name, great in counsel, and mighty in work.

LECT.
VIII.

1. BY belief “in One God,” we utterly eradicate the mis-belief in many gods, using it as a weapon against the Greeks, and every opposing power of heretics: and by adding, “in One God the Father,” we oppose those of the circumcision, who deny the Only-begotten Son of God. For, as I said yesterday, even before we speak plainly concerning our Lord Jesus Christ, yet by our speaking of God the Father, we have already implied that He is the Father of a Son; that as we understand that God is, so we may understand that He has a Son. Now we add to this, that He is also “Almighty;” and that, because of Greeks and Jews together, and all heretics.

2. For some of the Greeks have said that God is the soul of the world. Others again, that His power reaches only to heaven, but not to the earth as well. And some, going into Ps. 36, 5, the same error, and perverting the text which says, And Thy faithfulness unto the clouds, have dared to bound God’s providence by the limits of the clouds and the heaven, and to despoil God of the things on earth; forgetting that Psalm Ps. 139, 8, which saith, If I ascend into heaven, Thou art there; if I go down to hell, Thou art there. For if nothing is higher than heaven, and if hell is deeper than earth, He who is master of the lower regions, must reach the earth also.

^a Εἰς τὸ Παντοκράτορα, Omnipotent, and English versions of the Creed.
ter, or Almighty, according to the Latin

3. And heretics again, as was said before, acknowledge not One Almighty God. For He is Almighty, whose might is over all things, who has power over all things. But they who say that there is one God, the Lord of the soul, and another the Lord of the body, make neither of them perfect, because each lacks what the other has. For how is he Almighty, who has power over the soul, but not over the body? or how is he Almighty, who being the Lord of bodies, has no power over spirits? But the Lord confutes these men, saying on the contrary, Rather fear ye Him which is able to destroy both body and soul in hell: for unless the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ had power over both, how should He subject both to punishment? for how shall He be able to take what is another's, and cast it into hell, except He first bind the strong man, and spoil his goods? Mat. 10, 28.
Mat. 12, 29.

4. But according to Holy Scripture, and the doctrines of (2.) truth, there is but One God, who has dominion over all things by His power, and suffers many things of His will. For He has dominion even over the idolaters, but He suffers them of His forbearance; and over even the heretics who deny Him, but He suffers them of His patience; over the devil too, but He suffers with him, of His patience, not from want of power, as if foiled. He is the commencement of the Lord's creation, Job 40, 14. Sept. 40, 19. English Vers. being made to be mocked, not by Himself, (that were unsuitable,) but by the Angels whom He has made: and He has permitted him to live, for two objects; that his defeat might increase his infamy, and that men might be crowned. All-wise providence of God! by which a wicked purpose is converted into a means of salvation for the faithful. For as He took the unbrotherly purpose of Joseph's brethren as the groundwork of His own scheme, and after suffering them to sell their brother, from hatred, took occasion thereby to give him the kingdom whom He would; so He suffers the devil to wrestle with us, that they who conquer him may be crowned, and that upon the victory, he may have worse shame, as conquered by the weaker, and men greater glory, as conquering one who was once Archangel.

5. Nothing then is excepted from the range of God's power, for Scripture says of Him, For all things serve Thee. Ps. 119, One and all serve Him; yet in this number His One Only 91.

LECT. VIII. Son, and His One Holy Ghost, are not included; all things which are His servants, rather serve their Lord through the One Son and in the Holy Ghost. God therefore has dominion over all things, and endures of His long-suffering even murderers, robbers, and fornicators; having appointed a set day for recompensing every one, that they may incur heavier sentence, if after a longer respite they have still impenitent hearts. Earthly rulers are kings of men, yet not so without power from above. And this Nebuchadnezzar knew by proof, when he said, His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and His kingdom is from generation to generation.

(3.) 6. Riches, gold and silver, are not, as some think, the devil's property; for the whole world of riches is the faithful man's, but the unbelieving hath no peace: and nothing is more removed from faith than the devil. Also God saith plainly by the Prophet, The silver is Mine and the gold is Mine; and his, to whomsoever I will give it. Do thou but use it well, and there will be nothing to condemn in silver; but when thou usest a good thing ill, then, not choosing to blame thy management of it, thou impiously blamest its Maker. A man may even be justified by means of opulence. I was an hungry, and ye gave me meat; that is, from being opulent; I was naked, and ye clothed me; that is, by being opulent; nay, wouldest thou be told that riches may become a door of the kingdom of heaven? Sell, He says, that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven.

7. Now I have made these remarks because of those heretics, who lay possessions, and riches, and the body under a curse: for I wish thee neither to be a slave to riches, nor yet to treat as enemies what is given thee of God to use. Never then say, that riches are the devil's: for though he say, All these things will I give Thee, for they are delivered unto me, yet one may even deny the assumption; for we must not believe the lying spirit. Perhaps however, compelled by the power of His presence, he spake the truth; for he said not, "All these things will I give Thee, because they are mine," but "because they have been delivered unto me." For he grasped not at the lordship of them, but he professed to have them in a certain sense committed to him, and to dispense them. However, this point concerning his speaking truth or not, deserves consideration of expositors at a fit time^b.

8. There is then one God the Father, the Almighty, whom the tribe of heretics have dared to blaspheme; yea, they παῖδες. have dared to blaspheme the Lord of Sabaoth, who sitteth above the Cherubim; they have dared to blaspheme the sovereign Lord; they have dared to blaspheme Him who rested on the Prophets, the Almighty God. But thou, worship One, the Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. Fly from the error of many Gods; fly from all heresy, and say with Job, I will call upon the Almighty Job 5, 8. Lord, who doeth great things and unsearchable, glorious 9. Sept. things and marvellous, without number; and For all these Job 37, things, is honour from the Almighty, to whom be glory for 21. Sept. ever and ever. vid. MS. Alexan.

^b The Fathers speak as if the Devil were originally the head of that order of Angels to whom the administration of this world was committed. On sinning, he made use of what power was left to him over it against his Maker, seducing man into idolatry, &c. Vid. Nyssen Orat. Catech. 6. Basil, Hom. 9. §. 10. Damasc. de fid. Orth. ii. 4. Ed. Bened.

LECTURE IX.

ON GOD, THE CREATOR OF ALL THINGS.

JOB xxxviii. 2, 3.

*Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge ?
Gird up now thy loins like a man ; for I will demand of thee, and answer thou Me.*

LECT.
IX.

1. WITH the eyes of the flesh it is impossible to behold God ; for the incorporeal cannot be subject to fleshly sight, and the Only-begotten Son of God Himself hath testified, John 1, saying, No man hath seen God at any time. Should however any one, from a passage in Ezekiel, understand, that Ezekiel saw Him, let him inquire what that Scripture says ; Ezek. 1, He saw the likeness of the glory of the Lord, not the Lord Himself ; nay, the likeness of His glory, not the glory itself, as it is in truth ; and beholding only the likeness of the glory, he fell to the earth with fear. But if the sight of the likeness of the glory, and not of the glory itself, wrought fear and distress in the prophets, any one who should attempt to behold God Himself, would to a certainty lose his life, Exod. 33, 20. Wherefore, of His exceeding loving-kindness, God has spread out the heaven to be the veil of His proper Godhead, Is. 64, 1. lest we perish : this is not my word, but the prophet's, If thou shouldest open the heavens, trembling would take hold of the mountains from thee, and they would melt away. And what wonder if Ezekiel, seeing the similitude of the glory, fell down ? since Daniel, when Gabriel the servant of Vid. Dan. 10, the Lord appeared, straightway shuddered and fell on his 5-18. face, and, prophet as he was, dared not answer him, until the Angel turned himself into the likeness of a son of man. For if the sight of Gabriel wrought trembling in the prophets, had God Himself appeared according as He is, would they not all have perished?

2. The Divine Nature then with the eyes of the flesh we (2.) cannot see, but from the Divine works we may obtain some idea of His power; according to the saying of Solomon, For by the greatness and beauty of the creatures, proportionably the Maker of them is seen. For he says not that from the creatures, the Maker is seen, but hath added, “proportionably;” for so much the greater does God appear to each, as the man hath attained a large survey of the creatures; and when by that large survey his soul is raised aloft, he gains a more excellent conception of God.

3. Wouldest thou know that the nature of God is incomprehensible? The Three Children, singing praises to God in the fiery furnace, say, Blessed art Thou that beholdest the depths, and sittest upon the Cherubim. Tell me the nature of the Cherubim, and then look upon Him who sitteth upon them. And yet Ezekiel the prophet has made a description of them, as far as could be; saying, that every one had four faces, the face of a man, and of a lion, and of an eagle, and of a calf; and that every one had six wings, and eyes on every side, and under each a wheel with four parts; yet though the prophet has so described, we are not yet able, even if we read it, to comprehend it. But if we cannot comprehend the throne which the prophet has declared, how shall we be able to comprehend Him who sits upon it, the Invisible and Ineffable God? Curiously to scan the nature of God is impossible; but we are able to offer glory to Him from His works that are seen.

4. These things I say to you because of what comes next in the Creed, and because we say, “We believe in One God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and of all things both Visible and Invisible;” that we may remember that the same is both the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Maker of heaven and earth, and thus secure ourselves against the bye paths of ungodly heretics, who have dared to speak evil of the All-wise Artificer of all this world, and who, though they see with the eyes of the flesh, are blinded in the eyes of their mind.

5. For what fault have they to find in this, the greatest of LECT. IX. the works of God? Truly they ought to have been struck dumb, when they viewed the vaultings of the heavens, and worshipped Him who has reared the sky as an arch, who out of the fluid waters has made the immoveable substance of the heavens. For God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters. God spake once, and it stood fast, and does not fall. The sky is water, and those orbs in it, sun, moon, and stars are of fire; and how run those fiery bodies in the water? But if any one is perplexed, from fire and water being of such opposite natures, let him remember the fire which in Egypt in the time of Moses flamed in the hail. Let him also behold the all-wise workmanship of God; for since there would be need of water, for tilling the earth, He made the heaven above of water, that when the region of the earth should require watering by means of showers, the heaven from its own nature might be ready for this purpose.

6. What? is there not much to wonder at in the sun, which being small to look on, contains in it an intensity of power, appearing from the east, and shooting his light even to the west. The Psalmist describes his rising at dawn, when he Ps.19,5, says, Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber. This is a description of his pleasant and comely array on first appearing to men; for when he rides at high noon we are wont to flee from his blaze; but at his rising he is welcome to all, as a bridegroom to look on. Behold also how he proceeds; (or rather not he, but one who has by his bidding determined his course;) how in summer time aloft in the heavens, he finishes off longer days, giving men due time for their works; while in winter he straitens his course, lest the day's cold last too long, and that the nights lengthening, may conduce both to the rest of men, and to the fruitfulness of the earth's productions. And see likewise in what order the days correspond to each other, in summer increasing, in winter diminishing, but in spring and autumn affording one another an uniform length; and the nights again in like Ps.19,2, manner. And as the Psalmist saith concerning them, Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. For to the heretics, who have no ears, they almost shout aloud, and by their order say, that there is no other God save their Maker and the appointer of their bounds, Him who laid out the universe.

7. No one must tolerate such as say, that the Maker of (4.) light is different from the Maker of darkness; for let a man remember Isaiah's words, I the Lord form the light and ^{Is. 45, 7.} create darkness. Why, O man, art thou offended with these? Why so annoyed at the time of rest given thee? The servant would not have gained it from his masters, but for the darkness bringing a necessary respite. And often, after toiling in the day, how are we refreshed by nights; and he who was yesterday amid labours, starts in the morning vigorous from a night's rest? And what more conduces to religious wisdom than the night, when oftentimes we bring before us the things of God, and read and contemplate the Divine Oracles? when too is our mind more alive for Psalmody and Prayer than at night? When does a recollection oftener come over us of our sins than at night? Let us not then be perverse enough to entertain the notion, that another besides God is the Maker of darkness; for experience shews that darkness is good and most useful.

8. Those persons ought to have felt astonishment and admiration, not only at the sun and moon, but also at the well-ordered choirs of the stars, their unimpeded courses, their respective risings in due season; and how some are the signs of summer, others of winter, and how some mark the time of sowing, others introduce the season of sailing. And man sitting in his ship, and sailing on the boundless waves, looks at the stars and steers his vessel. Well says Scripture concerning these bodies, Let them be for signs, and for seasons, ^{Gen. 1,} and for days, and for years; not for star-gazings, and vain ^{14.} tales of nativities. Observe, too, how considerately He imparts the daylight by a gradual growth; for the sun does not rise upon us, while we gaze, all at once, but a little light runs up before him, that by previous trial our eye-ball may bear his stronger ray: and again, how He has cheered the darkness of night by the gleam of moonlight.

9. Who is the father of the rain; and who hath given (5.) birth to the drops of dew? Who hath condensed the air into ^{Job 38,} clouds, and bid them carry the fluid mass of showers, at one ^{28. Sept.} time bringing from the north golden clouds, at another, ^{Job 37,} ^{22. Sept.}

10. For such wonders was the great Artificer to be blasphemed? or rather to be worshipped? And after all I have not yet spoken of that part of His wisdom which is not seen. Contemplate the spring, and the flowers of all kinds, in all their likeness still diverse from one another: the deep crimson of the rose, and the exceeding whiteness of the lily. They come of one and the same rain, one and the same earth; who has distinguished, who has formed them? Now do consider this attentively:—the substance of the tree is one,—part is for shelter, part for this or that kind of fruit; and the Artificer is One. The vine is one, and part of it is for fuel, part for shoots, and part for leaves, and part for tendrils, part for clusters. Again, how wondrously thick are the knots which run round the reeds, as the Artificer hath made them! Out of the one earth come creeping things, and wild beasts, and cattle, and trees, and food, and gold, and silver, and brass, and iron, and stone. Water was but one nature; yet of it comes the life of things that swim, and of birds; and as the one swim in the waters, so also the birds fly in the air.

11. And this great and wide sea, in it are things creeping (6.) innumerable. Who can tell the beauty of the fishes that are therein? Who can describe the greatness of the whales; and the nature of its amphibious animals? how they live both on dry land and in the waters? Who can tell the depth and breadth of the sea, or the force of its enormous waves? Yet it stays within its boundaries, because of Him who said, Hitherto shalt thou come and no further; and here shall thy proud waves be stayed. And to shew the decree imposed on it, when it runs up on the land, it leaves a plain line on the sands by its waves; declaring, as it were, to those who see it, that it has not passed its appointed bounds.

12. Who can understand the nature of the fowls of the air? how some have with them a voice of melody; and others have their wings enriched with all manner of painting; and others soaring on high, stay motionless in the midst of the sky, as the hawk. For by the Divine command the hawk having spread out her wings, stays motionless, looking down towards the south. Who of men can behold the eagle? But if thou canst not read the mystery of birds when soaring on high, how wouldest thou read the Maker of all things?

13. Who among men knows even the names of all wild beasts? or who can accurately classify their natures? But if we know not even their bare names, how shall we comprehend their Maker? The command of God was but one, which said, Let the earth bring forth wild beasts and cattle and creeping things after their kinds; and distinct natures sprung from one voice at one command,—the gentle sheep, and the carnivorous lion,—also the various instincts of irrational creatures, as representations of the various characters of men. The fox is an emblem of men's craftiness, and the snake of a friend's envenomed treachery, and the neighing horse of wanton young men, and that busy ant, to arouse the sluggish and the dull; for when a man passes his youth idly, then he is instructed by the irrational creatures, being reproved by that Scripture which saith, Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise; for when thou beholdest her in due season treasuring up food for herself, do thou copy her, and treasure up for thyself the fruits of good works for the world to come. And again, Go to the bee, and learn how industrious

14. Is not the Artificer then rather worthy to be glorified?
 For what if thou know not the nature of every thing? are the things therefore, which He has made, without their use?
 For canst thou know the efficacy of all herbs? or canst thou learn all the advantage which comes of every animal? Even from poisonous adders have come antidotes for the preservation of men. But thou wilt say to me, "The snake is terrible," fear thou the Lord, and it shall not be able to hurt thee; "The scorpion stings," fear thou the Lord, and it shall not sting thee; "The lion is blood-thirsty," fear thou the Lord, and he shall lie down beside thee, as by Daniel.
 And, truly, there is whereat to wonder, in the power even of the creatures; how some, as the scorpion, have their weapon in a sting, while the power of others is in their teeth, and others again get the better by means of hoofs, and the basilisk's might is his gaze. Thus from this varied workmanship, think of the Artificer's power.

15. But these things perchance thou art not acquainted with; thou hast nothing in common with the creatures which are without thee. Now then enter into thyself, and consider the Artificer of thine own nature. What is there to find fault with in the framing of thy body? Master thine own self, and there shall nothing evil proceed from any of thy members.

At the first, Adam in paradise was without clothing, as was

Eve, but it was not because of aught that he was, that he was cast out; nought that we are then is the cause of sin, but they who abuse what they are: but the Maker is wise.

 Who hath prepared the recesses of the womb for childbearing? Who hath given life to the lifeless thing within it?

Job 10, 11.

Who hath fenced us with sinews and bones, and clothed us with skin and flesh, and soon as the babe is born, brings forth fountains of milk out of the breasts? And how doth the babe grow to be a child, and the child to be a youth, and then to be a man; and is again changed into an old man, no one the while discerning exactly each day's charge? How also does part of our food become blood, while another part is separated for the draught, and another is changed into flesh? Who is it who gives its never ceasing motion to the heart? Who hath wisely guarded the tenderness of the eyes with the fence of the eyelids? for concerning the complicated and wonderful contrivance of the eyes scarcely do the ample rolls of physicians sufficiently inform us. Who also hath sent each breath we draw, through the whole body? Thou seest, O man, the Artificer; thou seest the wise Contriver.

16. These things has my discourse dwelt on now, passing over (8.) many, yea innumerable, other matters, and especially things incorporeal and invisible, that on the one hand thou mayest abhor those who blaspheme that good and wise Artificer; and that on the other, from what has been spoken and read, and from what thou canst thyself find out or think of, thou mayest proportionably see the Creator by the greatness and beauty of the creations; and that bending the knee with ^{5.} godly reverence to the Maker of all things, things of sense and things of mind, visible and invisible, thou mayest with an honest and holy tongue, and with unwearied lips and heart, sing praises to God, saying, O Lord, how manifold are Thy ^{Ps. 104,} works! in wisdom hast Thou made them all: for to Thee ^{24.} belongeth honour and glory and greatness, both now and for ever and ever. Amen.

LECTURE X.

ON THE ONE LORD, JESUS CHRIST.

I CORINTHIANS viii. 5, 6.

For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many and lords many,) but to us there is One God the Father, of whom are all things, and we in Him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him.

LECT. X. 1. THEY who have been taught to believe in One God, the Father Almighty, ought also to believe in His Only-begotten Son; for whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father. Jesus says, I am the Door; no one cometh unto the Father, but by Me. For if thou deny the Door, the knowledge concerning the Father is closed from thee. No man knoweth the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him; for if thou deny Him who reveals, thou remainest in ignorance. There is a sentence in the Gospels to this effect, He who believeth not on the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth upon him: for the Father is wroth, when the Only-begotten Son is set at nought. It is a great matter to a king, if even one of his soldiers be but dishonoured; and when it is one of his more honourable guards or friends, then his anger becomes yet greater; but if any offer outrage to the king's only-begotten son himself, who shall sooth the father, when wroth concerning his only-begotten son?

2. If then a man wishes to be religious towards God, let him worship the Son; since otherwise the Father accepts not his service. The Father spake with a loud voice from heaven, saying, This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well-pleased;

the Father was well-pleased with the Son ; unless thou also be well-pleased in Him, thou hast not life. Be not inveigled by the Jews, who craftily say, There is only One God ; but together with the knowledge that God is one, know also that God has an Only-begotten Son. I am not the first to say this ; for the Psalmist in the person of the Son saith, The Lord hath said unto Me, Thou art My Son. Heed not therefore what the Jews say ; but what the Prophets say. Wonderest thou that they who have stoned and slain the Prophets, set at nought their words ?

3. Believe thou on One Lord Jesus Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God. We say One Lord Jesus Christ, to signify that God's Son is Only-begotten ; we say, One, lest thou shouldest suppose another. We say, One, lest thou shouldest profanely disperse the many Names of power among many sons. For He is called a Door ; but take not the name literally for a thing of wood, but a spiritual, a living Door, discriminating those who enter in. He is called the Way ; that is, not one trodden by men's feet, but one which guides us to the Father in heaven. He is called a Sheep ; not an irrational one, the one, which through its precious blood, cleanses the world from its sins ; and when led before the shearer knew when to be silent. This Sheep, again, is called the Shepherd, who says, I am the good Shepherd ; a Sheep by reason of His manhood, a Shepherd on account of the loving-kindness of His Godhead. And dost thou wish to know whether there are spiritual sheep ? the Saviour says to the Apostles, Behold, I send you as sheep in the midst of wolves. Again He is called a Lion ; not a devourer of men, but as if shewing the title His princely and stedfast and resolute nature. He is called a Lion, in opposition to the lion who is our adversary, who roars and devours those who have been deceived. For the Saviour came, not as having laid aside the gentleness of His own nature, but as the mighty Lion of the tribe of Judah, to save them who believe, and to trample upon the adversary. He is called a Stone ; not a lifeless one, quarried by men's hands : but the chief-corner stone, on whom whosoever believeth shall not be ashamed.

4. He is called Christ, the Anointed ; not anointed by human hands, but having eternally from the Father an unction

L_{FCT.} to be High-priest over man. He is called Dead; yet not as X. having his abode among the dead, as all they have who are in Ps. 88, 5. Hades, but being alone free among the dead. He is called the Son of Man; not as being born of the earth, as all we are, but as coming upon the clouds to judge the quick and dead. He is called Lord, not improperly as some men are, but as having a Lordship, natural and eternal. Fitly is He called Jesus, i_αsou_s. deriving His name from His salutary medicine. He is called a Son; not advanced by adoption, but having been naturally begotten. And many are the titles of our Saviour; lest therefore His manifold appellations should make thee think that there are many sons, and because of the errors of the heretics, who say that Christ is One, and Jesus another, and the Door another, and so on, the faith secures thee beforehand, and says well, "In One Lord Jesus Christ;" for though the titles be many, their subject is one.

- (3.) 5. Now the Saviour shews Himself under various forms to each, for his profit. For to those who stand in need of rejoicing, He becomes a Vine; to those who want to enter in,
 He is a Door; to those who need to offer prayers, He stands a mediating High-Priest. Again, to those who have sins,
 He becomes a Sheep, that He may be sacrificed for them;
 1 Cor. He becomes all things to all, remaining in His own nature 9, 22. what He is. For, continuing to hold the true unchangeable prerogative of Sonship, as some skilful physician or considerate teacher, He adapts Himself to our weaknesses; though Very Lord, and not receiving the Lordship by advancement^a, but having that dignity by nature; not like us, improperly called Lord, but being so in verity; since by the νύματι Father's decree, He is Lord of His own works. For whereas πατρός. our lordship is over men of like rights and like passions, nay, often our elders, and often a young master over aged servants, our Lord Jesus Christ's Lordship is not so; but He is ειλήματι first Maker, then Lord; first He made all things by the will πατρός. of the Father, then, He is Lord over the things which He has made^b.

^a ἐκ προκοπῆς. This was the doctrine of the Samosatenes, Athan. de Syn. 26.
 §. 4. and of the Arians, Alex. apud Theod. Hist. i. 4.

^b It was a point of controversy in the early Church, (though of course not necessarily more than a verbal one,) whether God, and Christ, could be called Lord,

6. Christ the Lord is He who was born in the city of ^{Luke 2,} David. And wouldest thou know whether Christ is the ^{11.} Lord with the Father, even before His incarnation? That ^(4.) thou mayest receive the doctrine, not only by faith but by proof, from the Old Testament, go to the first book, Genesis; God saith, Let Us make man, not “in My image,” but, in ^{Gen. 1,} Our image. And after Adam was made, the sacred writer ^{26.} says, And the Lord created man; in the image of God ^{Gen. 1,} created He him. For he does not confine the prerogative of ^{27. Sept.} Godhead to the Father alone, but includes the Son; to shew that man is not the work of God only, but also of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is Himself also Very God. He, the Lord, who works when the Father works, wrought with Him in the case of Sodom also, according to the text, And the Lord ^{Gen. 19,} rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire ^{24.} from the Lord out of heaven. He, the Lord, afterwards appeared to Moses, as far as that was possible; for the Lord is merciful, ever accommodating Himself to our infirmities.

7. But, in order to be sure that this is He who appeared unto Moses, hear Paul’s testimony, who says, They drank ^{1 Cor.} of that spiritual rock which followed them, and that rock was ^{10, 4.} Christ^d. And again: By faith Moses forsook Egypt. And ^{Heb. 11,} shortly after he says, Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater ^{27.} riches than the treasures in Egypt. This Moses says to Him, ^{Ib. v.} Shew me Thyself. You see that the Prophets too saw the ^{Exod.} ^{33, 18.} ^{Sept.}

Omnipotent, &c. before creation. To avoid the difficulty, Origen is said to have held that God created all things from eternity. vid. Bull. Def. F. p. ii. 13. §. 9. and Origen de Princip. i. 2. §. 10. On the other hand, Tertullian contr. Hermog. 3, considering the attributes in question to belong, not to the Divine Nature, but Office, denies that God was Almighty from eternity; while the Greeks affirmed this, vid. Cyril Alex. in Joan. xvii. 8. p. 963. Athan. Orat. ii. 12—14, as understanding by the term the inherent but latent attribute of doing what He had not as yet done, τὸ ἐξουσιαστικόν, vid. Method. περὶ τῶν γεννητῶν, ap. Phot. Cod. 235. p. 933, 940.

^c Almost all the early heretics, except the Arians and Manichees, denied our Lord’s personal existence before His incarnation.

^d S. Chrysostom (in loc.), Theo-

doret (Quæst. in Josh. 4.), and S. Athanasius (de Incarn. Christ. 17.), agree with Cyril in understanding this text to mean, that Christ, as God,—S. Basil (de Sp. Sanct. 14.), and Tertullian (de Baptism. 9. in Marcion. iii. 5.) that Christ as already incarnate in His mercies vouchsafed to faith,—watched over the Israelites in all their wanderings, and was typically a Rock, i. e. as being like the rock in the desert. Tertullian (de Patient. 5.), and S. Jerome (in loco) adopt the Jewish tradition, that the stream flowing from the rock followed them all through their wanderings. Photius (vid. Justinian. in loc.) understands “followed” to mean “indulged,” “gratified,” “provided for,” them; as if, when they drank of the rock, they drank of His virtue who condescended to consult and answer to their wants.

LECT. Christ, that is, as far as each was able. Shew me Thyself,
 X. that I may see Thee with understanding. And He answers, Exod. 33, 13. There shall no man see My face and live. Wherefore, since 20. Sept. no man living could see the face of the Godhead, He took πρὸς σῶμα. on Him the face of human nature, that we though seeing it, might live. Yet when He wished to shew even that with a Mat. 17, little majesty, when His face did shine as the sun, the dis-
 2. ciples fell to the ground affrighted: if then His bodily countenance, shining, not in the fulness of Him who wrought but in the measure of those who followed Him, yet terrified them, and was too much for them, how could any man gaze on the majesty of the Godhead? ‘Thou desirest a great thing, O Moses,’ saith the Lord; ‘and I allow thine unappeasable desire;’ And I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken, Exod. 33, 17. but according as thou art able; Behold, I will put thee in a ver. 22. cleft of the rock, for being little, thou shalt lodge in a little space.

8. Now here keep a watch on what I shall say, on account of the Jews. For my object is to shew that the Lord Jesus Christ was with the Father. The Lord then Exod. 33, 19. says to Moses, I will pass before thee with My glory, and Sept. will proclaim the Name of the Lord before thee. Being Himself the Lord, what Lord doth He proclaim? Thus thou seest, how He hath covertly taught the godly doctrine of the Father and the Son. And again in what follows, it is written Exod. 34, 5. in the very letter, And the Lord descended in the cloud, and &c. Sept. stood by him there, and proclaimed the name of the Lord;
and the Lord passed before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, the Lord merciful and gracious, long-suffering, abundant in mercy and true; keeping righteousness and shewing mercy unto thousands, taking away iniquities, and transgressions, and sins. And then in what follows, Moses, having bowed his head, and worshipped before the Lord who proclaimed ver. 8. 9. the Father, says, Do Thou, O Lord, go with us.

(5.) 9. This is the first proof; now receive a second plain one.
 Ps. 110, The Lord said unto My Lord, Sit Thou on My right hand.
 1. The Lord says this to the Lord; not to a servant, but to the Lord of all, and His own Son, to whom He hath put all 1 Cor. 15, things in subjection. For when He saith, All things are put
 27. 28. under Him, it is manifest that He is excepted which did put all things under Him: and afterwards, that God may be all in all. The Only-begotten Son is Lord of all things, and yet the obedient Son of the Father, who instead of seizing on the Lordship^e, by nature received it of the Father's own will; for neither did the Son grasp at it, nor the Father reluctantly communicate it. He it is who says, All things are delivered unto me of My Father; "delivered unto Me, yet not as though I had them not before^f; and I keep them well, not withdrawing them from the Giver."

10. The Son of God then is the Lord,—the Lord, who was born in Bethlehem of Judæa, according to the Angel who spoke to the shepherds, I bring you good tidings of great joy; for unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. Of whom in another place an Apostle says, The word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ; He is Lord of all. But when he says, of all, except nothing from His Lordship; whether they be Angels, or Archangels, or principalities, or powers, or any created thing named by the Apostles, all things are under the Lordship of the Son. He is Lord of Angels, according to what thou hast in the Gospels. Then the devil departed from Him, and Angels came and ministered unto Him; for Scripture says not, that they succoured Him, but that they ministered to Him, which is the part of servants. When He was about to be born of a Virgin, Gabriel did Him service, having it committed to him as his peculiar privilege. When He was about to go into Egypt, that He might overthrow the gods of Egypt made with hands^g, again an Angel appeareth to Joseph in a dream. After He had been crucified, and had risen again, the Angel brought the good tidings, and as a trusty servant, said to the women, Go, tell His disciples that He is risen, and goeth before you into Galilee; behold, I have told you. As if he ^f The Arians argued that communication of power implied a time when it was not communicated, whereas the Catholic doctrine is, that the word describes a state which was without beginning. vid. Athan. Orat. i. 14. 26. 27. and Petav. de Trin. v. 9.

LECT. had said, "I have not disobeyed my command, I protest that I σμα, One Lord Jesus Christ, of whom now the text speaks also, lesson. 1 Cor. For though there be that are called Gods, whether in whom are all things, and we in Him; and One Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by Him.

(6.) 11. And He has two names, Jesus Christ; Jesus, because He saves,—Christ, because of His priesthood. And knowing this, the inspired Prophet Moses conferred these two titles on Numb. two most special men: changing the name of his own suc-
 13, 17. cessor in the government, Auses, to Jesus; and surnaming Sept. his own brother Aaron, Christ, that by two special men, he Oshua, might represent at once the High-priesthood and the kingdom Joshua. of Him who was to come, the One Jesus Christ. For Christ
 Lev. 4, is a High-priest like Aaron: since Christ glorified not Him-
 5. Sept. self to be made an High-priest; but He that said unto Him, Anoint- Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee. And Jesus
 ed. the son of Nave was a type of Him in many things. When he
 Heb. 5, began his government of the people, he began at Jordan;
 5. whence Christ also, after baptism, began His Gospel. The Josh. 3, son of Nave appoints the Twelve, who were to divide the
 1. inheritance; and Jesus sends forth the Twelve Apostles, the Josh. 14, heralds of truth, into all the world. The typical Jesus saved
 1. Rahab the harlot, who believed; and the true says, Behold,
 Mat. 21, the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of heaven
 31. before you. With only a shout the walls of Jericho fell down
 Mat. 24, before the type; and because of Jesus' word, There shall not be
 2. left here one stone upon another, the Jewish temple opposite us is in ruins; not indeed on the ground of the denunciation, but of the sin of the transgressors.

12. There is One Lord Jesus Christ, that wondrous Name, Isa. 62, glanced at beforehand by the Prophets. For Esaias the 11. Sept. Prophet says, Behold the Saviour is come nigh thee, having His reward; 'Jesus' among the Hebrews signifying Saviour.
 For the Prophetic gift, foreseeing the traitorous and bloody spirit of the Jews, veiled His name, lest from knowing it for certain, they might plot against Him leisurely. Moreover,
 He was called Jesus, not of men, but distinctly by the Angel, not coming on his own authority, but as sent by the power of God; who said to Joseph, Fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a Son, and thou shalt call His name Jesus: and he straightway adds the reason of this name, for He shall save His people from their sins. Consider how could He have a people, who was not yet born, unless He was in being, before He was born. And this the Prophet says in His person, From the bowels of My Mother hath He made mention of My Name, because the Angel foretold that He should be called Jesus. And again, concerning the conspiracy of Herod, He says, In the shadow of His hand hath He hid Me.

13. Jesus then means among the Hebrews, “a Saviour,” but in the Greek tongue, “a Healer:” seeing that He is Physician of souls and bodies, and curer of spirits; curing the blind in body, and leading minds into light; healing the lame in limb, and guiding the steps of sinners to repentance; saying to the sick of the palsy, Sin no more, and, Take up thy bed and walk; for since for the soul’s sin the body was palsied, He first gave a cure to the soul, that He might extend it to the body. If any therefore is suffering in soul from sins, he has a Physician; and if there be any here of little faith, let him say to Him, Help Thou mine unbelief. And if any be encompassed with bodily ailments, let him not mistrust, but let him approach; (for such also does He cure,) and let him know that Jesus is the Christ.

14. For that He is Jesus, the Jews allow, but not that He is Christ; wherefore the Apostle says, Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? But Christ is an High-priest, having an unchangeable priesthood: neither having begun His High-priesthood at any date, nor delivering it to a successor; as thou heardest me say when on the Lord’s day we discoursed in church on the words, After the order of Melchisedek. He has not received His High-priesthood from a carnal line, nor was He anointed with oil duly compounded, but by the Father before the worlds; and being our Lord, by the Arians. Epiph. Hær. 69. §. 37. Eusebius also holds it. Demonstr. v. 3. Nestorius accused the Catholics of holding it. Cyril contr. Nestor. iii, p. 64.

 18. things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have strong consolation, for our faith, who receive Jesus Christ the Son of God.

15. He, the Christ, when He came, was denied by the Jews, and confessed by devils; yet he was not unknown to Ps. 132, our forefather David, who says, I have ordained a lamp for
 17. my Christ, which lamp some have interpreted to be the
 v. 2 Pet. brightness of Prophecy, others the flesh which He took of 1, 19. the Virgin, according to the Apostle's words, We have this
 2 Cor. treasure in earthen vessels. Of Him the Prophet was not 4, 7. ignorant, when he said, And who declareth unto men His Amos 4, Christ. Moses also knew Him, and Esaias knew Him, and 13. Sept. Jeremias knew Him; there was none of the Prophets who Luke 4, knew Him not. Him even the devils recognized; for He
 41. rebuked them, and the sacred writer proceeds, because they knew that He was Christ. The Chief-priests knew Him not, John 4, and the devils confessed Him; the Chief-priests knew Him
 29. not, and a woman of Samaria proclaimed Him, saying, Come, see a man which told me all things that ever I did; is not this the Christ?

Heb. 9, 16. This is Jesus Christ, who is come, an High-priest of
 11. good things to come; who out of the munificence of His Godhead has imparted to us His own title. For kings among men have a royal style, which they keep to themselves; but Jesus Christ being the Son of God, has counted us worthy to (8.) be called "Christians." But some one will say, The name of "Christian" is new, and before this not in use; and new things are often objected to, on the score of novelty. The prophet has anticipated the objection, when he says, But
 Is. 65, them which serve Me, He shall call by a new name, which
 15. 16. shall be blessed upon the earth. Let us enquire of the Jews:
 Sept. Do ye serve the Lord, or no? Shew then your new name; for your name was "Jews" and "Israelites" in the time of Moses and the other prophets, and after the return from

Babylon, and up to the present time; where then is your new name? But we, since we serve the Lord, have, as might be expected, the new name; new indeed, but that new name which shall be blessed upon the earth. This name has got hold of the world; for Jews cover only a certain spot, but Christians reach the bounds of the world; for we preach the Name of the Only-begotten Son of God.

17. But perhaps thou wouldest know whether the Apostles received and proclaimed the Name of Christ, or rather had Christ in themselves? Paul says to his hearers, Seek ye a proof of Christ speaking in me? Paul preaches Christ, saying, For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake. Now who is this? It is the former persecutor. O mighty wonder! He who first persecuted, himself preaches Christ. But wherefore? was he bribed? There was no one to bribe him this way. Had he a sight of Him when on earth, and was awe-struck thereby? He had already been taken up into Heaven. He came out to persecute; and after three days the persecutor is a preacher in Damascus. By what power? Others call friends to be witnesses for friends; but the witness I present to thee is this former enemy; and waverest thou yet? The testimony of Peter and John, though weighty, was open to suspicion, because they were His friends; but when His former foe afterwards dies for Christ's sake, what room is there for doubting the truth?

18. Here I am led to express a suitable admiration of this appointment of the Holy Spirit; how He has confined the Epistles of the rest to a small number, but to Paul, the former persecutor, has granted fourteen. It was not because Peter or John were less than Paul, that He restrained the gift; (God forbid!) but in order that His doctrine might be beyond question, He granted to the former persecutor and enemy to write more, that thus we might all be made believers. But all were amazed about Paul, and said, Is not this he who used to persecute? Did he not come hither to lead us bound unto Jerusalem? Wonder not, says Paul, I know that it is hard for me to kick against the pricks; I know that I am not meet to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God; but I did it ignorantly; for

(9.) 19. Many, my beloved, are the true testimonies concerning Christ. The Father from Heaven is Witness of the Son; the Holy Ghost is Witness, descending bodily in the shape of a dove; the Archangel Gabriel is His witness, bringing good tidings to many; the Virgin Mother of God is His witness;
 ἡ θεοτόκος. the blessed manger is His witness. Egypt is His witness, who received her Lord while yet young in the flesh. Symeon Luke 2, is His witness, who received Him in his arms, and said, Lord, 29, 30. now lettest Thou Thy servant depart in peace, according to Thy word, for mine eyes have seen Thy salvation, which Thou hast prepared before the face of all people. And Anna the prophetess is His witness, that widow of most devout and ἀγνῶστας. austere life. His witness is John the Baptist, the greatest among the prophets, the introducer of the new covenant, who in a manner joined in himself the two Covenants, the Old and the New. Jordan is His witness among rivers: the sea of Tiberias is His witness among seas. The blind, the maim, the dead raised to life, are His witnesses. The devils are His Mark 1, witnesses, saying, What have we to do with Thee, Jesus; we
 24. know Thee who Thou art, the Holy One of God. The winds are His witnesses, bidden and bridled by Him: the five loaves are His witnesses, multiplied to five thousand. The Vid. sup. iv. 10. holy wood of the cross is His witness, which is seen among us to this day, and, by means of those who have in faith taken thereof, has from this place now almost filled the whole world. The palm-tree in the valley is His witness, which supplied branches to the children who then hailed Him.
 Gethsemane is His witness, which to our imaginations almost shews Judas still. Golgotha, this holy place which is raised above all others, is His witness in the sight of all. The holy Sepulchre is His witness, and the stone which lies there to this day. The sun now shining is His witness, which then at the season of His salutary Passion suffered eclipse. The darkness is His witness, which was then from the sixth to the ninth hour; the light is His witness, which shone out from the ninth hour till evening. The Mount of Olives is

His witness, whence He ascended to the Father ; the clouds, laden with showers, are His witnesses, which received their Lord. The Heavenly gates which received their Lord are His witnesses ; concerning which the Psalmist said, Lift up your heads, O ye gates, and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors ; and the King of glory shall come in. His former foes bear witness to Him, of whom the blessed Paul is one, for a little while hating Him, for a long while serving Him. The Twelve Apostles witness of Him ; not in words only, but by their own tortures and deaths, heralding the truth. The shadow of Peter is His witness, which in the Name of Christ healed the sick. The handkerchiefs and aprons are His witnesses, which once by Christ's power wrought like cures by means of Paul. Persians and Goths, and all they of the Gentiles, are His witnesses, dying for His sake, whom with the eyes of their flesh they never beheld. The devils, whom believers to this day drive away, bear witness to Him.

20. So many and diverse, yea and more than these, are the witnesses of Christ : will any one then, henceforth, disbelieve in Him, thus witnessed ? If, therefore, there be any who before believed not, let him believe now ; if any was before a believer, let him take to him a greater increase of faith, believing on our Lord Jesus Christ, and understanding whose name he bears. Thou art called Christian ; be tender of that Name ; let not our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, be blasphemed through thee, but rather let thy fair deeds shine before men ; that they who see them may, in our Lord Jesus Christ, glorify the Father who is in heaven :—To whom be glory, both now, and for ever and ever. Amen.

ON THE SON OF GOD, AS ONLY-BEGOTTEN, BEFORE ALL AGES, AND THE CREATOR OF ALL THINGS.

HEBREWS i. 1, 2.

1. THAT we hope in Jesus Christ, we have shewn sufficiently, according to our ability, in what we delivered to you yesterday. But we must not simply believe in Jesus Christ, nor receive Him, as if one of the many, improperly called Christs. For they were figurative Christs, but He is the true Christ, not raised by advancement from among men to the Priesthood, but having this dignity eternally from the Father. And for this cause the Faith guarding us beforehand, lest we should suppose Him to be one of the ordinary Christs, adds to the profession of the Faith, that we believe “in One Lord Jesus Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God.”

2. And again, when thou hearest of the Son, think Him not an adopted Son, but a Son naturally, a Son Only-begotten, having no other for His brother; for therefore is He called Only-begotten, because in the dignity of the Godhead, and in His generation of the Father, He has no brother. But we call Him the Son of God, not of ourselves, but because the Father Himself named Christ His Son; and that name is true which is given to children by their fathers.

3. Our Lord Jesus Christ then became man; but by the many He was not known. Wishing, therefore, to teach that which was not known, He assembled His disciples, and asked them, Whom say men, that I, the Son of Man, am? Not from vain-glory, but wishing to shew them the truth, lest dwelling with God, the Only-begotten of God, they should think lightly of Him as if He were a mere man. And when they answered, that some said He was Elias, and some Jeremias, He said to them, "They who know not are excusable, but ye, the Apostles, who have in My name cleansed lepers, and cast out devils, and raised the dead, ought not to be ignorant of Him, for whom ye do these wondrous works." And when all were silent, (for it was beyond man's reach to learn,) Peter, the leader of the Apostles, and chief herald of the Church, uttering no refinement of his own, nor persuaded by man's reasoning, but having his mind enlightened from the Father, says to Him; Thou art the Christ; nor only so, but the Son of the living God. And a blessing follows the speech, (for in truth it was above man,) and what he had said received this seal, that the Father had revealed it to him. For the Saviour says, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father which is in heaven. He therefore who acknowledges our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, partakes of this blessedness; but he who denies the Son of God, is a poor miserable man.

4. Again, I say, when thou hearest of the Son, hear of Him as a Son, not merely in an improper sense, but in a true sense, as a Son by nature, unoriginate^a; not as having come from bondage into the higher state of adoption, but as a Son eternally begotten, by an inscrutable and incomprehensible generation. And in like manner, when thou hearest of the First-born, think not that this is according to men; for the first-born among men have other brothers also. And it is somewhere written, Israel is My Son, even My first-born; but Israel is, as Reuben was, the rejected first-born; for Reuben

^a On the application of the word ἀναρχος, unoriginate, to the Son and Spirit there was great variety of opinion in the primitive Church. Clement. Alex. calls our Lord ἀρχὴν ἀναρχον the unoriginate origin; but, whereas the Marcionites and Manichees expressed their tritheism under the word, and the Sabellians imputed that doctrine to the Church, the Apostolic Canons condemn those who baptize "in the name of the Three unoriginate." Athanasius also denies the Three unoriginate. Alexander of Alexandria taking a middle course ascribes to Christ an unoriginate generation. The two Gregories explain that the difference of usage among Catholics arose only from the difference of opinion how best to avoid seeming in words to countenance heresies which they one and all abhorred. vid. Exod. 4,

I. ECT. XI. went up to his father's couch, and Israel cast the Son of his Father out of the vineyard, and crucified Him. To others also the Scripture says, Ye are the children of the Lord your God; and elsewhere, I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the Most High. I have said, not, "I have begotten." They, in that God said, received the sonship, which they had not; He was not begotten to be other than He was before, but was begotten from the beginning, the Son of the Father, being above all beginning and all ages; the Son of the Father, in all things like to Him who begat Him, eternal of an eternal Father, Life of Life begotten, and Light of Light, and Truth of Truth, and Wisdom of Wisdom, and a King of a King, and God of God, and Power of Power.

5. If then thou hear the Gospel saying, The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the Son of David, the Son of Abraham, understand it to mean "according to the flesh;" for He is the Son of David in the end of the world, but the Son of God before all worlds unoriginate. The one He received, not having it before; the other, which He hath, He hath eternally, in that He is begotten of the Father. He has two fathers: one, David, according to the flesh; one, God the Father, after a divine manner according to His Godhead. As the Son of David, He is both subject to time, and is handled, and His descent is traced; but according to His Godhead, He is subject neither to time nor place, nor has He descent; for who shall declare His generation? God is a Spirit; He who is Spirit hath spiritually begotten, as being immaterial, an inscrutable and incomprehensible generation. The Son Himself says of the Father, The Lord said unto Me, Thou art My Son, to-day have I begotten Thee. This to-day is not recent, but eternal; a to-day without time, before all ages. From the womb, before the morning star, I begat Thee.

6. Believe then on Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God; and that Son, Only-begotten; according to the Gospel, which says, For God so loved the world, that He gave His Only-begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. And again, He that believeth on Him is not condemned, but is passed from death unto life. But he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him; because he hath not believed on the Son from the Father. And in the one case what is begotten, perfect; for what He is now, that is He from the beginning, supra, being begotten without beginning. And we are begotten, so a. 4. note power to Him who begat: for if that which He begat was imperfect, and in time received perfection, thou imputest defect in power to Him who begat; since that which time afterwards bestowed, this, according to thee, the Father from the beginning did not bestow.

8. Think not, therefore, that this generation is human, as Abraham begat Isaac. For when Abraham begat Isaac, he begat, not whom he would, but whom another bestowed on him. But in God the Father's begetting, there is no ignorance nor intermediate deliberation. For to say that He knew not what was begotten is the greatest impiety: and it is as great to say that after deliberation held in time, He afterwards became a Father. For God was not before without a Son, and afterwards in time became a Father; but He hath the Son eternally, having begotten Him, not as men beget men, but as Himself only knoweth, who begat Him before all ages, Very God.

9. For the Father being Very God, begat the Son like to

LECT. Himself, Very God. Not as teachers beget disciples, as XI. Paul says to some, In Christ Jesus I have begotten you ὁμοιον through the Gospel. For in this case he who was not a son ἱερατῶ. 1 Cor. 4, by nature, became a son by discipleship; but in the case 15. before us, He is a son naturally, a son truly. Not as you, the illuminated, now become the sons of God; for ye also become John 1, sons, but it is by adoption of grace, as it is written, But as 12. 13. many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God, even to such as believe on His name: which were begotten, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And we indeed are begotten of water and of the Spirit; but Christ was not thus begotten of the Father; for at the time of His baptism addressing Him with the words, "This is My Son," He said not, "This is Mat. 3, now become My Son," but, "This is My Son:" that He
 17. might make manifest, that even before the operation of baptism, He was a Son.

10. The Father begat the Son, not as among men mind γιννῶ begets thought. For the mind in us is something subsisting; νοῦς λό- but our thought, when uttered, is scattered abroad in the air γων, i. e. thought, and comes to an end^b. But we know Christ to be begotten, or word. ἰνυπό- not as a word sent forth, but a Word subsisting and living;
 σπαρατον' not spoken by the lips, and dispersed, but eternally and προφορι- ineffably begotten of the Father and in a Person. For in the κόν. beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and ἰν ὑπο- the Word was God, sitting at God's right-hand;—the Word, John 1, understanding the Father's will, and creating all things at His
 1. will; the Word, which came down and went up; (for a word προφορι- the Word speaking and saying, "I speak that which I have

 κός. seen with My Father;" the Word, possessed of power, and reigning over all things; for the Father hath committed all things unto the Son.

(1.) 11. The Father then begat Him, not as any of men can understand, but as Himself only knoweth. For how He begat Him, we profess not to tell; only we insist upon its not being in this manner or that. Nor are we only ignorant of the generation of the Son from the Father, but so is every created nature. Speak to the earth, if it can tell thee; and though ^{Job 12,} thou inquire of all things that are upon the earth, they shall ^{8. Sept.} not be able to tell thee: for the earth cannot speak of the substance of Him who is its potter and fashioner. Nor is the ^{Is. 64, 8.} earth only ignorant, but the sun also; for the sun was created on the fourth day, not knowing what had been in the three former days; but he, since he knows not any thing of the three days which were before him, cannot tell forth the Creator Himself. The heaven shall not declare this; for at the will ^{νύμματα.} of the Father was the heaven like smoke established, by Christ. ^{Is. 51, 6.} Nor shall the heaven of heavens declare it, nor the waters that ^{Sept.} are above the heavens. Why then art thou cast down, O man, because ignorant of what not even the heavens know? Nor are the heavens only ignorant of this generation, but also every angelic nature. For should a man ascend (were it possible) to the first heaven, and perceiving the ranks of Angels there, approach them and ask, how God begat His own Son; they would perhaps say, "We have others beyond us, greater and higher than we; ask them." Ascend to the second heaven and the third; attain, if thou canst, to Thrones, and Dominions, and Principalities, and Powers; and even though one should attain unto them, which is impossible, yet would they also decline to answer; for neither do they know it.

12. For me, I have ever wondered at the curiosity of bold men, who through their seeming reverence fall into impiety. For knowing nothing of Thrones, and Dominions, and Principalities, and Powers, the workmanship of Christ, they attempt to be inquisitive about the Creator Himself. Tell me first, O most daring man, how a Throne differs from a Dominion, and then busily inquire into the things of Christ. Tell me, what is a Principality and what a Power, and what a Virtue, and what an Angel; and then inquire concerning their Maker; for all things were made by Him. But thou wouldest not ask Thrones or Dominions, or rather thou canst not; what other is there that knoweth the deep things of God, ^{1 Cor. 2,} save only the Holy Ghost, who spake the Divine Scriptures? ^{10.} But not even the Holy Ghost Himself has spoken in the Scriptures concerning the generation of the Son from the Father; why then art thou curious about things which not

LECT. even the Holy Ghost has written in the Scriptures? Thou, XI. who knowest not what is written, why art thou inquisitive about what is not written? There are many subjects of inquiry in the Divine Scriptures; we comprehend not what is written; why do we busy ourselves about what is not written? Enough is it for us to know, that God hath begotten One Only Son.

13. Be not ashamed to confess thine ignorance, seeing that thou art ignorant with Angels. He who begat alone knows Him who was begotten; and He who was begotten of Him, knows Him who begat. He who begat knows what He begat; and the Holy Spirit of God testifies in the Scriptures, 1 Cor. 2, that He who was begotten without beginning, is God. For 11. what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man, which is in him? even so, the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. For as the Father hath life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have life in Himself; John 5, and that all men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father; and as the Father quickeneth whom He will, 1b. 5, 23. even so the Son quickeneth whom He will. Neither He who begat suffered any loss, nor lacks there any thing to Him who was begotten^c. (I know that I have said these things many times, but they are said so often for your safety.) Neither has He who begat, a father, nor He who is begotten, a brother; neither was He who begat changed into the Son, nor did He who was begotten become the Father^d. Of One Only Father, is One Only-begotten Son; neither two Unbegotten, nor two Only-begotten; but there is One Father, Unbegotten; (for He is unbegotten who has no father;) and One Son, eternally begotten of the Father; begotten not in time, but before the worlds; not increased by advancement, but having been begotten that which He is now.

(5.)

14. We believe then in the Only-begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father, Very God. For the True God, begets not a false God, as has been already said. Nor did He first resolve, and afterwards beget Him; but He begat Him eternally, and far more quickly than our words or thoughts; for we speaking in time, take up time; but in the case of the Divine Power, the generation is apart from time. And, as I ^{ἀρχομαι} have said many times, He did not bring the Son from nothing into being, nor take him who was not into sonship; but the Father, being Eternal, eternally and ineffably begat One Only ^{ἀρχή, beginning} Son, who has no brother. Nor are there two first principles; ^{or principle.} but the Father is the head of the Son; One is the beginning. ^{1 Cor. 11, 3.} For the Father begat His Son, Very God, called Emmanuel; ^{Mat. 1, 23.} and Emmanuel, being interpreted is, God with us.

^c The Arians charged this upon the Catholics as legitimately following from their doctrine.

^d This tenet was one of the forms of Sabellianism; vid. Basil. Ep. 129. 1. Athan. Orat. iv. 9. Apost. Can. xli.

15. And wouldest thou know that He who was begotten of the Father, and afterwards made man, is God? listen to the Prophet's words, This is our God, and there shall none other be accounted of in comparison of Him. He hath found out all the way of knowledge, and hath given it unto Jacob His servant, and to Israel His beloved. Afterwards He did shew Himself upon earth, and conversed with men. Seest thou God taking man's nature after the giving of Moses' law? Hear too a second testimony to Christ's Godhead, that which was just now read, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever: ^{Heb. 1, 8.} for lest, from His presence here in the flesh, He should be thought to have been advanced after this to the Godhead, the ^{ἐν πρῶτῳ} Scripture says plainly, Therefore God, even Thy God, hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above Thy fellows. ^{Heb. 1, 9.} Seest thou Christ, as God, anointed by God the Father?

16. Wouldest thou receive yet a third testimony to Christ's Godhead? Listen to Esaias, saying, Egypt hath laboured, and the havens of Ethiopia; and after a little, and in Thee shall they make their prayer, because God is in Thee, and there is no God save Thee; Thou art God, and we knew it not, God of Israel the Saviour; almost saying the very same thing which He said in the Gospel, The Father is in Me, and I am in the Father. ^{John 14, 11.} He said not, I am the Father, but, the Father is in Me, and I am in the Father. And again, He said not, I and the Father am one, but, I and the Father are one; that we should neither separate them, nor so con- ^{ὁμοπατο-} found them, as to make the Son the Father. One they are, ^{ἐίς.} in respect of the attributes which belong to Godhead, since ^{vid. above, Cat. iv, 8.}

God hath begotten God. One, from consideration of their kingdom; for the Father reigns not over these, and the Son over those, (like Absalom, lifting himself up against his father;) but that kingdom which the Father has, the same has the Son likewise. One they are, because there is no disagreement or division between them; for the will of the Father is not one, and that of the Son another. One, because the works of Christ are not one, and the Father's other; for the creation of all things is one, the Father having created them through the Son: He spake, and they were made; He commanded, and they were created, saith the Psalmist; for He who speaks, speaks to One who hears; and he who bids, bids as One who is present with Him.

17. The Son then is Very God, having the Father in Himself, not changed into the Father; for the Father was not made man, but the Son. For let the truth be freely spoken^s. The Father suffered not for us; but the Father sent Him who should suffer for us. Neither let us ever say, There was a time, when the Son was not^h; nor let us admit that the Son is the Father. But let us walk in the king's highway; let us turn aside neither to the right-hand nor to the left. Neither let us, thinking to honour the Son, call Him the Father; nor, supposing to honour the Father, imagine the Son to be some one of the creatures. But let the One Father through the One Son be worshipped, and let not their worship be separated; let the One Son be proclaimed, who before the ages sitteth at the right hand of the Father; partaking in His throne eternally, not by advancement in time, after His passion.

with you, and hast thou not known Me, Philip? He that hath seen Me, hath seen the Father. And to be brief, let us neither make a separation nor confusion between the Father and the Son; and neither say thou ever, that the Son is foreign to the Father, nor give way to them who say, that the Father is at one time the Father, at another, the Son; for these things are strange and impious, and not the doctrines of the Church. But the Father, having begotten the Son, remains the Father, and is not changed. He begat Wisdom, yet retained Wisdom Himself; and begat Power, yet became not weak; He begat God, He lost not His Godhead; and neither has He Himself lost aught, by diminution or change, nor has He who was begotten any thing wanting. Perfect is He who begat, perfect is That which was begotten; He who begat, is God, He who was begotten, is God,—Himself God of all things, yet styling the Father, His own God¹; for He is not ashamed to say, I ascend unto My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God. John 20,

19. But lest thou shouldest think that He is the Father of the Son and of the creatures in a like sense, He has in what follows signified a difference. For He said not, “I ascend to our Father,” lest the creatures should be made fellows of the Only-begotten: but He said, “My Father, and your Father;” in one way Mine, by nature,—in another yours, by adoption. And again, “to My God, and your God;” in one way Mine, as His True and Only-begotten Son; in another yours, as being His workmanship. The Son of God then is Very God, ineffably begotten before all ages; (for I say the same thing often to you, that it may be graved upon your mind.) Believe (7.) also that God has a Son; but how He has, inquire not; for though thou seek, thou shalt not find. Exalt not thyself, lest thou fall; think only upon those things which have been commanded thee. Tell me first who He is who begat, and then learn what He begat; but if thou canst not understand His nature who begat, search not into the manner of That which was begotten. LECT. XI. said, that God hath One Only Son, One, naturally begotten ; who began not to be when He was born in Bethlehem, but is before all worlds. For listen to Micah the prophet, saying, And thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto Me, that is to be Ruler in Israel ; whose goings forth have been of old, from everlasting. Think not then of Him who is now come out of Bethlehem ; but worship Him who is eternally begotten of the Father. Allow not any who say, that the beginning of the Son is in time ; but acknowledge the Father, as that Beginning apart from time ; for the Father is the Beginning of the Son, timeless, incomprehensible, without beginning ; the Father is the fountain of the river of righteousness, even of the Only-begotten ; who begat Him as Himself only knoweth. And wouldest thou know, that our Lord Jesus Christ is likewise King Eternal ? listen again to Him, when he says, Your father Abraham rejoiced to see My day, and he saw it, and was glad. Then, when the Jews received this hardly, He says again to them something yet harder ; before Abraham was, I am. And again, He says to the Father, And now, O Father, glorify Thou Me with Thine own self, with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was ; for He has plainly said, “ before the world was, I had glory with Thee.” And again, when He says, for Thou lovedst Me before the foundation of the world, He evidently declares, “ I have eternal glory with Thee.”

(8.) 21. We believe then in One Lord Jesus Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God ; begotten of His Father, Very God before all worlds ; by whom all things were made. Whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers, all things were made by Him, and there is none of things created, which is exempted from His authority. Be every heresy silent, which brings in different creators and framers of the world ; be silent the tongue which blasphemes Christ the Son of God ; let them be silent, who say that the Sun is Christ, for He is the sun’s Creator, not the sun which we see. Let them be silent, who say that the world is the workmanship of Angels^k, who wish to wrest His dignity from the Only-begotten ;

^k The Manichees said that the Sun the world was created by Angels. was Christ, and the Gnostics held that for whether they be things visible, or invisible, whether thrones or dominions, or any thing that is named, all things were made by Christ. He reigns over the things which have been created by Himself, not having captured as His prey what belongs to another, but ruling over His own workmanship; as the Evangelist John has said, All things were made by Him, and without Him was not any thing made;^{John 1, 3.} all things were made by Him, the Father working by the Son.

22. Now I wish to give an illustration of what I have been saying. I know that it is but feeble; for what of things visible, can be an exact emblem of Divine and Invisible Power? yet, feeble as it is, be it spoken by the feeble to the feeble. For suppose a certain king, whose son was a king, wishing to form a city, should impart to his son, his partner in the kingdom, the form of the city; and he receiving the pattern, should bring his design to an accomplishment: in like manner when the Father proposed to form all things, the Son at the will of the Father, created all things, that the act νύμασι. of willing¹ might secure origination to the Father, and the Son in turn might be sovereign over His own workmanship,—the Father not separated from lordship over His own works, and the Son reigning over things created not by others, but by Himself. For, as I have said, neither did Angels create the world, but the Only-begotten Son, who was begotten, as I have said, before all ages; by whom all things were made, nothing being excepted from His creation. And now I finished what I had to say thus far, by the grace of Christ.

23. Let us now go back to our profession of the faith, and (9.) so finish for the present. Christ made all things, whether thou speak of Angels or Archangels, Dominions or Thrones. Not that the Father availed not to create the works Himself; but He willed the Son to reign over His own workmanship, Himself giving to Him the design of the things to be made: for the Only-begotten honouring His own Father, says, The Son can do nothing of Himself, but what He seeth the Father do;^{John 5, 19.} for what things soever He doeth, these also doeth the Son

LECTURE XII.

ON THE INCARNATION OF THE SON OF GOD.

ISAI. vii. 10—14.

Moreover the Lord spake again unto Ahaz, saying, Ask thee a sign of the Lord thy God; ask it either in the depth, or in the height above. And Ahaz said, I will not ask, neither will I tempt the Lord. And he said, Hear ye now, O House of David; is it a small thing for you to weary men, but will ye weary my God also? Therefore the Lord Himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a Son, and shall call His Name Immanuel.

1. NURSLINGS of purity, and disciples of soberness, let us with lips full of purity hymn the praises of God, born of a Virgin. Let us, who are accounted worthy to partake of the flesh of the Spiritual Lamb, partake of the head with the feet;—^{vid.} of the head, which means His Godhead; of the feet, that is, ^{Exod.} 12, 9. His manhood. We, who are hearers of the Holy Gospels, let us attend to John the Divine; for he who has said, In ^{John 1,} the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, ^{1.} and the Word was God, has added, And the Word became ^{ver. 14.} flesh. For neither is it religious to worship the mere man, ^{τὸν ψιλὸν ἀνθρώπου.} nor is it pious to speak of Him as God only, separate from His manhood. For if Christ, as He truly is, be God, but took not manhood, we are aliens from salvation. Be He then adored as God, but let it be believed that He became man; for it boots not to call Him man, without His Godhead, nor is it salutary, if we confess not His manhood together with His Godhead. Let us confess the presence of the King, and the Physician. For the King Jesus, when ^{vid.} about to be our Physician, having girded Himself with the ^{John 13,} ^{4.}

2. But the Jewish race, who have set at nought Him who has come, and expect him who is to come wickedly^a, have refused the True Christ, and the deceived wait for the deceiver. And even in this is the Saviour found to be true, Who said, I am come in My Father's name, and ye receive Me not; if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive. It is well also to ask the Jews a question. Is Esaias the Prophet, who says, that Emmanuel shall be born of a Virgin, true or false? If they accuse him as false, it is nothing wonderful; for it is their way not only to accuse the prophets as liars, but also to stone them. But if the Prophet is true, point out Emmanuel. Further, shall he, who is to come, who is looked for by you, be born of a virgin, or no? For if he is not to be born of a virgin, ye charge falsehood on the Prophet; but if ye expect this in the case of him who is to come, why do ye refuse Him who is come already?

(2.) 3. Let the Jews then, since they so will, go astray; but let the Church of God be glorified. For we receive God the Word, who was truly made man, not of the will of man and woman, as the heretics say^b, but made man of the Virgin and the Holy Ghost according to the Gospel, not in appearance^c, but in reality. And that He was really made man of the Virgin, now attend the time for teaching it, and thou shalt receive the proof; for heretics go wrong in many ways. Some of them altogether deny that He was born of the Virgin^d; others say that He was born, yet not of a virgin, but of a woman married to a husband. And others say that Christ was not God made man, but that a man was made God^e; for they have dared to say that it was not the pre-existing Word who became man, but that a certain man by advancement was crowned.

4. But remember thou the things spoken yesterday concerning His Godhead; believe that that very same Only-begotten Son of God, was again born of the Virgin. Listen to John the Evangelist, who says, And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us. For the Word was eternal, begotten before all ages of the Father; but the flesh He took lately, for our sakes. But many object, and say, "What reason was there so great, that God should descend to manhood? and, Can the nature of God have converse with men at all? and, Is it possible for a virgin to bear?" Since then there is much controversy, and the strife is various in its forms, come, let us, by Christ's grace, and the prayers of those present, explain each difficulty.

5. And first we have to inquire, wherefore Jesus came (3.) down? Now heed not any ingenious views of mine; else thou mayest be misled; but unless thou receive the witness of the prophets concerning each matter, believe not what is spoken; unless thou learn from Holy Scripture concerning the Virgin, and the place, and the time, and the manner, receive not witness from man. Any one at this time who teaches it, may possibly be suspected; but who of any sense, will suspect him who prophesied a thousand years and more ago? If then thou inquire the reason of Christ's coming, go back to the first book of the Scriptures. In six days God made the world; but the world was for man. The sun, however resplendent with bright beams, was made to give light to man. And all the living creatures were made to serve us. Herbs and trees were created for our enjoyment. All the works were good, but of these none was an image of God, save only man. The sun was fashioned at His mere command; man by God's hands. Let Us make man in Our own image, after Our likeness. The wooden image of an earthly king is honoured; how much more, then, the rational image of God. Yet this, the greatest of God's creation, disporting himself in Paradise, was by the devil's envy cast out. The foe exulted over the fall of him whom he had envied; wouldest thou have had the foe continue to rejoice? He, not daring to accost the man because of his strength, accosted, as being weaker, the woman, yet a virgin; for after his expulsion from Paradise, then Adam knew Eve his wife. Gen. 1, 26. Gen. 4, 1.

6. Cain and Abel succeeded in the race of man; and Cain was the first murderer. Afterwards the deluge was poured abroad, because of the great wickedness of men. Fire came down from heaven on the people of Sodom, because of their transgression. After a time God chose Israel; but even he became froward, and the chosen race received a wound. For while Moses stood before God upon the mount, a calf was worshipped by the people instead of God. Under their Lawgiver Moses, who said, Thou shalt not commit adultery, a man entered a resort of sinners, and dared to be wanton. After Moses, the Prophets were sent to heal Israel; but, while they exercised that office, they bewailed themselves, as not getting the better of the evil; so that one of them says, alas, The good man is perished out of the earth, and there is none upright among men: and again, They are all gone out of the way; they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one. And again, Cursing, and stealing, and adultery, and killing, are poured out on the land. They sacrificed their sons and their daughters unto devils. They used auguries, and enchantments, and divinations; and again, They fastened their garments with cords, and made hangings near the altar^f.

(4.) 7. Very great was the wound of man's nature. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there was no soundness in it; there was no mollifying ointment, nor oil, nor bandages. Then the Prophets, bewailing themselves, and being in trouble, said, Who shall give salvation unto Israel out of Zion? and again, Let Thy hand be upon the man of Thy right hand, and upon the Son of man, whom Thou madest strong for Thyself; so will we not go back from Thee. And another of the Prophets cries out, Bow Thy heavens, O Lord, and come down; the wounds of man's nature pass our skill to heal; they have slain Thy Prophets, and digged down Thine altars; the evil is irretrievable by us; Thou must retrieve it.

(5.) 13. These things the Jews, though they read, hear not ; for they have stopped the ears of their heart, that they may not hear.

But let us believe in Jesus Christ, who came in the flesh, and was made man; for otherwise we had not received Him. For since we could not look on Him, or enjoy Him, as He is, He became what we are, that we might attain to the enjoyment of Him. For if we cannot look full on the sun, which was created on the fourth day, can we behold God, its Creator? The Lord came down in fire on Mount Sinai, and the people endured it not, but said to Moses, Speak thou with us, and we will hear; but let not God speak with us, lest we die; and again, For who is there of all flesh, that hath heard the voice of the Living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, and lived? If to hear the voice of God speaking would work death, how shall not the sight of God Himself, minister death? And why wonderest thou? Even Moses himself saith, I exceedingly fear, and quake.

Deut. 5, 26.

Heb. 12, 21.

14. What wouldest thou then? that He who came for our salvation, should become the minister of death, men not bearing Him? or that He should suit His grace to our level? Daniel endured not a vision of an Angel; and canst thou bear the sight of the Lord of Angels? Gabriel appeared, and Daniel fell down: of what sort was he who appeared, and what was his form? His face was as the appearance of lightning, not as the sun; and his eyes as lamps of fire, not as a furnace of fire; and the voice of his words was like the voice of a multitude, not as of twelve legions of angels: and yet the Prophet fell down. And the Angel came to him, saying, Fear not, Daniel; stand upright; be of good courage, thy words have been heard. And Daniel says, I arose trembling: yet even thus he answered not, until the likeness of a man's hand touched him. And when he who had appeared was changed into a vision of a man, then Daniel spake; and what says he? O my Lord, by the vision my sorrows are turned upon me; and there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me. If an Angel appearing took away the voice and strength of the Prophet, would the appearance of God have allowed him to breathe? And until there touched me one like the appearance of a man, says the Scripture, Daniel took not courage. Thus a proof having been shewn of our weakness, the Lord took on Him what man required. For since man sought to be addressed by one of like countenance, the Saviour took on Him

15. But receive another reason also. Christ came that He might be baptized, and that He might sanctify Baptism: He came that He might work wonders, walking upon the waters of the sea. Since then before His coming in the flesh, the sea saw Him and fled, and Jordan was driven back, the Lord took to Himself His body, that the sea might endure to behold Him, and that Jordan might without fear receive Him. This then is one reason: there is also a second. Since through Eve, a virgin, came death, it behoved that through a virgin, or rather from a virgin, should life appear; that as the serpent had deceived the one, so to the other Gabriel might bring good tidings. Men, having forsaken God, made images in the form of men; since then that which was in the form of man was untruly worshipped, God became truly man, that the untruth might be destroyed. The devil had used the flesh as an instrument against us; and this knowing, Paul

ROM. 7, saith, But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity, and the rest. By those very weapons then have we been saved, by which the devil was used to vanquish us. The Lord took of us a like nature with us, that He might save human nature. He took a like nature with us, that to that which lacked He might give the larger grace; that sinful humanity might be

ROM. 5, made partaker of God. For where sin abounded, grace did much more abound. It behoved the Lord to suffer on our behalf; but had the devil known Him, he had not dared to approach Him, for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory. His body then was made to bait death withal, to the end that the dragon hoping to devour Him, might cast forth those whom he had already devoured.

For Death waxing mighty devoured; and again, The Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces.

IS. 25, 8. 16. Was Christ made man for nought? are our doctrines mere inventions and human sophisms? are not Holy Scriptures our salvation? are not the predictions of the Prophets? Keep then, I pray, this deposit undisturbed, and let no one remove thee; believe that God was made man. That this was possible, has been proved; but if the Jews persist in τὴν κατασταθέν.

disbelieving, let us hold this forth to them. What strange thing do we preach, saying that God was made man, when yourselves say, that Abraham entertained the Lord? What strange thing do we preach, when Jacob says, I have seen Gen. 32, God face to face, and my life is preserved? The Lord who 30. ate with Abraham, has eaten with us also. What strange thing then do we preach? But we present moreover two witnesses, who were with the Lord in Mount Sinai;—Moses was in the clift of the rock; and Elias was once in the clift Exod. of the rock. These were present with Him in Mount Tabor 33, 22. when He was transfigured, and spake to His disciples of His Luke 9, decease, which He should accomplish at Jerusalem. It having 30, 31. then been proved possible, as I said before, for Him to be made man, the rest of the proofs may be left for the diligent to collect.

17. But I promised above to find the time also of the (7.) advent of the Saviour, and the place: and I must not go away convicted of falsehood, but rather send away the Church's novices well guarded. Let us then inquire the time when the Lord came; since His advent is recent, and therefore excepted against; and Christ Jesus is the same yesterday, to-day, and Heb. 13, for ever. Moses the Prophet says then, A Prophet shall the 8. Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto Deut. 18, 15. me. (Let the words, like unto me, be reserved awhile, and quoted Acts 7, we will examine them in their proper place^g.) But when 37. comes this expected Prophet? Go back, he says, to my writings; search into the prophecy of Jacob spoken to Judah. Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise, and so Gen. 49, forth, not to repeat the whole; and then, A Ruler shall not 8. fail out of Judah, nor a Chieftain from his loins, till He ver. 10. come for whom it is reserved; and He is the expectation Sept. (not of the Jews, but) of the Gentiles. Thus he hath given as a sign of the coming of Christ, the ceasing of the Jewish rule. If they are not now under the Romans, Christ is not yet come; if they have a Ruler of the race of Judah and David, the expected one is not yet come. For I am ashamed to speak of their recent measures relative to their Patriarchs^h, as they now

^g This intention is not fulfilled in West, as they were called, or Heads of the sequel of these Lectures. the Captivity in Judæa, vid. Basnage,

^h Concerning the Patriarchs of the History of the Jews, lib. iii. They

LECT. XII. call them, and what is the race of these men, and who is their mother: but I leave it to those who know. But He who is to come, the Expectation of the Gentiles, what further sign hath He? he says afterwards, binding His foal unto the vine; Gen. 49, 11. thou seest that foal clearly spoken of by Zecharias.

18. But thou seekest again another testimony also respecting the time. The Lord said unto Me, Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten Thee: and after a little, Thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron. I have already said that the kingdom of the Romans is plainly called a rod of iron; Daniel however will supply for us what is wanting on this point. For when he relates and explains to Nebuchadnezzar the emblem of the statue, he tells him all he saw as regards it; moreover that a Stone cut out of a mountain without hands, set up not by man's contrivance, should overpower the whole world. And Dan. 2, he speaks most openly, thus, And in the days of those kingdoms shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom thereof shall not be left to other people. 44. Sept.

(8.) 19. But we seek yet more evidently the proof of the times of His coming; for man, being hard of belief, unless he can clearly calculate the very years, gives no credence to what is spoken. What was the season then, and what manner of time was it? when, the kings sprung from Judah failing, a stranger, Herod, succeeds to the kingdom. Therefore the Angel talking with Daniel says, (and mark now, I pray, the words;) Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks. Now threescore and nine weeks of years make four hundred and eighty-three years. He said then, that after the building of Jerusalem four hundred and eighty-three years having elapsed, and the princes having failed, then there comes a certain stranger king, in whose time Messiah is born. Now Darius the Mede built the city in the sixth year of his kingdom, and in the first year of the sixty-sixth Dan. 9, 25.

were of the tribe of Levi, and consisted of a succession of chief governors by lineal descent, from the time of Hadrian to the early part of the fifth century.

Their residence was at Tiberias. They were called Governors of the West in contrast to the Princes of the Captivity at Babylon.

Olympiad, of the Greeksⁱ. (The Greeks call an Olympiad, the games which are celebrated every four years, on account of the day which in the course of four years of the sun's motion, is made up of the three hours over in each year.) And Herod reigns in the hundred and eighty-sixth Olympiad, in the fourth year thereof. Now from the sixty-sixth to the hundred and eighty-sixth, the intervening Olympiads are an hundred and twenty, and a little more. Now the hundred and twenty Olympiads make four hundred and eighty years. For the remaining three years are accounted for by the interval between the first year and the fourth year. Thus hast thou the proof according to the Scripture, which says, From the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks. Of the times then thou hast for the present this proof, though there are other different interpretations of the aforesaid weeks of years spoken of in Daniel.

20. But now attend to the place of the promise. Micah says, And thou, Bethlehem house of Ephratah, art not little among the thousands of Judah; for out of thee shall He come forth unto me, that is to be Ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting. Moreover, concerning the place, thou, being an inhabitant of Jerusalem, knowest beforehand what is written in the hundred and thirty-second Psalm, Lo, we heard of it at Ephratah, and found it in the fields of the wood. For a few years ago the place was woody^k. Again, thou hast heard Habakkuk saying to the Lord, When the years draw nigh, Thou shalt be known; when the time comes, Thou shalt be shewn. And what is the sign, O Prophet, of the coming of the Lord? He says presently, In the midst of two lives shalt Thou be known; saying this plainly to the Lord, "When Thou shalt come in the flesh, Thou shalt live and die, and having risen from the Various dates are given for the commencement of the period; e. g. the second of Cyrus when the rebuilding of the Temple commenced, or the seventh of Artaxerxes, the date of Ezra's mission, or the twentieth of the same king when he commissioned Nehemiah.

And he answers most plainly, and says, God shall come from Teman, (now Teman means south,) and the Holy One from Mount Paran, shady, woody. With which the Psalmist agreeing says, We found it in the plains of the wood.

21. Further, we seek, of whom, and how He comes. This Is. 7, 14. Esaias tells us, Behold, a Virgin shall conceive, and bear a Son, and shall call His name Immanuel. Now the Jews contradict this doctrine; for it is their way of old to be wretched assailants of the truth: and they say that it is not written, "virgin," but "damsel." But even granting this, still I find the same truth here. For they must be asked, when does one who is assaulted cry out, and call for aid,—after the outrage, or before it? If now the Scripture says elsewhere, The damsel cried, and there was none to help her, speaks it not of a virgin? A further proof that a virgin may be meant in Holy Scripture by "damsel," is found in the book of Kings, saying of Abishag the 1 Kings Shunammite, And the damsel was very fair; for that she had 1, 4. been chosen and brought to David a virgin, is confessed.

(10.) 22. But the Jews say again, This was said to Ahaz concern- Is. 7, 11. ing Hezekiah. Read we then the Scripture, Ask thee a Sign of the Lord thy God; ask it either in the depth, or in the height above. Now first of all, the Sign ought to be something extraordinary: for that was a sign, when the water came from the rock; and when the sea was divided; and when the sun was turned backward, and the like. But next I observe, what is a still plainer confutation of the Jews. (I am aware that I am going into details, and that the hearers are wearied; yet suffer the multitudes of words, since it is for Christ's sake that these things are discussed, and they are not about common matters.) Now since Esaias spake this in the reign of Ahaz, and Ahaz reigned only sixteen years, and the prophecy was spoken to him within these years, it confutes the objection of the Jews that the next king Hezekiah, the son of Ahaz, was five and twenty years old when he began to reign; and the prophecy being confined within sixteen years, he must have been begotten by Ahaz full nine years before the prophecy. Now what need was there to speak the prophecy concerning one already born, even before the reign of his father Ahaz? For he said not, a virgin hath conceived, but, shall conceive, speaking as with foreknowledge.

23. That the Lord was born of a Virgin we know for certain; now we must shew, of what race the Virgin was. The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David; He will not turn from it; Of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne. ^{Ps. 132, 11.} And again, His seed also will I make to endure for ever, and his throne as the days of heaven. ^{Ps. 89, 29.} And afterwards, Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David; his seed shall endure for ever, and his throne as the sun before Me, and shall be established for ever as the moon. ^{ver. 35, 36, 37.} Thou seest that it is Christ, and not Solomon, who is spoken of; for Solomon's throne endured not as the sun. But if any one make it an objection that Christ sate not on the wooden throne itself of David, we may refer to the expression, The Scribes and Pharisees sit on Moses' seat; ^{Mat. 23, 2.} for this refers not to his wooden seat, but to the authority of his teaching. Thus inquire then for the throne of David, not for his wooden throne, but for his kingdom itself. And receive as witnesses of this the children crying out, Hosanna to the Son of David, blessed is the King of Israel. ^{Mat. 21, 9.} And the blind men also say, Thou Son of David, have mercy upon us. ^{John 12, 13.} And Gabriel testifies plainly, saying to Mary, And the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David. ^{Mat. 20, 30.} And Paul says, Remember that Jesus Christ, of the seed of David, was raised from the dead according to my Gospel. ^{Luke 1, 32.} And in the beginning of his Epistle to the Romans, he says, Which was made of the seed of David, according to the flesh. ^{Rom. 1, 3.} Receive thou therefore Him who is born of David, obeying the prophecy which says, And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse; and He that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles, in Him shall the Gentiles trust. ^{Is. 11, 10. Sept. quoted Rom. 15, 12.}

24. All this sorely troubles the Jews. This Esaias also (11.) foreknew, saying, And they shall be willing, if they were scorched with fire; for unto us a Child hath been born, (not to them,) even a Son, and hath been given unto us. ^{Is. 9, 5.} But mark, that He was first the Son of God, then He was given unto us. And after a little, he says, And of His peace there shall be no bound;—the Romans have their bounds, but of the ^{ver. 7. Sept.}

LECT. kingdom of the Son of God is there no bound; the Persians
 XII. and Medes have their bounds, but the Son has none;—he proceeds, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it. The Holy Virgin therefore was sprung from David.

25. For it behoved the Purest, and the teacher of Purity, to come forth from a pure bride-chamber; for if he who fulfils well the office of Jesus' priest refrains himself from women, how should Jesus Himself to be born of man and woman? Because Thou art He, says the Psalmist, that drew Me out of the womb. Mark carefully the word, drew Me out of the womb, which means that He was born without man, being drawn from the womb and flesh of the Virgin; for it is different in the case of them who are born of the marriage law.

26. He is not ashamed to take flesh of such members, being the framer of these very members. And who tells us this? The Lord says to Jeremiah, Before I formed thee in the belly, I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb, I sanctified thee. He, then, who in framing men, touches them and is not ashamed, should He be ashamed, in fashioning for Himself His holy flesh, that veil of His God-head? It is God who even now forms babes in the womb, as it is written in Job, Hast thou not poured me out as milk, and curdled me like cheese? Thou hast clothed me with skin and flesh, and hast fenced me with bones and sinews. There is nothing in man's frame shocking, except thou pollute it with adulteries and licentiousness. He who made Adam, made Eve also, and male and female were fashioned by the Divine hands; nothing in the body is shocking, as framed at the beginning. Let the mouths of all the heretics be stopped¹, who slander the body, yea rather, Him who formed it: but let us remember the saying of Paul, Know ye not that your bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost, which is in you? And again, the Prophet, speaking in the person of Jesus, foretold, saying, My flesh is of them. And elsewhere is it written, Therefore He shall give them till the time of her who beareth; and what is the Sign? He says afterwards, She shall bring forth, and the rest of their brethren shall return. And what is the nuptial pledge of the Virgin, the holy Bride? I will even betroth thee unto

27. But both Greeks and Jews harass us with their allegation, that it was impossible that Christ should be born of a virgin. We may silence the Greeks out of their own fables. For ye who tell that stones, when thrown, became men, how say ye that it is impossible for a virgin to bear? Ye who in your legends relate that a daughter was born from the brain, how say ye that it is impossible for a son to have been born from a virgin womb? Ye who assert the fiction that Bacchus was born from the thigh of your Jupiter, how is it that ye set at nought our truth? I know that I am speaking what is unnecessary for the present hearers; but we put these things before thee, that thou mayest have the opportunity of retorting them on the Greeks, attacking them out of their own fables.

28. Meet, however, those of the circumcision with this question; which is the difficult thing, for an aged woman, barren, and past age, to bear, or for a virgin in her youth to have a child? Sarah was barren, and though it had ceased to be with her after the manner of women, yet contrary to nature she bore a child. If then it be contrary to nature for a barren woman and for a virgin to bear, either reject both or receive both; for it is the same God who wrought the one, and provided the other. For thou wilt not dare to say, that in one case it was possible for God so to do, and not in the other. And again, what kind of nature is it, for a man's hand to be changed in one hour to another appearance, and to be restored again? How then was Moses' hand made white as snow, and at once restored again? But thou sayest that God by so willing changed it. Is God, by willing, able in that instance, and is He not in this? And that was a sign which related only to the Egyptians; but this was a Sign given to the whole world. O ye Jews, which is the more difficult, for a virgin to bear a child, or for a rod to be quickened into a living creature? Ye own that in the case of Moses, a perfectly straight rod taking the form of a serpent was terrible to him who had cast it down; so that he who had before held it as a rod, now fled from it as a dragon. For it was in truth a dragon; but he fled, not being afraid at what he had held, but being filled with terror at Him who had changed it. The rod had teeth and eyes of a dragon; shall now eyes which see be produced from a rod, and shall not a child be born from a virgin's womb at God's will? For I mention not that the rod of Aaron also in one night did that which other trees are many years in accomplishing. For who knows not, that a rod when it has lost its bark, will never sprout forth, even though it be set in the midst of streams? Yet since God follows not, but makes, the natures of trees, the fruitless and withered and barkless rod, flowered and budded, and bore almonds. Has not then He, who bestowed fruit on this rod supernaturally, for the sake of the typical High-priest, granted to the Virgin to bear a son, for the sake of the True?

LECT.
XII.

- (13.) 29. These are good heads of argument; however, the Jews still contradict, and do not feel the force of this reference to the rod, because it is not a reference to births, like this, strange and contrary to nature. Ask them then the following questions:—Of whom at the beginning was Eve begotten? What mother conceived her, who had none? But the Scripture says that she was made from the side of Adam. Was then Eve born without a mother from the side of man, and may not a child be born without a father, from a virgin's womb? A benefit was owing to men from womankind; for Eve sprung from Adam, not conceived by a mother, but, as it were, brought forth by man alone. Mary then repaid the benefit, not by man, but immaculately by herself, conceiving by the Holy Ghost, through the power of God.

30. But let us take something yet greater than this; for that bodies should be born of bodies, though it be strange, is nevertheless possible. But that the dust of the earth should be made a man, this is more wonderful; that clay mixed together should become the coats and brightness of the eye, is more wonderful. That from dust, one in its appearance, should spring at once the hardness of the bones and the delicateness of the lungs, and the other different sorts of members, this is wonderful. That clay should be quickened, and should traverse the world, self-moved, and build houses, this is wonderful. That clay should teach, and speak, and follow crafts, and reign, this is wonderful. Whence then, O most shallow Jews, was Adam made? Did not God take dust from the earth, and mould this wondrous creature? Shall clay then be changed into an eye, and a virgin not bear a son? Does that which is, of the two, impossible among men come to pass, and not that which is possible?

31. Let us keep these things in mind, brethren; let us (14.) employ these weapons of defence. Let us not endure those heretics who teach a mere visionary advent. Let us loathe them also, who say that the birth of the Saviour was of a man and woman, and who dare to say that it was of Joseph and Mary, because it is written, And he took unto him his wife. Mat. 1. For let us call to mind Jacob, who before he had received^{24.} Rachel said to Laban, Give me my wife; for like as she, in Gen. 29, virtue of the promise only, was called the wife of Jacob,^{21.} before the marriage took place, so also Mary, in that she was betrothed, was called the wife of Joseph. And behold the exactness of the Gospel, which says, And in the sixth Luke 1, month the Angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of^{26. 27.} Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, and so forth; and again, when the taxing was, and Joseph went up to be taxed, what saith the Scripture? and Joseph also went up from Galilee, to be taxed Luke 2, with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. For^{4. 5.} though she was great with child, yet said he not, “with his wife,” but “with his espoused wife.” For God sent forth Gal 4, 4. His Son, says Paul, made, not of a man and woman, but of a woman only, that is of a Virgin; for we have before shewed, that a virgin is also called a woman; for of a virgin <sup>ἡ παρθένος τοῦ

32. But thou wonderest at the event; she also wondered^{χῶν.} who bore Him, for she says to Gabriel, How shall this be, Luke 1, seeing I know not a man? But he says to her, The Holy^{34. 35.} Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore also that Holy Thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God. Immaculate and undefiled was His birth, for where the Holy their condition. Also let the order of Solitaries understand

LECTURE XIII.

ON THE CRUCIFIXION AND BURIAL OF CHRIST.

ISAIAH liii. 1, 7.

Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so He openeth not His mouth.

LECT.
XIII.

Gal. 6, 14.

1. EVERY deed of Christ is a boast of the Catholic Church, but her boast of boasts is the Cross; and knowing this, Paul says, But God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of Christ. For wondrous indeed it was, that he who was blind from his birth should recover his sight in Siloam; but what is this compared with the blind of the whole world? It was a great thing, and passing nature, for Lazarus to rise again after four days; but this grace extended to him alone, and what was it compared with the dead in sin throughout the world? Marvellous was it, that five loaves should issue forth into food for the five thousand; but what is that to those who are famishing in ignorance through all the world? It was marvellous that she should have been loosed who had been bound by Satan eighteen years: yet what is this to all of us, στίζανος. who are fast bound in the chains of our sins? Now the glory of the Cross has led into light those who were blind through ignorance, has loosed all who were held fast by sin, and has ransomed the whole world of men.

2. And wonder not that the whole world was ransomed; ψιλός. for it was no mere man, but the only-begotten Son of God, who died on its behalf. And yet one man's sin, even Adam's, Rom. 5,
17. had power to bring death to the world; but if by one man's offence death reigned over the world, how shall not life much rather reign by the righteousness of One? And if because of the tree of food they were thus cast out of paradise, shall not believers now because of the Tree of Jesus, much more easily enter into paradise? If the first man formed out of the earth brought in universal death, shall not He who formed him out of the earth bring in everlasting life, being Himself Life? ^{John 14, 6.} If Phinees, when he waxed zealous and slew the evil-doer, stopped the wrath of God, shall not Jesus, who slew not another, but gave up Himself for a ransom, put away the ^{1 Tim. 2, 6.} wrath which is against men?

3. Let us then not be ashamed of the Cross of our Saviour, (2.) but rather glory in it. For the preaching of the Cross is unto ^{1 Cor. 1, 18. 23.} the Jews a stumbling-block, and unto the Greeks foolishness, but to us salvation: and to them that perish it is foolishness, but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. For it was not a mere man who died for us, as I said before, but the Son of God, God made man. Further; if under Moses a lamb kept the destroyer at a distance, did not much rather the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world, deliver ^{John 1, 29.} us from our sins? The blood of a brute animal gave salvation; and shall not the Blood of the Only-begotten much rather save? If any disbelieve the power of the Crucified, let him enquire of the devils; if any believe not words, let him believe what he sees. Many have been crucified throughout the world, but by none of these are the devils scared; but Christ having been crucified for us, when they see but the Sign of the Cross, they shudder. For those died for their own sins, but Christ for the sins of others; for He did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth. It is ^{1 Pet. 2, 22. from Is. 53, 9.} not Peter who says this, for then might we suspect that he was partial to his Teacher; but it is Esaias who says it, not indeed present with Him in the flesh, but in the Spirit contemplating aforetime His coming in the flesh. Yet why now bring the Prophet only as a witness? receive the witness of Pilate himself who gave sentence upon Him, saying, I find ^{Luke 23, 14.} no fault in this Man: and who, when he gave Him up, washed his hands, and said, I am innocent of the blood of ^{Mat. 27, 24.} this just person. There is yet another witness of the sinlessness of Jesus,—the robber, the first man admitted into paradise; who rebuked his fellow, and said, “We receive ^{v. Luke 23, 41.}

LECT. XIII. the due reward of our deeds; but this man hath done nothing amiss; for we were present, both thou and I, at His judgment."

4. Jesus then really suffered for all men; for the Cross was δόκησις. no illusion, otherwise our redemption is an illusion also.
 His death was not in appearance, for then is our salvation also a tale. If His death was but in appearance, they were Mat. 27, true who said, We remember that that deceiver said, while
 63. He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. His passion then was real; for He was really crucified, and we are not ashamed thereat. He was crucified, and we deny it not, nay, I will rather glory to speak of it. For though I should now deny it, this Golgotha confutes me near which we
 vid. sup. are now assembled; the wood of the Cross confutes me, which
 Cat. iv. has from hence been distributed piecemeal to all the world.
 10. x. 19. I confess the Cross, because I know of the Resurrection; for if, after being crucified, He had remained as He was, I had not perchance confessed it, for I might have hidden it with my Master; but now that the Resurrection has followed the Cross, I am not ashamed to declare it.

(3.) 5. Being then in the flesh like others, He was crucified, but not for like sins. For He was not led to death for covetousness, in that He was the Teacher of poverty; nor was He condemned for concupiscence, for He Himself says plainly, Mat. 5, Whosoever shall look upon a woman to lust after her, hath
 28. already committed adultery with her; not for smiting or striking hastily, for He turned the other cheek also to the smiter; not for despising the Law, for He was the fulfiller of the Law; not for reviling a prophet, for it was Himself who was proclaimed by the Prophets; not for defrauding any of their hire, for He ministered without reward and freely. He 1 Pet. 2, sinned not in words, or deeds, or thoughts, who did no sin,

6. And wouldest thou be persuaded that He came to His passion willingly? others die without their own will, in that they know not of their death; but He spoke before of His passion. Behold, the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified. Mat. 26, But knowest thou wherefore this Friend of man shunned not ² death? Hear His own words, not mine. Judas set about betraying Him, being ungrateful to the Master of the house. And being reprov- ed, and having heard that word, Thou hast said, he again went out: Mat. 26, then said Jesus, The hour is come, that the Son of man should 25. be glorified. Thou seest how He knew the Cross to be His John 12, proper glory. Further, was Esaias when he was sawn asun- vid. above der not ashamed, and shall Christ be ashamed when dying Cat. ii. for the world? Now is the Son of man glorified. Not but ¹⁴ that He had glory before: for He was glorified with the glory John 13, ^{31.} which was before the foundation of the world.  15, 21. Lamentations, Jeremias, lamenting you, has written what from Is. is worthy of lamentations. He saw your destruction, he 52, 15. beheld your downfall, he bewailed Jerusalem which then Gal. 4, was; for that which now is shall not be lamented for; for 25. that Jerusalem crucified Christ, but that which now is

 Lam. 4, worships Him. Lamenting then he says, The breath of our
 20. Sept. countenance, the Lord Christ was taken in our corruptions.
 Am I stating views of my own? Behold he testifies of the Lord Christ seized by men. And what follows from this? Tell me, Ibid. O Prophet. He says, Of whom we said, Under His shadow
we shall live among the heathen. For he correctly signifies that the grace of life shall no longer dwell in Israel, but among the heathen.

8. But since their gainsayings are many, come, let me, with the help of your prayers, (as the shortness of the time may allow,) set forth through the Lord’s grace some few testimonies concerning the Passion. For all things concerning Christ are put into writing, and nothing is doubtful, for ἀμάρτυ- nothing is without a text. All things are inscribed on ρον. the monuments of the Prophets; clearly written not on tablets of stone, but by the hand of the Holy Ghost. Since then thou hast heard the Gospel speaking concerning Judas, oughtest thou not to be furnished with the testimony to it?
 Thou hast heard that He was pierced in the side by a spear; oughtest thou not to see whether this also is written? Thou hast heard that He was crucified in a garden; oughtest thou not to see whether this also is written? Thou hast heard that He was sold for thirty pieces of silver; oughtest thou not to learn what prophet spake this? Thou hast heard that He was given vinegar to drink; learn where this also is written. Thou hast heard that His body was laid in a rock, and that a stone was set over it; oughtest thou not to receive this testimony also from the prophet? Thou hast heard that

We come to Scr. not to discover, but to prove what we have been taught. 147

He was crucified with robbers; oughtest thou not to see whether this also is written? Thou hast heard that He was buried; oughtest thou not to see, whether the circumstances of His burial are any where undoubtedly written? Thou hast heard that He rose again; oughtest thou not to see whether we mock thee not, teaching these things? For our speech ^{1 Cor.} and our preaching is not with enticing words of man's wisdom. ^{2, 4.}

We stir now no sophistical contrivances; for these are exposed; we do not conquer words with words, for these come to an end; but we preach Christ Crucified, who has already been preached aforetime by the Prophets. But thou, I pray, having received the testimonies, seal them in thine heart. And, since they are many, and the rest of our time is narrowed into a short space, listen now to a few, (as many as is possible,) and those the chief ones; and having received these beginnings, be diligent and seek out the remainder. Let not thine ^{Vid. Ec-} hand be only stretched out to receive, but let it be also ready ^{clus. 4.} ^{31.} to work. God bestows every thing. For if any of you lack ^{Jam. 1,} wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth, and he shall receive. ^{5.} May He through your prayer, grant speech to us who address you, and faith to you who hear.

9. Let us then seek the texts in proof of the Passion of (5.) Christ: for we are met together, not now to make an abstract ^{θεωρητι-} exposition of the Scriptures, but rather to be made assured of ^{καὶ ἐξή-} the things which we already believe. Now thou hast received ^{γῆσιν.} from me, first the testimonies concerning the coming of Jesus; and concerning His walking on the sea, (for Thy way is in ^{Ps. 77,} the sea,) it is written, Who walketh on the sea, as on a pave- ^{19.} ment. And concerning divers cures thou hast elsewhere ^{Job 9, 8.} received testimony. Now therefore I begin from whence the ^{Sept.} Passion began. Judas was the traitor who came against Him, and stood, speaking words of peace, but plotting war. The Psalmist then says concerning him, My friends and My ^{Ps. 38,} neighbours drew near against Me, and stood. And again, ^{11. Sept.} ^{Ps. 55,} His words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords. ^{21.} Hail, Master, and he betrayed his Master to death; he was not moved with his warning, when He said, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss? saying, as it were, this to him, Recollect thine own name; Judas means confession; thou hast come to terms, thou hast received the money, make

LECT. XIII. confession quickly. Hold not thy peace, O God of My praise, for the mouth of the wicked, and the mouth of the deceitful, are opened against Me; they have spoken against Me with a lying tongue, they have compassed Me about also with words of hatred. But that some of the chief-priests also were present, and that the bonds were before the gate of the city, thou hast heard before, if thou rememberest^b the exposition of the Psalmist, who has told the time and the place; how Ps 59, they returned at evening, and hungered like dogs, and 6. Sept. encompassed the city.

10. Attend also in respect to the thirty pieces of silver. Zech. 11, And I will say to them, If it be good in your sight, give me 12. Sept. my price, or refuse, and the rest. One price is owing to Me from you for My healing the blind and lame, and I receive another; for thanksgiving, dishonour, for worship, insult. Ibid. Beholdest thou how the Scripture foresaw these things? And they appointed My price at thirty pieces of silver. How exact the prophecy! how great and unerring is the wisdom of the Holy Ghost! For he said, not ten, nor twenty, but thirty, exactly as many as there were. Tell also what became of this value, O Prophet! Does he who received it keep it? or does he restore it? and after it was restored, what becomes Ib. v. 13. of it? The Prophet then says, And I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them into the house of the Lord, into the refining house. Compare the Gospel with the Prophecy: Mat. 27, Judas, it says, repented himself, and cast down the pieces 3. 5. of silver in the temple, and departed.

(6.) 11. But now the exact solution of this seeming discrepancy shall be given. For they who make light of the prophets, allege that the Prophet says on the one hand, And I cast them into the house of the Lord, into the refining house, but the Gospel on the other hand, And they gave them for the potters' field. Listen then how they may be both true. For those conscientious Jews forsooth, the high-priests of that time, seeing Judas repenting and saying, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood, reply, What is that to us, see thou to that. Is it then nothing to you, the crucifiers? but shall he who received and restored the price of murder see to it, and shall ye the murderers not see to it? Then they say among themselves, It is not lawful to cast them into the treasury, because it is the price of blood. Out of your own mouths is your condemnation; if the price is polluted, so is the deed polluted; but if thou art fulfilling righteousness in crucifying Christ, why receivest thou not the price of it? But the point of enquiry is, how the two do not disagree, the Gospel saying, the potters' field, and the Prophet, the refining house. But not only people who are goldsmiths, or brass-founders, have refining houses; but potters also have them for their clay. For when they have sifted off the fine and delicate and useful earth from the rubbish, and separated from it the mass of the refuse matter, they first mould up the clay with water, that they may work it with ease into the forms intended. Why then wonderest thou that the Gospel says plainly the potters' field, whereas the Prophet spoke his prophecy like an enigma, since prophecy is in many places enigmatical.

12. They bound Jesus, and led Him to the hall of the High-priest. And wouldest thou know and be sure that this also is written? Esaias says, Woe unto their soul, for they have taken evil counsel against themselves, saying, Let us bind the Just, for He is troublesome to us. And truly, Woe unto their soul! Let us see how. Esaias was sawn asunder, yet after this the people was restored. Jeremias was cast into the mire of the dungeon, yet was the wound of the Jews healed; for it was the less, in that it was a sin against man. But when the Jews sinned, not against man, but against God in man's nature, Woe unto their soul! He says, Let us bind the Just; could He not then set Himself free? some one will say; He, who freed Lazarus from the bonds of death after four days, and loosed Peter from the iron bands of his prison? Angels stood around ready, saying, Let us burst their bands in sunder; but they hold back, because their Lord was pleased to undergo it. Again, He was led to the judgment-seat before the Elders; thou hast already the testimony to this, The Lord will come into judgment with the ancients of His people, and the princes thereof.

13. And the High-priest having questioned Him, and heard the truth, is wroth; and the wicked minister of wicked men smites Him; and the countenance, which had shone as LECT. XIII. the sun, endured to be smitten with lawless hands. Others coming spat on the face of Him, who by His spittle had healed one who was blind from his birth. Do ye thus requite the Lord, O foolish people and unwise? And the Prophet Is. 53, 1. wondering, says, Lord, who hath believed our report? for the thing is incredible, that God, the Son of God, and the Arm of the Lord, should suffer such things. But that they who are saved may not disbelieve, the Holy Ghost writes before, in σωζεις-being saved, the person of Christ, who says, (for He who then spake these things, was afterward an actor in them,) I gave My back to the scourges; for Pilate, having scourged Him, delivered Him *vid.supr.

Intro.* to be crucified; and My cheeks to smitings; and *My face I Is. 50, 6,
Sept.* turned not away from the shame of spittings; saying, as it were, “Though knowing before that they will smite Me, I did not even turn My cheek aside; for how should I have nerved My disciples against death for truth’s sake, had I John¹²,
25. Myself sunk under this?” I said, He who loveth his life shall lose it; if I had loved My life, how could I have taught, not doing what I taught? First then, being Himself God, He endured to suffer these things at the hands of men; that after this, we men, when we suffer such things at the hands of men for His sake, might not be ashamed. Thou seest that the prophets have clearly written of these things also. Many however of the Scripture testimonies must be passed over, for want of time; for if one should exactly search out all, not one of the things concerning Christ would be left without witness.

14. And having been bound, He came from Caiaphas to Hos. 10, Pilate,—is this too written? yes; *And having bound Him, they 6. Sept.
(8.) led Him away as a present to the king of Jarim.* Here some hasty hearer will object, “Pilate was not a king,” (to leave for a while the main part of the question,) “how then having bound Him, led they Him to the king?” But read thou the Gospel; Luke²³,
6. 7. When Pilate heard that He was of Galilee, he sent Him to Herod; for Herod was then king, and was present at Jerusalem. And now observe the exactness of the Prophet; for Luke²³,
12. he says, that He was sent as a present; for the same day Pilate and Herod were made friends together, for before they were at enmity between themselves. For it became Him who was on the eve of making peace in earth and heaven, to make His very judges the first to be at peace between themselves; for the Lord was there present, who reconciles the hearts of the princes of the earth. See the exactness and true testimony of the Prophet. v. Job 12, 24. Sept. where it means to alter, or prevent.

15. Look with awe then at the Lord while He was judged. He endured to be led and carried by the soldiers. Pilate sat in judgment, and He who sitteth on the right hand of the Father, stood and was judged. The people whom He had redeemed from the land of Egypt, and oftentimes from other places, shouted against Him, Away with Him, away with Him, crucify Him. Wherefore, O ye Jews? because He has healed your blind? or because He has made your lame to walk, and bestowed His other benefits? So that the Prophet in amazement speaks of this too, Against whom have ye opened your mouth, and against whom have ye let loose your tongue? and the Lord Himself says in the Prophets, Mine heritage is unto Me as a lion in the forest; it crieth out against Me; therefore have I hated it. I have not refused them, but they have refused Me; wherefore it follows that I say, I have forsaken My house. Is. 57, 4. Sept. Jer. 12, 8. ver. 7.

16. When He was judged, He held His peace; so that Pilate was moved for Him, and said, Hearest Thou not what these witness against Thee? Not that he knew Him who was judged, but he feared his own wife's dream of which news had been sent to him. And Jesus held His peace. The Psalmist says, I was as a man that heareth not; and in whose mouth are no reproofs; and again, But I as a deaf man heard not; and I was as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth. Ps. 38, 14. ver. 13. Thou hast before heard^c concerning this, if thou rememberest it.

17. But the soldiers who surrounded Him, mock Him, and their Lord becomes a sport to them, and their Master is turned into jest by them. When they looked on Me, they shook their heads. Yet there is the figure of kingly state; for though they mock, yet do they bend the knee. And the soldiers crucify Him, having first put on Him a purple robe, and they set a crown on His head; for what though it be of thorns? Every king is proclaimed by soldiers; it became Jesus too in a figure to have been crowned by soldiers;

Gen. 3, 18. Adam received the doom, Cursed is the ground for thy

 For this cause Jesus assumes the thorns, that He might cancel the doom; for this cause also was He buried in the earth, that the cursed earth might receive, instead of the curse, the blessing. At the time of the sin, they clothed themselves with fig-leaves; for this cause Jesus also made the fig-tree the last of His signs. For when about to go to His passion, He curses the fig-tree, not every fig-tree, but that one alone, for the sake of the figure; saying, No

19. And having touched on things connected with Paradise, I am astonished truly at the truth of the types. In Paradise was the Fall, and in a Garden was our Salvation.
 Gen. 3, 8. From the Tree came sin, and until the Tree sin lasted. In the evening, when the Lord walked in the Garden, they hid themselves; and in the evening the robber is brought by the Lord

 Jer. 11, 19. Sept. slaughtered; did I not know it? (for in this manner read it, Mat. 26, 2. as a question, as I have read it; for He who said, Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of Man is betrayed to be crucified, did He not know?) I am as a harmless lamb led to be slaughtered; did I not know it?

(but what sort of lamb? let John the Baptist interpret it, when he says, Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world.) They have devised against Me a wicked device, saying,—(He who knows the devices, knew He not the result of them? And what said they?)—Come, and let us place a beam upon His bread^a—(and if the Lord reckon thee worthy, thou shalt hereafter know, that His body according to the Gospel bore the figure of bread;)—Come now, and let us place a beam upon His bread, and destroy Him out of the land of the living;—(Life admits not of destruction, why labour ye for nought?)—And His name shall be remembered no more. Vain is your counsel; for before the sun His Name ^{Ps. 72, 17. Sept.} abideth in the Church. And because it was Life, which hung on the Cross, Moses says, weeping, And thy Life shall hang before thine eyes; and thou shalt be afraid day and night, and thou shalt not trust thy life. ^{Deut. 28, 66. Sept.} And so too, what was just now taken as the text, Lord, who hath believed our report? ^{ἀναγγεωσέν.}

20. This was wrought in figure by Moses, when he crucified the serpent, that whoso had been bitten by the living serpent, and looked to the brazen serpent, might be saved by believing. Does then the brazen serpent save when crucified, and shall not the Son of God incarnate save when crucified also? Throughout, life comes by means of wood. In the time of Noe the preservation of life was by an ark of wood. In the time of Moses the sea, beholding the emblematical rod, shrunk from him who smote it; is then Moses' rod mighty, and is the Cross of the Saviour powerless? I pass by the greater part (11.) of the types, to keep within compass. The wood in Moses' case sweetened the water; and from the side of Jesus the water flowed upon the wood.

21. The beginning of signs under Moses was blood and water; and the last of all Jesus' signs was the same. Moses began by changing the river into blood; and Jesus at the end gave forth from His side water with blood. This was perhaps on account of the two speeches, his who judged Him, and theirs who cried out against Him; or because of the LECT. XIII. believers and the unbelievers. For Pilate said, I am innocent, and washed his hands in water; they who cried out against Him said, His blood be upon us: there came therefore these two out of His side; the water perhaps, for him who judged Him; but for them that shouted against Him, the blood. And again it is to be understood in another way. The blood was for the Jews; the water for the Christians: for upon them as conspirators is the sentence of condemnation by the blood; but to thee who now believest, the salvation which is by water. For nothing happened without a meaning. Our fathers who have written comments have given another reason in Εὐαγγ- of this matter. For since in the Gospel the power of salutary γελίοις, Baptism is twofold, that namely bestowed by means of water

 vid. sup. on the illuminated, and that to holy martyrs in persecutions
 Cat. iv, through their own blood, there came out of that salutary Side 4, 7. blood and water, to ratify the gift to confession made for Christ, whether in illumination, or on occasions of martyrdom.

Φωτίσ- There is something besides meant by the Side. The woman, μασι, or who was formed from the side, led the way to sin; but Jesus

22. And whoever will enquire, will find other reasons also; but what has been said is enough, because the time is limited, and my hearers may be tired. And yet one never can weary of hearing concerning our crowned Lord, and least of all in this most holy Golgotha. For while others only hear, we have sight and touch too. Let none be weary; take thine armour against the adversaries in the cause of the Cross itself; set up the faith of the Cross, as a trophy against the gainsayers. For when thou art going to dispute with unbelievers concerning the Cross of Christ, first make with thy hand the Sign of Christ's Cross, and the gainsayer will be dumb. Be not ashamed to confess the Cross; for Angels

Mat. 28, glory in it, saying, We know whom ye seek, Jesus the
 5. Crucified. Canst thou not say, O Angel, "I know whom ye seek, my Master?" No, but he says with boldness, "I know the Crucified." For the Cross is a crown, not a dishonour.

(12.) 23. Now let us return to the proofs out of the Prophets which I spoke of. The Lord was crucified; thou hast received the testimonies. Thou seest this spot of Golgotha! Thou answerest with a shout of praise, as if assenting. Look to it lest thou recant it in time of persecution. Rejoice not in the Cross in time of peace only, but hold fast the same faith in time of persecution also; not being a friend of Jesus in time of peace, and His foe in time of wars. Thou receivest now the forgiveness of thy sins, and the gifts of the King's spiritual bounty; when war shall come, strive thou with high heart for thy King. Jesus, the Sinless, for thee was crucified; and wilt not thou be crucified for Him who was crucified for thee? Thou art not bestowing a favour, for thou hast first received; but thou art returning a favour, repaying thy debt to Him who in Golgotha was crucified for thee. Now Golgotha is interpreted, "the place of a skull." Who were they then, who prophetically named this Golgotha, in which Christ the true Head endured the Cross? As the Apostle says, Who is the Image of the Invisible God; and after a Col. 1, little, and He is the Head of the body, the Church. And 15. again, The Head of every man is Christ; and again, Who is v. 18. the Head of all principality and power. The Head suffered 1Cor. 11, in "the place of the skull." O wondrous prophetic adaptation! The very name almost reminds thee, saying, "Think not of the Crucified as of a mere man; He is the Head of all ψυχῶν ἀνθρώπων. principality and power. That Head which was crucified is the Head of all power, and has for His Head the Father; for the Head of the man is Christ, and the Head of Christ is 1 Cor. 11, 3. God."

24. Christ then was crucified for us, having been judged in the night, when it was cold, and a fire of coals was laid. John 18, 18. He was crucified at the third hour; and from the sixth hour there was darkness until the ninth hour; but from the ninth hour there was light again. Are these things then written? Let us enquire. Now the Prophet Zacharias says, And it Zech. 14, shall be in that day, that there shall not be light, and there 6. 7. shall be cold and frost one day; (it was cold, wherefore Peter warmed himself;) And that day shall be known unto the Lord; (what, knew He not the other days? days are many, but this is the day of the Lord's patience, which the Lord Ps. 118, made;)—And that day shall be known unto the Lord, not 24. day, and not night; what is this dark saying which the LECT. XIII. Prophet speaks? That day is neither day nor night? what then shall we name it? The Gospel interprets it, by relating the event. It was not day; for the sun shone not uniformly from his rising to his setting, but from the sixth hour till the ninth hour, there was darkness at mid-day. The darkness therefore was in the interval; but God called the darkness night. Wherefore it was neither day nor night: for neither was it all light, that it should be day; nor was it all darkness, that it should be called night; but after the ninth hour the sun shone forth. This also the Prophet foretels; for after saying, Not day, nor night, he added, And at evening time it shall be light^c. Seest thou the exactness of the prophets? Seest thou the truth of the things foretold?

25. But seekest thou at what hour exactly the sun was darkened? was it the fifth hour, or the eighth, or the tenth? Tell, O Prophet, the certainty thereof to the indocile Jews; when shall the sun go down? The Prophet Amos answers,
 Amos 8, And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord God,
 9. that I will cause the sun to go down at noon; (for there was darkness from the sixth hour;) and I will darken the earth in the clear day. What sort of season is this, O Prophet, and
 v. 10. what sort of day? And I will turn your feasts into mourning; for this was done in the days of unleavened bread, and at the
 v. 10. feast of the Passover: then afterwards he says, And I will Sept. make Him as the mourning of an Only Son, and those with Him as a day of anguish; for in the day of unleavened bread, and at the feast, their women mourned and wept, and the Apostles who had hidden themselves were in anguish. Wonderful then is this prophecy.

(13.) 26. But, some one will say, "Give me yet another sign; what other plain sign is there in the matter?" Jesus was crucified; and He had but one coat, and one cloak: now his cloak the soldiers shared among themselves, having rent it into four; but His coat was not rent, for when rent it would have been no longer of any use; so about this lots were cast by the soldiers: thus the one they divide, but for the other they cast lots. Is then this also written? They know, the diligent chanters of the Church, who imitate the Angel hosts,

27. Again, when He had been judged before Pilate, He λαχμούς.

the very centre of the earth. It is not my word, but it is a

by His spiritual hands had established the heaven; and they

29. So He endured these things, having come for the (14.)
salvation of all; but the people returned Him an evil recompense. Jesus says, I thirst,—He who had brought forth the waters for them out of the flinty rock; and He asks fruit of the

Now myrrh is of the taste of gall, and exceeding bitter. Are these things what ye recompense unto the Lord? Offerest thou these things, O Vine, unto thy Master? Rightly

Mark 15, 23. did the Prophet Esaias aforetime bewail you, saying, My well-beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill; and (not to recite the whole) he goes on, I waited that it should bring forth grapes; I thirsted that it should give wine; but it brought forth thorns; for thou seest the crown, wherewith I am adorned. What then shall I now decree? I will command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it. For the prophets, the clouds, were removed from them, and are for the future in the Church; as Paul says, Let the prophets speak two or three, and let the others judge; and again, God gave in the Church, some, Apostles, and some, Prophets. Agabus, who bound his own feet and hands, was a prophet.

(15.) 30. And concerning the robbers who were crucified with Him, it was written, And He was numbered with the transgressors. Both of them had been transgressors, but one was so no longer. For the one was a transgressor to the end, stubborn against salvation; whose hands indeed were fastened, but who through his blasphemies smote with his tongue. When the Jews passing by wagged their heads, mocking the Crucified, and fulfilling what was written, When they looked on Me, they shaked their heads, he also reviled with them.

Ps. 109, 25. But the other rebuked the reviler; and to him the end of life was the beginning of restoration; the surrender of his soul was a preventing others in salvation. And after rebuking him, he says, Lord, remember me; for to Thee is my speech. Leave this man, for the eyes of his understanding are blinded; but remember me. I say not, remember my works, for of these I am afraid. Every man has a feeling for his fellow-traveller; I am travelling with thee deathwards; remember me, Thy fellow-wayfarer. I say not, Remember me now, but, when Thou comest into Thy kingdom.

31. What power, O robber, enlightened thee? Who taught thee to worship that despised Man, thy companion on the Cross? O Eternal Light, which givest light to them that are in darkness! Therefore also he rightly heard the words, Be of good cheer; not that thy deeds are such as should make thee be of good cheer; but that the King is here, dispensing favours. The request reached unto a distant time; but the grace is very speedy. Verily I say unto thee, This day shalt thou be with Me in Paradise; because to-day thou hast heard My voice, and hast not hardened thine heart. Very speedily I passed sentence upon Adam, very speedily I pardon thee. To him it was said, In the day wherein thou eatest, thou shalt surely die; but thou to-day hast obeyed the faith, to-day is thy salvation. Adam by the Tree fell; thou by the Tree art brought to Paradise. Fear not the serpent; he shall not cast thee out; for he is fallen from heaven. And I say not unto thee, This day shalt thou depart, but, This day shalt thou be with Me. Be of good courage; thou shalt not be cast out. Fear not the fiery sword; it shrinks from its Lord. O mighty and ineffable grace! The faithful Abraham had not yet entered, but the robber enters! Moses and the Prophets had not yet entered, and the lawless robber enters. Paul also wondered at this before thee, saying, Where abounded, there grace did much more abound. They who had borne the heat of the day had not yet entered; and he of the eleventh hour entered. Let none murmur against the goodman of the house, for he says, Friend, I do thee no wrong; is it not lawful for Me to do what I will with Mine own. The robber has a wish to work righteousness, but death prevents him; I wait not exclusively for work, I have accepted faith. I am come who feed My sheep among the lilies, I am come to feed My sheep in the gardens. I have found a sheep, a lost one, but I lay it on My shoulders, for he believes, since he himself has said, I have gone astray like a lost sheep: Lord, remember me when Thou comest in Thy kingdom.

32. Of this garden I sang of old to My spouse in the Canticles, and spake thus to her. I am come into My garden, My sister, My spouse; (now the place where He was crucified was a garden;) and what takest Thou thence? I have gathered My myrrh; having drunk wine mingled with myrrh, and vinegar. And having received these, He said, It is finished. For the mystery has been fulfilled; the things that

There must needs therefore have happened one of two things; either that God, keeping His words, should destroy all men, or that in His loving-kindness, He should cancel the sentence. But behold the wisdom of God; He preserved both to His sentence its truth, and to His loving-kindness its exercise. Christ took our sins*

The transgression of sinners was not so great, as the righteousness of Him who died for them; we have not committed as much sin as He has wrought righteousness who laid down His life for us,—who laid it down when He pleased, and took it again when He pleased. third day according to the Scriptures.

35. But we seek to be told plainly where He has been buried. Is His tomb then made with hands? Is it, like the tombs of kings, raised above the ground? Is the Sepulchre made of stones joined together? And what is laid upon it? Tell us, O Prophets, the exact truth concerning His tomb also, where it is placed, and where we shall seek it? And they say, Look unto the solid rock which ye have hewn. ^{Is. 51,}

LECT. XIII. toil, for the sick ; since also its grace is from God. It is the Sign of the faithful, and the dread of devils : for He has triumphed over them in it, having made a shew of them openly ; for when they see the Cross, they are reminded of the Crucified ; they are afraid of Him, who hath bruised the heads of the dragon. Despise not the Seal, because of the freeness of the gift ; but for this the rather honour thy Benefactor.

37. And if thou art ever led into disputation, and hast not the grounds of proof, yet let Faith remain firm in thee ; or rather, become thou well learned, and then silence the Jews out of the prophets, and the Greeks out of their own fables. They themselves worship men thunderstricken^b : but the thunder when it comes from heaven, comes not at random. If they are not ashamed to worship men thunderstricken and abhorred of God, art thou ashamed to worship the beloved Son of God, who was crucified for thee ? I am ashamed to speak about their so-called Gods, and I leave them because of time ; let those who know, speak. And let all heretics also be silenced. If any say that the Cross is an illusion, turn away from him. Abhor those who say that Christ was crucified to our fancy only ; for if so, and if salvation is from the Cross, then is salvation a fancy also. If the Cross is fancy, the Resurrection is fancy also ; but if Christ be not risen, we are yet in our sins. If the Cross is fancy, the Ascension also is fancy ; and if the Ascension is fancy, then is the second coming also fancy, and every thing is henceforth unsubstantial.

38. Take therefore first, as an unassailable foundation, the Cross, and build upon it the rest of the faith. Deny not the Crucified ; for, if thou deny Him, thou hast many to arraign thee. Judas the traitor will arraign thee first ; for he who betrayed Him, knew that He was condemned to death by the chief-priests and elders. The thirty pieces of silver bear witness ; Gethsemane bears witness, where the betrayal happened ; I speak not yet of the Mount of Olives, on which they were that night, praying. The moon in the night bears witness ; the day bears witness, and the darkened sun ; for it endured not to look on the crime of the conspirators. The fire remonstrates with thee, by which Peter stood and warmed himself; if thou deny the Cross, the eternal fire awaits thee. I say what is severe, that thou may not have experience of it. Remember the swords that came against Him in Gethsemane, that thou be not punished by the eternal sword. The house of Caiaphas will arraign thee, shewing by its present desolation the power of Him who was erewhile judged there. Yea, Caiaphas himself will rise up against thee in the day of judgment; the very servant will rise up against thee, who smote Jesus with the palm of his hand; they also who bound Him, and they who led Him away. Even Herod shall rise up against thee; and Pilate; as if saying, Why deniest thou Him who was slandered unto us by the Jews, whom we knew to have done no wrong? For I Pilate then washed my hands. The false witnesses shall rise up against thee, and the soldiers who put on Him the purple robe, and set on Him the crown of thorns, and crucified Him in Golgotha, and cast lots for His coat. Simon the Cyrenian will cry out upon thee, who bore the Cross behind Jesus.

39. There will cry out upon thee, among the stars, the darkened Sun; among the things upon earth, the Wine mingled with myrrh; among reeds, the Reed; among herbs, the Hyssop; among the things of the sea, the Sponge; among trees, the Wood of the Cross;—the soldiers, too, as was said, who nailed Him, and cast lots for His vesture; the soldier who pierced His side with the spear; the women who then were present; the veil of the temple then rent asunder; the hall of Pilate, now laid waste by the power of Him who was then crucified; this holy Golgotha, rising on high, and shewing itself to this day, and displaying even yet how because of Christ the rocks were then rivenⁱ; the neighbouring sepulchre where He was laid; and the stone which was laid on the door, which lies to this day by the tomb^k; the Angels who were then present; the women who worshipped Him after His resurrection; Peter and John, who ran to the sepulchre; and Thomas, who thrust his hand into His side, and his fingers into the print of the nails. For it was for our sakes

κατ' οἰκονομίαν. 40. Thou hast Twelve Apostles, witnesses of the Cross; and the whole earth, and the world of men who believe on Him who was upon it. Let thy very presence here now persuade thee of the power of the Crucified. For who has now brought thee to this assembly? what soldiers? With what bonds hast thou been forced? What doom has driven thee here now? No, but the salutary Trophy of Jesus, the Cross, has brought you all together. This has enslaved the Persians, and tamed the Scythians; this, to the Egyptians, has given, for cats and dogs and their manifold errors, the knowledge of God; this, to this day heals diseases; this, to this day drives away devils, and overthrows the juggleries of drugs and charms.

41. This shall appear again with Jesus from heaven¹; for Zech. 12, the trophy shall precede the king: that seeing Him whom they pierced, and by the Cross knowing Him who was dishonoured, the Jews may repent and mourn; (but they shall ver. 12. mourn tribe by tribe, when their season for repentance shall be no more;) and that we may glory, boasting of the Cross, Sept. worshipping the Lord who was sent, and crucified for us, and worshipping also God His Father who sent Him, with the Holy Ghost: To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

¹ It is the common opinion of the Fathers, that "the sign of the Son of Man in heaven" will be the Cross. vid. Chrysostom and Jerome in Mat. xxiv. 30.

LECTURE XIV.

ON THE RESURRECTION, ASCENSION, AND EXALTATION OF CHRIST.

1 COR. xv. 1—4.

Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the Gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day according to the Scriptures.

1. BE glad, O Jerusalem, and hold festival together, all ye v. Is. 66, who love Jesus; for He is risen; rejoice all ye who before 10. Sept.
mourned, hearing the reckless deeds and enormities of the Jews. For He who was entreated of them with insult here, is risen again; and as the Lecture on the Cross was one of pain, so now let the good tidings of the Resurrection gladden all present. Let mourning be turned into gladness, and lamentation into joy; and let our mouth be filled with joy and gladness, because of Him who after His resurrection said, Rejoice. For I know the sorrow of the lovers of Christ v. Mat. 28, 9. during the days past; since, our words having ended at His Death and Burial, and not having told the good tidings of the Resurrection, their mind was kept in suspense to hear what they longed for. Now therefore the Dead is risen,—He who was free among the dead, and the deliverer of the dead. He, Ps. 88, 5. whose head, by reason of His patience, was bound in scorn with the crown of thorns, has now, being risen, put on the diadem of His victory over death.

LECT. XIV. 2. As then we have set before you the witnesses of His Cross, in like manner let us now ascertain the proofs of the Resurrection; since the Apostle in the text says, He was buried, and rose the third day according to the Scriptures.

1Cor. 15. 4. Since therefore an Apostle sends us to Scripture testimonies, it is proper for us to recognize there the hope of our salvation; and to learn, first, whether the Divine Scriptures tell us the time of the Resurrection, whether it is in summer, or in autumn, or after winter;—and from what sort of place the Saviour arises;—and what the name of the place is called in the wondrous prophets;—and whether women, who had sought Him and found Him not, afterwards found Him and rejoiced: that when the Gospels are read, the narratives of these holy works may not be thought fables or legends.

(2.) 3. Now that Christ was buried, ye have heard plainly in the foregoing discourse; since Esaias says, His burial shall be in peace: for in His burial He made peace in heaven and earth, bringing sinners unto God. And, the just is taken away from the face of unrighteousness, and, His burial shall be in peace, and, I will give the wicked for His burial. And the prophecy of Jacob in the Scriptures, saying, He couched and lay down as a lion, and as a lion's whelp; who shall awaken Him? And in like manner in Numbers, He couched, He lay down as a lion, and as a great lion. And ye have heard oftentimes the Psalm which says, And Thou hast brought Me into the dust of death. Also, we specified the spot, when we quoted the words, Look unto the rock which ye have hewn.

Now therefore let the texts for the Resurrection itself follow.

4. He says therefore in the eleventh Psalm, For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy, now will I arise, saith the Lord. But with some persons this passage is uncertain; for He often arises to wrath also, that He may take vengeance on His enemies. Come then to the fifteenth

Psalm, which says plainly, Preserve me, O God, for in Thee do I put my trust; and after this, Their drink offerings of blood will I not offer, nor take up their names into my lips, since they have refused Me, and named Cæsar as their king; and afterwards, I have set the Lord always before Me; because He is at My right hand, I shall not be moved; and after a little, My reins also instruct Me in the night-season; and after this it says most plainly, For Thou wilt not leave My soul in hell, Ib. v. 10.

neither wilt Thou suffer Thine Holy One to see corruption.
 He has not said, neither wilt Thou suffer Thine Holy One to see death, else He had not died; but corruption, says He, I shall not see, and I shall not abide in death. Thou wilt Ib. v. 11.
shew Me the path of life. Behold, here is plainly preached life after death. Turn next to the twenty-ninth Psalm, I will Ps. 30, 1.
extol Thee, O Lord, for Thou hast lifted Me up, and hast not Sept.
made My foes to rejoice over Me: what came to pass? wert Thou rescued from Thine enemies, or wert Thou set free when about to be smitten? He Himself says most plainly, Thou, Ib. v. 3.
Lord, hast brought My soul out of hell. In the former place (Pr. B. vers. and Sept.)
 He says, Thou wilt not leave, speaking prophetically; and here He speaks of what is to happen, as if it had already happened, Thou hast brought; Thou hast kept My life from Ibid.

5. And wouldest thou know the place also? He says again in the Canticles, I went down into the garden of nuts. Cant. 6,

6. But what saith Zephaniah to the disciples in the person of Christ? Prepare Thyself, rise up early, all their small Zeph. 3, clusters are destroyed; that is, of the Jews, with whom there 7. Sept.
 are left no grapes of salvation, no not even a stray cluster; for their vine is cut down. See how he says to the disciples,

LECT. XIV. Prepare thyself, rise up early; at early dawn expect the Resurrection. And afterwards in the same connection, he
 1b. v. 8. says, Therefore await Me, saith the Lord, on the day of My resurrection at the Testimony. Seest thou that the Prophet foresaw even that the place of the Resurrection should be called, the Testimony? For wherefore is this place of Golgotha and of the Resurrection not called like the other churches, a church, but a Testimony? It was perhaps because of the Prophet, who had said, On the day of my Resurrection, at the Testimony.

7. And who then is this, and what is the sign of Him who rises again? It is said plainly in what follows, in the same Zeph. 3, passage of the Prophet, For then I will turn to the people a language; (since, after the Resurrection, the Holy Ghost being sent, the grace of tongues was given;) to serve the Lord with one consent. And what other pledge is there in the same Prophet of their serving the Lord with one consent?
 9. From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, they shall bring to Me sacrifices. Thou knowest what is written in the Acts, that an Ethiopian Eunuch came from beyond the rivers of Ethiopia. When therefore the Scriptures tell both the time and the peculiar character of the place, and also the signs following the Resurrection, be thou assured henceforth of the Resurrection, and let no one shake thee from confessing that Christ is raised from the dead.

(4.) 8. Now receive yet another testimony in the eighty-seventh Psalm, where Christ speaks by the Prophets; (for He Ps. 88, 1. who then spoke, afterwards came to us,) O Lord God of My salvation, I have cried day and night before Thee; and after
 v. 4, 5. a little, I am as a Man that hath no strength, free among the dead. He said not, "I am a man without strength," but "as a Man without strength," for He was crucified, not from want of strength, but willingly; and His death was not without power or will. I am counted with them that go down into the pit.
 v. 8. And what is the Sign? Thou hast put away Mine acquaintance far from Me; (for the disciples fled;) wilt Thou shew wonders to the dead? Then after a little, But unto Thee have I cried, O Lord, and in the morning shall My prayer prevent Thee. Seest thou how they declare the very time both of the Passion and of the Resurrection?

9. And whence did the Saviour arise? He says in the Song of Songs, Rise up, My love, and come away: and afterwards, in the cleft of the rock; for the cleft of the rock he calls the cleft which was then at the door of the salutary sepulchre, and was hewn out of the rock itself, as it is customary here in the front of sepulchres. For now it appears not, the outer cave having been hewn away for the sake of the present adornment; for before the sepulchre was decorated by royal zeal, there was a cave in the face of the rock. But where is the rock which has in it this cleft? lies it in the midst of the city, or near the walls and the outskirts? and is it in the ancient walls, or in the outer walls which were built afterwards? He says then in the Canticles, In the cleft of the rock, near to the outer wall^a.

10.

14. Sept.

^a A writer of great name, in a review of Dr. Clarke's Travels, (who denied the accuracy of the tradition in the text concerning the site of the Sepulchre,) thus expresses himself. "Nor was it only its superior sanctity which would preserve its memory. As the private property of an opulent Christian family, it would be secured from pollution or injury; and the tomb itself was no 'hereabouts,' which tradition was to settle, but an object too visible and too definite either to be overlooked or mistaken. While a single Christian survived in the town, it could never cease to be known and venerated . . . But as Dr. Clarke has shewn that the present appearance of the sepulchre is at variance with the account in the Gospel, and the general character of Jewish tombs; it remains for us to examine whether the alterations of time, together with those ascribed to the bad taste and unfortunate zeal of Helena, can have been sufficient to produce this difference. His reasons for incredulity are as follows:—the tomb of Christ was in a garden without the walls of Jerusalem; the structure which at present bears its name, is in the heart of, at least, the modern city, and Dr. C. is unwilling to believe that the ancient limits can have been so much circumscribed to the north as to exclude its site. Further, the original sepulchre was undoubtedly a cave: the present offers no such appearance, being an insulated pile, constructed or cased with distinct slabs of marble. That both these arguments, however, are inconclusive will appear, we think, to Dr. C. himself; from a testimony which will shortly be produced," [the passage of St. Cyril in the text.] "It is certain that, whether probable or not, the ancient limits of the city did exclude the present sepulchre; and that this last, defaced and altered as it is, may be really 'the place where the Lord lay,' is likely from the following circumstances. Forty yards, or thereabouts, from the upper end of the sepulchre, the natural rock is visible; and in the place which the priests call Calvary, it is at least as high as the top of the sepulchre itself. The rock then may have extended as far as the present entrance, and though the entrance itself is hewn into form and cased with marble, the adytum yet offers proof that it is not factitious. It is a trapezium of seven feet by six, neither at right angles to its own entrance, nor to the aisle of the Church which conducts to it, and in no respect conformable to the external plan of the tomb. This last is arranged in a workmanlike manner, with its frontal immediately opposite the principal nave, and in the same style with the rest of the Church. It is shaped something like a horse shoe, and its walls, measured from this outer horse shoe to the inner trapezium, vary from five to eight feet in thickness, a sufficient space to admit of no inconsiderable density of rock, between the outer and inner coating of marble. This, however, does not apply to the ante-chamber, of which the frontal at least is probably fictitious: and where that indenture in the marble is found

LECT. XIV. 10. At what season does the Saviour arise? Is it the season of summer, or some other? In that same Song, before (5.) the above-mentioned place, he says straightway, The winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth, and the time of pruning is come. Is not the earth now full of flowers, and are they not pruning the vines? Thou seest how he says also, that the winter is now past. For in this month Xanthicus, it is now spring; and this season, which is the first month among the Hebrews, is that in which is the feast of the Passover; of the figurative Passover erewhile, but now of the true. This is the season of the creation of the world^b: for then God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed after his kind. And now, as thou seest, every herb is producing seed. And as at that time, God having made the sun and moon, gave them courses of equal length, so also but a few days ago it was the season of the Equinox. At that time, God said, Let Us make man in Our own image, after Our likeness: and the image he received; but the likeness, by his transgression, he defaced^c; at that very season then in which he lost this, did his restoration also come to pass. At the same season in which created man was cast out of paradise for his disobedience, was believing man brought into it again by obeying. Salvation therefore was at the very season when the fall was; when the flowers appeared, and the time of pruning was come.

11. The place of His burial was a garden; and that which was planted therein was a Vine; for He has said, And I am the Vine. It was planted then in the earth, that the curse which was on it for Adam's sake might be rooted out. The which induced Dr. C. to believe that the whole thickness of the wall was composed of the same costly substance. Now these circumstances afford, we apprehend, no inconsiderable grounds for supposing, with Pococke, that it is indeed a grotto above ground: the irregularity of the shape, the difference between the external and internal plan, the thickness of the walls, so needless, if they are throughout of masonry, all favour this opinion; nor is the task ascribed to Helena's workmen of insulating this rock, from that which is still preserved a few yards distant, at all incredible, when we consider that the labour, while it pleased the taste of their employer, furnished at the same time materials for her intended Cathedral." Quarterly Review, March, 1813.

^b This belief is expressed also by Ambros. Hexam. i. 4. n. 13. Cosm. Topogr. v. p. 192. &c.

^c This distinction is also made by Irenæus, (Hær. v. 6. and 16.) Ambrosiast. (dign. cond. hum. 2 and 3.) Philastrius, (Hær. 98.) &c. earth was doomed to thorns and thistles; the true Vine sprang out of the earth, that the saying might be fulfilled, Truth shall spring out of the earth, and righteousness shall look down from heaven. And what will He say who is buried in the garden? I have gathered My myrrh with My spice; and again, Myrrh and aloes with all the chief spices. But these are the marks of His burial; and in the Gospels it is said, The women came to the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared. And there came also Nicodemus, and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes. And afterwards it is written, I have eaten My bread with My honey; the bitter, before His Passion, and the sweet after His Resurrection. Then, being risen, He entered through the closed doors; but they believed not in Him, for they thought they saw a spirit; but He says, Handle Me and see; thrust your fingers into the prints of the nails, as Thomas required. And when they yet disbelieved for joy, and wondered, He said unto them, Have ye here any meat? and they gave Him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb. Thou seest how was fulfilled that Scripture, I have eaten my bread with my honey.

12. But before He entered in through the closed doors, the Bridegroom and the Physician of Souls was sought by those most noble and courageous women. Those blessed women came to the sepulchre, and sought Him who was risen, and the tears still flowed from their eyes; though it was time rather to be glad, and to dance for Him who was risen. Mary according to the Gospel came seeking Him, and found Him not; and after this, she heard from the Angels, and at last saw Christ. Are these things also written? Yes; he says in the Song of Songs, On my bed I sought Him whom my soul loveth; at what time? By night on my bed I sought Him whom my soul loveth; (Mary, it is said, came while it was yet dark;) On my bed I sought Him by night; I sought Him, but I found Him not. And in the Gospel Mary says, They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him. But the Angels who were there present relieve her ignorance, saying, Why seek ye the Living among the dead? He is not only risen, but is risen and the dead with Him. But she knew not this, and in her person

13. For after the vision of the Angels, Jesus came as His own Herald; and the Gospel says, And Jesus met them, saying, Mat. 28, All hail! and they came and held Him by the feet. They 9. held Him, that it might be fulfilled, I will hold Him, and will not let Him go. The woman was weak indeed in body, Cant. 8, but in spirit was manful. Many waters cannot quench love, 7. neither can the floods drown it; He was dead whom they sought, yet was not the hope of the Resurrection quenched. And the Angel says to them again, Fear not; I say not to the soldiers, fear not, but to you; as for them, let them be afraid, that having learned by trial, they may bear witness and say, Truly this was the Son of God; but you ought not 1 John 4, to be afraid, for perfect love casteth out fear; go, tell His 18. disciples that He is risen; and the rest. And they depart, fearful, yet with joy; is this also written? yes, the second Ps. 2, 11. Psalm, which relates the Passion of Christ, says, Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice with trembling;—rejoice, because of the risen Lord; but with trembling, because of the earthquake, and the Angel who appeared as lightning.

(7.) 14. Though, therefore, Chief Priests and Pharisees through Pilate's means sealed the tomb; yet the women beheld Him who was risen. And Esaias knowing the feebleness of the Chief Priests, and the women's strength of faith, says, Ye Is. 27, women, who are come from beholding, come hither; for the 11. people hath no understanding;—the Chief Priests want under- Sept. standing, while women are eye-witnesses. And when the soldiers came into the city to them, and told them all that Mat. 28, had come to pass, they said to them, Say ye, His disciples 13. came by night, and stole Him away while we slept. Well therefore has Esaias afore-time said this also, as in their Is. 30, persons, But tell us, and relate to us another deceit. He 10. who rose again is up, and by bribes they persuade the Sept. soldiers; but they persuade not the kings of our time. The soldiers then surrendered the truth for silver; but the kings of this day have, in their piety, built this holy Church of the Resurrection of God our Saviour, inlaid with silver and embossed with gold, in which we are assembled; and have embellished it with rarities of silver and gold and precious stones. And if this come to the governor's ears, they say, we will persuade him. Yea, though ye persuade the soldiers, yet ye will not persuade the world; for why, as Peter's guards were condemned when he escaped out of ward, were not they also who watched Jesus Christ condemned? It was because the former, on whom sentence was pronounced by Herod, were ignorant and had nothing to say for themselves; while the latter, who had seen the truth, and concealed it for money, were protected by the Chief Priests. Nevertheless, though but a few of the Jews were persuaded at the time, the world became obedient. They who hid the truth, have been themselves hidden; but they who received it were made manifest by the power of the Saviour, who not only rose from the dead, but also raised the dead with Himself. And in the person of these the Prophet Osee says plainly, After two days will He revive us, and the third day will He raise us up, and we shall live in His sight. Hos. 6, 2.

15. But since the disobedient Jews will not be persuaded (8.) by the Divine Scriptures, but forgetting all that is written gainsay the Resurrection of Jesus, it were good to meet them thus: On what ground, while you say that Eliseus and Elias raised the dead, do you gainsay the Resurrection of our Saviour? Is it that we have no living witnesses now out of that generation to what we say? Well, do you also bring forward witness of those other deeds? But that is written;—so is this also written: why then do ye receive the one, and reject the other? They were Hebrews who wrote those things; so were all the Apostles Hebrews: why then do ye disbelieve the Jews? Matthew who wrote the Gospel wrote it in the Hebrew tongue^d; and Paul the preacher was an Hebrew of the Hebrews; and the twelve Apostles were all of Hebrew race: then fifteen Bishops of Jerusalem^e, were appointed in succession from among the Hebrews. What then is your reason for allowing your own accounts, and rejecting ours? since these also are written by Hebrews from among yourselves.

^e i. e. till the destruction of Jerusalem by Hadrian A.D. 134.

LECT. XIV. 16. But it is impossible, some one will say, that the dead should arise; and yet Eliseus twice raised the dead,—when he was alive, and also when dead. Now, we believe, that when Eliseus was dead, a dead man who was cast upon him and touched him, arose; is then Christ not risen? But in that case, the dead man who touched Eliseus, arose, yet he who raised him continued nevertheless dead: now the Dead of whom we speak both arose Himself, and many dead were raised without having even touched Him. For many bodies of the Saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after His Resurrection, and went into the Holy City, (evidently this, in which we now are,) and appeared unto many. Eliseus then raised indeed a dead man, but he conquered not the world; Elias raised a dead man, but devils are not driven away in the name of Elias. We are not speaking against the Prophets, but we are making much of their Master; for we do not exalt our own by disparaging theirs; for theirs are ours; but by what happened among them, we recommend our own.

(9.) 17. But they say again, “A corpse lately dead was raised by the living; but shew us how one three days dead can possibly arise, how a man should be buried, and rise after three days.” If we seek for Scripture testimony in proof, the Lord Jesus Christ Himself supplies it in the Gospels, saying, For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale’s belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth. And on examining the story of Jonas, great is the force of the resemblance. Jesus was sent to preach repentance; so also was Jonas; though the one fled, not knowing what should come to pass; but the other came willingly, to give repentance unto salvation. Jonas slumbered in the ship, and was fast asleep amidst the stormy sea; and while Jesus slept, according to God’s providence, the sea began to rise, to shew in the sequel the might of Him who slept. To the one they said, Why art thou so fast in sleep? Arise, call upon thy God, that God may save us; but in the other case they say unto the Master, Lord, save us.—Then they said, Call upon thy God; here they say, Do Thou save. But the one says, Take me, and cast me forth into the sea; so shall the sea be calm unto you; the other, Himself rebuked the winds and the sea, and there was a great calm. The one was cast into a whale's belly; but the other descended of His own accord thither, where is the invisible νοητός. whale of death. And He descended of His own accord, that death might cast forth those whom he had devoured, according to that which is written, I will ransom them from the Hos. 13, power of the grave; I will redeem them from death. 14.

18. And here let us consider whether it be harder for a man after having been buried to rise again, or for a man in the belly of a whale, and in so great heat of a living creature, to escape corruption. For who among men knows not, that the heat of the belly is so great, that even bones which have been swallowed moulder away? How then did Jonas, who was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, escape corruption? And, seeing that the nature of all men is such that we cannot live without breathing, as we do, the air, how did he live without it for three days? But the Jews make this answer, The power of God, they say, descended with Jonas when he was tossed about in hell. Then, does the Lord grant life to His own servant, by sending with him His power, and can He not grant it to Himself as well? If that is credible, this is credible also; if this is incredible, that also is incredible. For to me both are alike worthy of credence. I believe that Jonas was preserved, for all things are possible with God; I believe that Christ also was raised from the dead; for I have many testimonies of this, both from the Divine Scriptures, and from the operative power even at this day of Him who arose,—who descended into hell alone, but who ascended thence with a great company; for He went down to death, and many bodies of the saints which slept arose through Him.

19. Death was struck with dismay on beholding a new (10.) visitant descending into Hades, not bound by the chains of that place. Wherefore, O ye porters of Hades, when ye saw Him, were ye scared? What unwonted fear seized you? Death fled, and his flight betrayed his cowardice. The holy prophets ran unto Him, and Moses the Lawgiver, and Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob; David also, and Samuel, and Esaias, and John the Baptist, who bore witness when he asked, Art Thou He that should come, or do we look for another? Mat. 11,

 1 Cor. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?
 15, 55. For the Conqueror hath redeemed us.

20. Of this our Saviour, the Prophet Jonas wrought out a Jon.2,2. figure, from the belly of the whale praying and saying, I cried by reason of my affliction, and so on ; out of the belly of hell, and yet he was in the whale ; yet though in the whale, he says that he is in hell ; for he was a figure of Christ, who should descend into Hades. And after a little, he says, in the Jon.2,6. person of Christ, prophesying most clearly, I went down to the chasms of the mountains ; and yet he was in the belly of the whale. What mountains then encompass thee ? I know, he says, that I bear the figure of Him, who is to be laid in the Sepulchre hewn out of the rock. And being in the sea,
 Jon.2,7. Sept. Jonas says, I went down to the earth, since he bore the figure of Christ, who descended to the heart of the earth. And foreseeing that the Jews would persuade the soldiers to lie, and would tell them, Say that they stole Him away, he says, Jon.2,8. They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy. For He who pitied them came, and was crucified, and rose again, giving His own precious blood both for the Jews and the Gentiles ; yet they say, Say that they stole Him away, observing lying vanities. But concerning His resurrection, Is. 63, Esaias also says, He who brought from the earth the great partly from each.

(11.) 21. Since then we have the prophecies, let faith abide with us. Let them fall who fall through unbelief, since they so will ; but thou hast taken thy stand on the rock of faith in the Resurrection. Let no heretic ever persuade thee to speak evil of the Resurrection. For to this day do the Manichees say, that the resurrection of the Saviour was phantom-wise, and into the deep? that is, to bring up Christ again from the dead; and in like manner warning as he has elsewhere written again, Remember that Christ Jesus was raised from the dead; and again, And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that He raised up Christ, whom He raised not up. But in what follows he says, But now is Christ risen from the dead, the first fruits of them that slept;—And He was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve; (for if thou believe not one witness, thou hast twelve witnesses;) then He was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; (if they disbelieve the twelve, let them admit the five hundred;) then He was seen of James, His own brother, and first Bishop of this diocese. Seeing then that such a Bishop originally saw Christ Jesus when risen, do not thou, his disciple, disbelieve him. But thou sayest that His brother James was a partial witness; Then He was seen also of me Paul, His foe; but what testimony is doubted, when an enemy proclaims it? “I, once the persecutor, now preach the glad tidings of the Resurrection.”
 Rom. 1, not real, slighting Paul who says, Who was made of the

22. Many are the witnesses of the Saviour's resurrection.—The night, and the light of the full moon, (for that night was the sixteenth^f;) and the rock of the sepulchre which received Him. The stone also shall rise up against the face of the Jews, for it saw the Lord; even the stone which was then rolled away, itself testifies of the Resurrection, lying there to this day. The Angels of God who were present testified of the Resurrection of the Only-begotten. Peter and John, and Thomas, and the rest of the Apostles; some of whom ran to the sepulchre, and saw the burial-clothes, in which He was wrapped before, lying there after the Resurrection; and others handled His hands and His feet, and beheld the prints of the nails; and all together enjoyed that salutary Breath, and were counted worthy to forgive sins in the power of the Holy Ghost. Women too were witnesses, those who held His feet, and who beheld the mighty earthquake, and the radiance of the Angel who stood by. And the linen clothes which

 XIV. the soldiers, and the money given to them;—the spot itself also, yet to be seen;—and the house of this holy Church, which out of his loving affection to Christ, was by the Emperor Constantine of blessed memory, both built, and beautified as thou seest.

23. A witness of the resurrection of Jesus is Tabitha also, who was in His name raised from the dead; for how shall we disbelieve that Christ is risen, when even His Name has raised the dead? The sea also bears witness to the resurvid. sup. rection of Jesus, as thou hast heard before. The draught of 17—20. fishes also testifies, and the fire of coals and the fish laid thereon. Peter also bears witness, who had erst denied Him thrice, and who then thrice confessed Him; and was comνητά. manded to feed His spiritual sheep. To this day stands Mount Olivet, still to the eyes of the faithful all but displaying Him mounting on a cloud, and the heavenly gate of His ascension. For He descended from heaven to Bethlehem, but to heaven He ascended from the Mount of Olives; at the former place beginning His conflicts for men, but in the latter, crowned after them. Thou hast therefore many witnesses; thou hast this very place of the Resurrection;
 thou hast also the place of the Ascension towards the east;
 thou hast also for witnesses, the Angels which then bore witness; and the cloud on which He went up, and the disciples who came down from that place.

(13.) 24. It follows in course, in teaching the Faith, to speak of ὡκονό- the Ascension; but the grace of God has so ordered it, that μησε. thou heard most fully concerning it, as far as our weakness κατ' οἰ- allowed, yesterday, on the Lord's day; since, by the proνονομίαν. vidence of divine grace, the course of the Lessons in Church, included the account of our Saviour's going up into the heavens; and though what was then said was spoken for the sake of all, and for the united body of the faithful, yet was it especially for thy sake. Now I ask, didst thou attend to what was said? Thou knowest that the words which come next in the Creed teach thee to believe in Him "who rose again the third day, and ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of the Father." Now I suppose that thou certainly rememberest the exposition; yet I will now also cursorily put thee in mind of what was then said. Remember what is distinctly written in the Psalms, God is gone up with a shout; Ps. 47, 5. remember that the divine Powers also said to one another, Lift up your gates, ye Princes, and the rest; remember also Ps. 24, 7. the Psalm which says, Thou hast ascended on high, Thou hast Sept. Ps. 68, led captivity captive; remember the Prophet who says, Who 18. buildeth His ascension unto heaven; and the other particulars Amos 9, 6. Sept. mentioned yesterday with a view to the gainsaying of the (marg.) Jews.

25. For when they gainsay the ascension of the Saviour, as being impossible, remember the account of the carrying away of Habakkuk: for if Habakkuk was transported by the Angel, being carried by the hair of his head, much rather Bel and Dragon, v. 33, &c. was the Lord of both Prophets and Angels, powerful with His own strength to mount on a cloud from the Mount of Olives 14, 35. Sept. into the Heavens. It is well to bear in mind wonders like to this, but reserve thou the preeminence for the Lord, the Worker of wonders; for the others were borne up, but He bears up all things. Remember that Enoch was translated; but Jesus ascended: remember what was said yesterday concerning Elias, that Elias was taken up in a chariot of vid. 2 fire; but that the chariots of Christ are twenty thousand, Kings 2, 11. even thousands of Angels: and that Elias was taken up, Ps. 68, 17. towards the east of Jordan; but that Christ ascended at the east of the brook Cedron: and that Elias went as into 2 Kings 2, 11. Sept. heaven; but Jesus, into heaven: and that Elias said that a double portion in the Holy Spirit should be given to his disciple; but that Christ granted to His own disciples so great enjoyment of the grace of the Holy Ghost, as not only to have it in themselves, but also, by the laying on of their hands, to impart the fellowship of it to them who believed.

26. And when thou art thus wrestling against the Jews, (14.) after thou hast worsted them by parallel instances, then come further to the preeminence of the Saviour's glory. For they were servants, but He the Son of God. And this will remind thee of His preeminence, that the servant of Christ was caught up to the third heaven. For if Elias attained as far as the first heaven, but Paul as far as the third, the latter has doubtless obtained a more honourable dignity. Be not ashamed of thine Apostles; they are not inferior to LECT. XIV. Moses, or behind the Prophets; but they are noble with the noble, yea, than the noble yet more noble. For Elias truly was taken up into heaven; but Peter has the keys of the kingdom of heaven, having received the words, Whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth, shall be loosed in heaven. Elias was taken up only to heaven; but Paul both into heaven, and into paradise; (for it behoved the disciples of Jesus to receive more manifold grace;) and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. But Paul descended again from above, not because he was unworthy to abide in the third heaven, but in order that after having enjoyed things above man's reach, and descended in honour, and having preached Christ, and died for His sake, he might in addition receive the crown of martyrdom. I pass over the rest of this argument, as I went through it yesterday in the Lord's day service; for with understanding hearers, a recapitulation is sufficient for instruction.

(15.) 27. And remember also what I have often said concerning the Son's sitting at the right hand of the Father; because that comes next in the Creed, thus, 'And who is ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of the Father.' Let us not curiously pry into what is properly meant by the throne; for it is incomprehensible: nor endure those who falsely say, that it was after His Cross and Resurrection and Ascension into heaven, that the Son began to sit on the right hand of the Father³. For the Son gained not His throne by advancement; but from the time that He is, (and He is ever begotten,) He also sitteth together with the Father. And this throne the Prophet Esaias having beheld before the incarnate coming of the Saviour, says, I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up, and the rest. For the Father no man hath seen at any time, and He who then appeared to the Prophet was the Son. And the Psalmist says, Thy throne is established of old; Thou art from everlasting. But though many are the testimonies on this point, yet because of the lateness of the time, we will content ourselves only with these.

28. Our present business is to remind you of a few out of much which I said concerning the Son's sitting at the right hand of the Father. For the hundred and ninth Psalm says plainly, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit Thou on My right hand, until I make Thine enemies Thy footstool. And the Saviour, confirming in the Gospel what is here said, says that David spake not these things of himself, but by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, saying, How then doth David in Spirit call Him Lord, saying, The Lord said unto my Lord, and the rest. And in the Acts of the Apostles, Peter on the day of Pentecost standing with the Eleven, and discoursing to the Israelites, has in very words cited this testimony from the hundred and ninth Psalm.

29. A few other testimonies must also be suggested concerning the Son's sitting at the right hand of the Father. In the Gospel according to Matthew it is written, Nevertheless, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and the rest. And following this the Apostle Peter also says, By the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God. And the Apostle Paul, writing to the Romans, says, It is Christ that died, yea rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God. And charging the Ephesians, he thus speaks, According to the working of His mighty power, which He wrought in Christ when He raised Him from the dead, and set Him at His own right hand; and the rest. And he thus taught the Colossians, If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. And in the Epistle to the Hebrews he says, When He had purged our sins, He sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high. And again, But unto which of the Angels said He at any time, Sit thou at My right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool? And again, But this Man, after He had offered one sacrifice for sin, for ever sat down on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till His enemies be made His footstool. And again, Looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before Him endured the Cross, despising the shame, and is set down on the right hand of the throne of God.

30. And though there are many other texts concerning the session of the Only-begotten on the right hand of God, yet

LECT. XIV. let these suffice us at present; with a repetition of my remark, that it was not after His coming in the flesh that He obtained the dignity of this seat; no, for even before all ages, the Only-begotten Son of God, who is our Lord Jesus, ever has the throne on the right hand of the Father. Now may He Himself, the God of all, who is Father of Christ, and our Lord Jesus Christ, who came down, and ascended, and sitteth together with the Father, watch over your souls; keep unshaken and unchanged your hope in Him who rose again; raise you together with Him from your dead sins, to His heavenly gift; count you worthy to be caught up in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, in His fitting time; and, until that time arrive of His glorious second advent, write all your names in the Book of the living, and having written them, never blot them out. (For many, those who fall away, have their names blotted out.) And may He grant to all of you to believe on Him who rose again, and to look for Him who is gone up, and is to come again, (to come, but not from the earth; for be on your guard, O man, because of the deceivers who are to come;) who sitteth on high, and is here present together with us, beholding the order of each, and the steadfastness of his faith. For think not that because He is absent in the flesh, He is therefore absent also in the Spirit. He is here present in the midst of us, listening to what is said of Him, and beholding what is in thy mind, and trying the reins and the hearts;—who also is now ready to present those who are coming to Baptism, and all of you, in the Holy Ghost to the Father, and to say, Behold, I and the children whom God hath given Me:—To whom be glory for ever. Amen.

LECTURE XV.

ON THE SECOND ADVENT, THE LAST JUDGMENT, AND THE PERPETUITY OF CHRIST'S KINGDOM.

DAN. vii. 9—14.

I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of days did sit, &c. . . . The judgment was set, and the books were opened, &c. . . . I saw in the night visions, and behold one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought Him near before Him. And there was given Him dominion, &c. . . . His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, &c.

1. WE preach not one advent only of Christ, but a second also, far more glorious than the former. For the former gave to view His patience; but the latter brings with it the crown of the divine kingdom. For all things, to speak generally, are twofold in our Lord Jesus Christ. His generation is twofold: the one, of God, before the worlds; the other, of the Virgin in the end of the world. His descent is twofold: one was in obscurity, like the dew on the fleece; the second is ^{v. Ps. 72,} His open coming, which is to be. In His former advent, He ^{6. vid. supra} was wrapped in swaddling clothes in the manger; in His ^{Cat. xii.} second, He covereth Himself with light as with a garment. ^{9. Ps. 104,} In His first coming, He endured the Cross, despising the ^{2.} shame; in His second, He comes attended by the Angel ^{Heb. 12,} ^{2.} host, receiving glory. Let us not then rest in His first advent, but look also for His second. And as we have said at His first coming, Blessed is He that cometh in the Name ^{Mat. 21,} of the Lord, so will we repeat the same at His second ^{9. v. Mat,} coming; that with the Angels meeting our Master, we may ^{23, 39.}

For this world shall have an end, and this created world shall be made new. For since corruption, and theft, and adultery, and every sort of sins, have been poured forth over the earth, and blood has been mingled with blood in the world, therefore, that this wondrous dwelling-place may not remain filled with iniquity, this world shall pass away, that that fairer world may be made manifest. And wouldest thou receive the proof of this out of the express words of Scripture? Listen to Esaias, saying, And the heavens shall be rolled together as a scroll; and all their host shall fall down, as the leaf falleth off from the vine, and as a falling fig from the fig-tree. And the Gospel says, The sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven. Let us not sorrow, as if we alone died; the stars also shall die; and perhaps rise again. And the Lord shall roll up the heavens, not that He may destroy them, but that He may raise them up again more beautiful. Hear David the Prophet saying, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thy hands; they shall perish, but thou remainest. But some one will say, Behold, he says plainly that they shall perish. Hear in what sense he says, they shall perish; it is plain from what follows; And they all shall wax old as doth a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed. For as a man is said to “perish,” according to that which is written, The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart, and this, though the resurrection is looked for, so we look for a resurrection, as it were, of the heavens also. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood. Here let converts from the Manichees gain instruction, and no longer make those lights their gods; nor impiously think, that this sun which shall be darkened is Christ. And again hear Christ saying, Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away; for the creatures are not equal in honour with the Master’s words.

4. The things then which are seen shall pass away, and there shall come the things which are looked for, things fairer than these; but as to the time let no one be curious. For it is not for you, He says, to know the times and the

- LECT. XV. seasons, which the Father hath put in His own power. And venture not thou to declare when these things shall be, nor on the other hand abandon thyself to slumber. For he saith, Watch, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. But seeing that it behoved us to know the signs of the end, and whereas we are looking for Christ, therefore, that we may not be deceived and perish, nor be led astray by that false Antichrist, the Apostles, moved by the divine will, address themselves by a providential arrangement to the True Teacher, and say, Tell us, when shall these things be, and what shall be the sign of Thy coming, and of the end of the world? We look for Thee to come again, but Satan is transformed into an Angel of light; put us therefore on our guard, that we may not worship another instead of Thee. And He, opening His divine and blessed mouth, says, Take heed that no man deceive you. And you, hearers, who now as it were see Him with the eyes of your mind, listen to Him saying the same things to you likewise; Take heed that no man deceive you. And this word exhorts you all to give heed to what is spoken; for it is not a tale of things gone by, but a prophecy of things future, and which will surely come. We prophecy not, for we are unworthy; but we set before you the things which are written, and tell you the signs. Observe thou, which of them have already come to pass, and which yet remain; and make thyself safe.
- Mat. 24, 5. Take heed that no man deceive you: for many shall come in My name, saying, I am Christ, and shall deceive many. This has happened in part: for ere now Simon Magus said this, and Menander, and some others of the godless leaders of heresy; and others say it in our days, or shall say it after us.
- First sign. 6. The second sign. And ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars. Is there then at this time war between Persians and Romans for Mesopotamia, or no? Does nation rise up against nation and kingdom against kingdom, or no?
- Second sign. Luke 21, 11. And there shall be famines and pestilences and earthquakes in divers places. These things have already come to pass; and again, And fearful sights from heaven, and mighty storms. Watch therefore, he says, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

If among the Apostles there was found treason, dost thou wonder that even among bishops there is found hatred of the brethren? But the sign concerns not only rulers, but the people also; for He says, And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold. ^{1b. v. 12.} Will any then among those present boast that he entertains friendship unfeigned towards his neighbour? ^a S. Cyril here describes the state of the Church, when orthodoxy was for a while trodden under foot, its maintainers persecuted, and the varieties of Arianism, which took its place, were quarrelling for the ascendancy. Gibbon quotes two passages, one from a pagan historian of the day, another from a Father of the Church, which fully bear out S. Cyril's words. What made the state of things still more deplorable, was the defection of some of the orthodox party, as Marcellus, into opposite errors; while the subsequent secessions of Apollinaris and Lucifer, shew what lurking disorders there were within it at the time when S. Cyril wrote. (Vid. infra 9.) The passages referred to are as follows: "The Christian Religion," says Ammianus, "in itself plain and simple, he (Constantius) confounded by the dotage of superstition. Instead of reconciling the parties by the weight of his authority, he cherished and propagated, by vain disputes, the differences which his vain curiosity had excited. The highways were covered with troops of Bishops, galloping from every side to the assemblies, which they call synods; and while they laboured to reduce the whole sect to their own particular opinions, the public establishment of the posts was almost ruined by their hasty and repeated journeys." Hist. xxi. 16. S. Hilary of Poitiers thus speaks of Asia Minor, the chief seat of the Arian troubles: "It is a thing equally deplorable and dangerous, that there are as many creeds as opinions among men, as many doctrines as inclinations, and as many sources of blasphemy as there are faults among us; because we make creeds arbitrarily, and explain them as arbitrarily. The Homousion is rejected and received and explained away by successive synods. The partial or total resemblance of the Father and of the Son is a subject of dispute for these unhappy divines. Every year, nay, every moon, we make new creeds to describe invisible mysteries. We repent of what we have done, we defend those who repent, we anathematize those whom we defended. We condemn either the doctrine of others in ourselves, or our own in that of others; and reciprocally tearing one another to pieces, we have been the cause of each other's ruin." ad Constant. ii. 4, 5. Gibbon's translations are used, which, though diffuse, are faithful in their matter. What a contrast do these descriptions present to Athanasius' uniform declaration, that the whole question was really settled at Nicæa, and no other synod or debate was necessary!

Lo, here is Christ, or, there, believe it not. Hatred of the brethren makes room next for Antichrist; for the devil prepares beforehand divisions among the people, that he who is to come may be acceptable to them. But God forbid that any of Christ's servants here, or elsewhere, should side with the enemy! Concerning this matter the Apostle Paul writing 2 Thess. has given a manifest sign, saying, For that day shall not
2, 3— come, except there come a falling away first, and that man
10. of sin be revealed, the son of perdition, who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, shewing himself that he is God. Remember ye not that when I was yet with you, I told you these things? And now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.
For the mystery of iniquity doth already work, only he who now letteth will let, until he be taken out of the way. And then shall that wicked be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the spirit of His mouth, and shall destroy with the brightness of His coming. Even him, whose coming is after the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. Thus wrote Paul, and now is the theory? all listen to it gladly. Is it a word of correction? all turn away from it. Most have departed from right words, ὁρῶν. and rather choose the evil, than desire the good. This therefore is the falling away, and the enemy is soon to be looked for: and already he has begun to send forth his forerunners^b, that being ready, he may then come upon the prey. Look therefore to thyself, O man, and watch over thy soul. The Church now charges thee before the Living God; she declares to thee the things concerning Antichrist before they arrive. Whether they will happen in thy time we know not, or whether they will happen after thee we know not; but it is well that, knowing these things, thou shouldest be on thy guard.

10. The true Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God, comes (4.) no more from the earth. If any come seeing visions in the wilderness, go not forth; if they say, Lo, here is Christ, lo, ^{Mat. 24,} there, believe it not. Downwards and to the earth look no ^{26.} longer; for the Sovereign descends from heaven, not alone as before, but with many, attended by tens of thousands of Angels; nor secretly as the dew on the fleece; but shining ^{v. Ps 72,} forth openly as the lightning. For He hath said Himself, ^{6.} As the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto ^{Mat. 24,} the west, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be; and ^{27.} again, And they shall see the Son of Man coming in the ^{1b. v. 30.} clouds with power and great glory, and He shall send His Angels with a great sound of a trumpet; and the rest.

11. But as, when formerly he was to take man's nature, and God was expected to be born of a Virgin, the devil, to create prejudice against this, craftily spread fables beforehand among the idol-worshippers, of false gods, begetting and born of women, that, the falsehood having got possession of the ground, the truth also, as he supposed, might be disbelieved; so now, since the true Christ is to come a second time, the adversary, taking advantage of the expectation of the simple, and especially of them of the circumcision, brings in a certain man who is a wizard, and most expert in the beguiling craftiness of sorceries and enchantments; who shall seize

LECT. upon the power of the Roman empire, and shall falsely style
XV. himself Christ; by this name of Christ deceiving the Jews, who are looking for the Anointed, and seducing those of the Gentiles by his magical illusions.

12. But this aforesaid Antichrist comes when the times of the Roman empire shall have been fulfilled, and the end of the world is now drawing near. There shall rise up together ten kings of the Romans, reigning in different parts perhaps, but all about the same time; and after these shall arise Antichrist, the eleventh king, who by his magical craft shall seize upon the Roman power; and of the kings who reigned before him, three he shall humble, and the remaining seven he shall keep in subjection to himself. At first indeed he will put on a shew of mildness, (as though he were a learned and discreet person,) and of soberness and benevolence: and having by the signs and lying wonders of his magical deceit, beguiled the Jews, as though he were the expected Christ, he shall afterwards characterize himself by all kinds of excesses of cruelty and lawlessness, so as to outdo all unrighteous and ungodly men who have gone before him; displaying against all men, but especially against us Christians, a spirit murderous and ruthless, merciless and crafty. And he shall perpetrate such things for three years and six months only; and then he shall be destroyed by the glorious second advent from heaven of the only-begotten Son of God, our Lord and Saviour Jesus, the true Christ, who shall slay Antichrist with the spirit of His mouth, and shall deliver him over to the fire of hell.

(5.) 13. Now these things we teach, not of our own ingenuity, but having learned them out of the divine Scriptures of the Church, and chiefly from the prophecy of Daniel in the text; as Gabriel also the Archangel interpreted it, speaking thus; The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall surpass all kingdoms. And that this kingdom is that of the Romans, has been the tradition of the Church's interpreters. For as the first kingdom which became renowned was that of the Assyrians, and the second, that of the Medes and Persians together, and after these, that of the Macedonians was the third, so the fourth kingdom now is that of the Romans. Then Gabriel goes on to interpret, saying,

And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise; and another king shall rise up after them, and he shall surpass in wickedness all who were before him; (he says, not only the ten, but also all who were before him;) and he shall subdue three kings; (manifestly out of the ten former kings, but it is plain that having subdued three, he will be the eighth king^c;) and he shall speak great words against the Most High. A blasphemer is he and an outrageous person, not inheriting his kingdom from his fathers, but usurping power by means of sorcery.

14. And who is this, and of what sort of working? Interpret to us, O Paul. Whose coming, he says, is after the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders; implying, that Satan uses him as an instrument, working personally through him: for knowing that his judgment hath now no longer respite^d, he henceforth wages war no more by his ministers, as is his wont, but by himself more openly. And in all signs and lying wonders; for the father of falsehood will make a shew of the works of falsehood, that the multitude may think that they see a dead man raised, when he is not raised, and the lame walking, and the blind seeing, when the cure has not been wrought.

15. And again he says, Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; (above every God; Antichrist therefore will abhor the idols,) so that he sitteth in the temple of God. What temple? He means the Temple of the Jews which has been destroyed. For God forbid that it should be the one in which we are! Wherefore say we this? lest we should be supposed to favour ourselves. For since he comes to the Jews as Christ, and desires to be worshipped by the Jews, he will make great account of the Temple, that he may more completely beguile them; making it seem that he is the man of the race of David, who shall build up the Temple which was erected by Solomon^e. And Antichrist shall come at the time when there shall not be left one stone upon another in the Temple,

^f Even S. Chrysostom, after the awful defect of Julian's attempt, which was attended by a considerable disturbance of the ground on which the Temple had stood, pronounces that the prophecy against "one stone on another" was not yet fulfilled. vid. Hom. 75. in Matt. Ed. Ben.

^g "Some have thought that Cyril here alludes to the Apocalypse." (vid. note a on Catech. iv. 33. p. 48. Ibid. note c on 36. p. 51.) "which is not improbable... All those ancient writers, whom he follows in this Lecture, in their description of Antichrist always appeal to the Apocalypse as well as to Daniel. Vid. Iren. v. 26. l. Hippol. de Antichr. 34. &c. Cyril then must have intentionally omitted mention of the Apocalypse in treating this subject; and he here seems to give the reason of it. At the same time he may be alluding to other Apocryphal works, e. g. those of the Millenarians, &c." Ed. Ben. The Canonicity of the Apocalypse is sufficiently established by its general reception by the Church in the fifth century, whatever doubts before existed in particular parts of Christendom.

And they shall be given into his hand until a time and times ^{Dan. 7,} and the dividing of time. A time is the one year in which ^{25.} his coming shall have increase; and the times are the remaining two years of iniquity, which make up the sum of the three years; and the dividing of time is the six months.
And again in another place Daniel says the same thing, And ^{Dan. 12,} he swear by Him that liveth for ever that it shall be for a ^{7.} time, times, and a half. And some peradventure have referred what follows also to this; namely, the thousand two ^{Dan. 12,} hundred and ninety days; and, Blessed is he that waiteth ^{11.}
and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and ^{v. 12.} thirty days. For this cause we must hide ourselves and fly; for perhaps we shall not have gone over the cities of Israel, ^{Mat. 10,} till the Son of Man be come. ^{23.}

17. Who then is that blessed man, who shall at that time (8.) devoutly witness for Christ? For I say that those Martyrs excel all martyrs. For hitherto they have only wrestled with men; but the Martyrs in the time of Antichrist shall do battle with Satan in his own person. And former persecuting kings ^{αὐτοπρο-} have only put to death; they have not pretended to raise the ^{σώπῳι.} dead, nor shewed the appearance of signs and wonders.
But in his time there shall be the evil seductions both of fear and of deceit, insomuch that if it were possible they shall ^{Mat. 24,} deceive the very elect. Let it never enter into the heart of ^{24.} any then alive to ask, "What did Christ more? By what power does this man work these things? Unless God had pleased, He would not have allowed them." The Apostle warns thee and says beforehand, And for this cause God ^{2 Thess.} shall send them strong delusion; (send, that is, shall allow to ^{2, 11, 12.} happen;) not that they might be excused, but that they might be damned. Wherefore? They, he says, who believed not the truth, that is, the true Christ, but had pleasure in unrighte- ousness, that is, in Antichrist. But God permits these things, as in the persecutions which happen from time to time, so also then, not because He wants power to hinder them, but because according to His wont He crowns His own Champions by means of patience, as He did His own Prophets and Apostles; to the end that after having toiled for a little while they may inherit the eternal kingdom of heaven, according to that which Daniel says, And at that time thy people shall ^{Dan. 12,} sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt; and they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament;

and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever

18. Take precautions then, O man; thou hast the signs of Antichrist; do not merely keep them in mind thyself, but impart them also freely to all. If thou hast a child according to the flesh, now admonish him of this; if thou hast begotten one through catechising, put him also on his guard, lest he receive the false one as the True. For the mystery of iniquity doth already work. I fear these wars of the nations; I fear the divisions of the churches; I fear the mutual hatred of the brethren. But enough on this subject; only God forbid that it should be fulfilled in our days; nevertheless, let us be on our guard. And thus much concerning Antichrist.

(9.) 19. But let us wait and look for the Lord's coming upon the clouds from heaven. Then shall the Angelic trumpets sound; the dead in Christ shall rise first,—the religious persons, who are alive shall be caught up in the clouds, receiving as the reward of their labours, more than human honour, inasmuch as theirs was a more than human strife; according as the Apostle Paul writes, saying, For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are left and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

20. This coming of the Lord, and the end of the world, was known to the Preacher; who says, Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and in what follows; Therefore remove anger from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh; . . . and remember thy Creator . . . while the evil days come not, . . . while the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars be not darkened, . . . and those that look out of the windows be not darkened; (covertly meaning the faculty of sight;) or ever the silver cord be loosed; (he speaks of the assemblage of the stars, for their appearance is like silver;) and the flower of gold be bruised; (thus veiling the mention of the golden sun; for this flower is a well-known plant, having many ray-like leaves shooting out round it;) and they rise up at the voice of the bird, and they see from the height, and terrors be in the way. What shall they see? Then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven; and they shall mourn tribe by tribe. And what shall come to pass when the Lord is come? The almond tree shall blossom, and the grasshopper shall grow in substance, and the briar shall be scattered abroad. And as the interpreters say, the blossoming almond signifies the departure of winter; and our bodies shall after the winter blossom with a heavenly flower. And the grasshopper shall grow in substance, (that means the winged soul clothing itself with the body,) and the briar shall be scattered abroad, (that is, the transgressors who are like thorns shall be scattered.)

21. Thou seest how they all anticipate the coming of the Lord. Thou seest how they know the voice of the bird. Let us know what sort of voice this is. For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trump of God. The Archangel shall shout aloud and say to all, Rise to meet the Lord. And fearful will be that descent of our Master. David says, Our God shall come and shall not keep silence; a fire shall devour before Him, and it shall be very tempestuous round about Him, and the rest. The Son of Man shall come to the Father, according to the text, with the clouds of heaven, and with a stream of fire, which is to try men^h, following as His train. Then if any man's works are of gold, he shall be made brighter; if any man's course of life be like stubble, and without substance, he shall be burned by the fire. And the Father shall sit, having His garment white as snow, and the hair of His head like the pure wool. And this is spoken after the manner of men; wherefore? Because He is the King of those who are not defiled with sins; for, He says, your sins shall be as white as snow, and shall be as wool, which is the emblem of the forgiveness of sins, or of sinlessness itself. But the same Lord

Every covetous deed of thine is recorded; every act of fornication is recorded against thee, every false oath of thine is recorded, every blasphemy, every sorcery, every theft, every murder. All these things are henceforth recorded, if thou do them after having been baptized; for thy former deeds are blotted out.

24. When the Son of man, He says, shall come in His glory, (11.) and all the Angels with Him. Behold, O man, before what Mat. 25, multitudes thou shalt come to judgment. The whole race of 31. οἱ ἄγγελοι men will then be present. Reckon, therefore, the numbers of ἄγγε- the Roman nation; reckon the numbers of all the barbarian λοι, holy, tribes now living, and of those who have died within the last hundred years; reckon how many nations have been buried during the last thousand years; reckon all from Adam to this day. Great indeed is the multitude; but yet it is little, for the Angels are many more. They are the ninety and nine v. Mat. 18, 12. sheep, but mankind is the single one. For according to the extent of universal space, must we reckon the number of its inhabitants. The whole earth is but as a point in the midst of this one heaven; and the heaven which encircles it contains as great a multitude of inhabitants as it has extent. And the heaven of heavens contains unimaginable numbers. And it is written, Thousand thousands ministered unto Him, Dan. 7, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before Him; not 10. that the multitude was only so great, but the Prophet could LECT. XV. not express more than these. And then will be present at the judgment, God, the Father of all, Jesus Christ being seated with Him, and the Holy Ghost being with Them; and the angelic trumpet shall summon all of us, bearing our deeds. Ought we not then now to be sore troubled at this? Think it not a slight doom, O man, putting punishment apart, to be condemned in the presence of so many. Shall we not then choose rather to die many deaths, than be condemned by friends?

- (12.) 25. Let us shudder then, brethren, lest God condemn us; who needs not enquiry or proofs, to condemn. Say not, in the night I committed fornication, or wrought sorcery, or did any other thing, and there was no man by. Out of thine own conscience shalt thou be judged, thy thoughts the mean while accusing or else excusing, in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men. The terrible countenance of the Judge will force thee to speak the truth; or rather, even though thou speak not, it will convict thee. For thou shalt rise clothed with thy own sins, or else thy righteousnesses. And this has the Judge Himself declared, saying, (for it is Christ who judges, for the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son, not divesting Himself of His power, but judging through the Son; therefore the Son judgeth by the will of the Father; for the wills of the Father and of the Son are not different, but one and the same;) what then says the Judge, as to whether thou shalt bear thy works, or no? And before Him shall they gather all nations: (for in the presence of Christ every knee must bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth:) and He shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats. How does the shepherd make the separation? Does he examine out of a book which is a sheep and which a goat? or does he distinguish by their plain marks? Does not the wool shew the sheep, and the hairy and rough skin the goat? In like manner, if thou hast now been cleansed from thy sins, thy deeds shall be henceforth as pure wool; and thy robe shall remain unstained, and thou shalt even say, I have put off my coat, how shall I put it on? By thy vesture shalt thou be known for a sheep. But if thou be found hairy, like Esau, who was rough with hair, and wicked in mind, who for food lost his birth-right and sold his privilege, thou shalt be among those on the left hand. But God forbid that any here present should be an outcast from grace, or for his evil deeds be found on the left hand among the ranks of the sinners!

26. Terrible in good truth is the judgment, and terrible is (13.) the news of it. The kingdom of heaven is before us, and everlasting fire is made ready. How then, some one will say, should we escape the fire? And how should we enter into the kingdom? I was an hungred, He says, and ye gave me Mat. 25, meat. Learn now the way; there is here no need of allegory,^{35.} but to fulfil what is said. I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. These things if thou do, thou shalt reign together with Him; but if thou do them not, thou shalt be condemned. At once then begin to work these things, and abide in the faith; lest, like the foolish virgins, tarrying to buy oil, thou be shut out. Be not confident because thou merely possessest the lamp, but constantly keep it burning. Let the light of thy good works shine before men, and let not Christ be blasphemed on thy account. Wear thou the garment of incorruption¹, resplendent with good works; and that which thou hast received from God to dispense as a steward, dispense thou profitably. Hast thou been put in trust with riches? Dispense them well. Hast thou been entrusted with the word of teaching? Be a good steward thereof. Canst thou bring over to the Church the souls of the hearers? Do this diligently. There are many doors of good stewardship. Only let none of us be condemned and cast out; so we may with boldness meet Christ the Everlasting King, who reigns for ever. For He reigns for ever, who having died for quick and dead, shall be judge of quick and dead. And as also Paul says, For to this end Christ both died and rose and Rom. 14, 9. revived, that He might be Lord both of the dead and living.

27. And shouldest thou ever hear any say that the kingdom (14.) of Christ shall have an end, abhor thou the heresy; it is another head of the dragon, lately sprung up in Galatia.

LECT. A certain one^k has dared to affirm, that after the end of the
 XV. world Christ shall reign no longer; and he has dared to say, that the Word which came forth from the Father shall be again absorbed into the Father, and shall be no more; uttering such blasphemies to his own perdition. For he has not listened to the Lord, saying, The Son abideth for ever. He has not listened to Gabriel, saying, And He shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of His kingdom there shall be no end. Consider this text. Heretics of this day teach in disparagement of Christ, while Gabriel the Archangel taught the eternal abiding of the Saviour; whom then wilt thou rather believe? wilt thou not rather give credence to Gabriel? Listen to the testimony of Daniel in the text; I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days. . . . and there was given Him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve Him; and His dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and His kingdom that which shall not be destroyed.
 Hold fast this in preference, these things believe, and cast away the words of heresy; for thou hast heard most explicitly concerning the endless kingdom of Christ.

28. Thou hast the like doctrine in the interpretation of the
 Dan. 2, Stone, which was cut out of the mountain without hands,
 45. which is Christ according to the flesh; And [His] kingdom shall not be left to other people. And David says in one Ps. 45, 6. place, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; and in Ps. 102, another place, Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the
 25. &c. foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of Thy hands; and then, they shall perish, but Thou remainest; and Heb. 1, what follows; but Thou art the same, and Thy years shall 10—12. not fail. Which words Paul has interpreted of the Son.

29. And wouldest thou know, how they who teach the contrary arrived at such madness? They read wrongly that good word of the Apostle, For He must reign, till He hath 1 Cor. 15, 25. put all enemies under His feet; and they say, when His enemies shall have been put under His feet, He shall cease to reign, wrongly and foolishly alleging this. For He who is king before He has subdued His enemies, how shall He ^k This was Marcellus, Bishop of Ancyra, Socr. Hist. ii. 19. p. 99.

not the rather be king, after He has gotten the mastery over them ?

30. They have also dared to say that the Scripture, When (15.) all things shall be subdued unto Him, then shall the Son also ^{1 Cor. 15, 28.} Himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him, that this Scripture shews that the Son shall be absorbed into the Father. Shall ye then, O most impious of all men, ye the creatures of Christ, continue ? and shall Christ, by whom both you and all things were made, perish ? Such a word is blasphemous. But further, how shall all things be made subject unto Him ? Shall they perish, or continue ? Shall then the other things, when subject to the Son, abide, and shall the Son, when subject to the Father, not abide ? For He shall be subject, not because He shall then begin to be accord- ^{πειθαρχ- χεῖν.} ant to the Father, (for He doth always those things that ^{John 8, 29.} please Him,) but because, then as before, He obeys the Father, yielding, not a forced obedience, but a self-chosen ^{ὑπα- κούει.} accordance ; for He is not a servant, that He should be ^{ὑπεί- θειαν.} subject by force, but a Son, that He should comply of His ^{πεισθή- προαιρέ- σι.} free choice and natural love. ^{φιλο- στοργία.}

31. But let us examine them ; what is the meaning of “until” or “as far as ?” For with this very word will I close with them, and try to expose their error. Since they have dared to say that the words, till He hath put His enemies under His feet, shew that He Himself shall have an end, and have presumed to set bounds to the eternal kingdom of Christ, and to bring to an end, as far as words go, His never-ending sovereignty, come now, let us read the like expressions in the Apostle : Nevertheless, death reigned from Adam till ^{Rom. 5, 14.} Moses. Did men then die up to this time, and did none die any more after Moses, or after the Law was there no more death among men ? Well then, thou seest that the word “unto,” is not to limit time ; but that Paul rather signified this,—“And yet, though Moses was a righteous and wondrous man, the doom of death which was sent forth against Adam, reached even unto him, and them that came after him ; and this, though they had not sinned like Adam, in the disobedience concerning the eating of the Tree.”

32. Take again another similar phrase. For until this day ^{2 Cor. 3, 14, 15.} when Moses is read, the veil is upon their heart. Does

LECT. "until this day" mean only "until Paul?" Is it not "until XV. this day" present, and even to the end? And if Paul say to 2 Cor. the Corinthians, For we are come as far as unto you also 10, 14. in preaching the Gospel of Christ, having hope to preach
 15, 16. the Gospel in the regions beyond you, thou seest manifestly that "as far as" implies not the end, but has something following it. In what sense then shouldst thou remember 1 Cor. to take that Scripture, till He hath put all enemies under 15, 25, His feet? According as Paul says in another place, But
 Heb. 3, exhort each other daily, while it is called to-day; meaning, 13. "continually." For as we may not speak of the "beginning
 v. Heb. of the days" of Christ, so neither endure thou any one who at 7, 3. any time speaks of the end of His kingdom. For it is written,
 Dan. 7, His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom.
 27.

33. And though I have many more texts out of the divine Scriptures, that the kingdom of Christ has no end ever, I will be content with those above alleged, because of the (16.) advance of the day. But thou, O hearer, worship Him only as thy King, fleeing all heretical error. And if the grace of God permit us, the remaining Articles also of the Faith shall be in good time declared to you. And may the God of all keep you all, as ye bear in mind the signs of the end, and remain unsubdued by Antichrist. Thou hast received the tokens of that Deceiver who is to come; thou hast received the proofs of the true Christ, who shall openly come down from heaven. Fly therefore the one, the False one; and look for the other, the True. Thou hast learnt the way, how in the judgment thou mayest be found among the company on the right hand; guard that which is committed to thee concerning 1 Tim. Christ, and be conspicuous in good works, that thou mayest
 6, 20. stand with a good confidence before the Judge, and inherit the kingdom of heaven:—Through whom, and with whom, be glory to God with the Holy Ghost, for ever and ever.
 Amen.

LECTURE XVI.

ON THE ONE HOLY GHOST, THE COMFORTER, WHICH SPAKE IN THE PROPHETS.

1 COR. xii. 1, 4.

Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. . . . Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit.

1. NEED have we truly of spiritual grace, that we may discourse concerning the Holy Spirit; not that we may speak suitably to His dignity, for this is impossible, but that in alleging the words of the divine Scriptures, we may not put ourselves in jeopardy. For surely a very fearful thing is written in the Gospels, where Christ says plainly, Whosoever Mat. 12, speaketh a word against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be ^{32.} forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come. And there is often fear, lest a man, either from ignorance, or from what is considered religion, speaking what he ought not concerning Him, should receive this doom. The Judge of quick and dead, Jesus Christ, has declared that he hath no forgiveness; if then any man stumble, what hope has he?

2. To Jesus Christ's very grace, therefore, it must belong to grant both to us to speak without deficiency, and to you to hear with discretion; for discretion is needful not to them only who speak, but also to them that hear, lest they hear one thing, and receive a different impression. Let us then speak nothing concerning the Holy Ghost but what is written; and if any thing be not written, let us not busy ourselves about it. The Holy Ghost Himself spake the Scrip-

LECT. XVI. tures; He has also spoken concerning Himself as much as He pleased, or as much as we could receive. Be those things therefore spoken, which He has said; for whatsoever He has not said, we dare not say.

- (2.) 3. There is One Only Holy Ghost, the Comforter; and as there is One God the Father, and no second Father;—and as there is One Only-begotten Son and Word of God, who hath no brother;—so is there One Only Holy Ghost, and no second spirit equal in honour to Him. The Holy Ghost then is Power most mighty, of a divine and unsearchable nature; for He is a living, and intelligent Being, and is the sanctifying principle of all things made by God through Christ. He it is who illuminates the souls of the just; He was in the Prophets, He was also in the Apostles in the New Testament. Abhorred be they who dare to separate into parts the active power of the Holy Ghost! There is One God, the Father, Lord of the Old and of the New Testament; and One Lord, Jesus Christ, who was prophesied of in the Old Testament, and came in the New; and One Holy Ghost, who through the Prophets preached of Christ, and when Christ was come, descended, and manifested Him.

4. Let no one then divide the Old from the New Testament^a; let no one say that the Spirit in the former is one, and in the latter another; for thus he offends against the Holy Ghost Himself, who together with the Father and the Son is honoured, and at the observance of Holy Baptism is included with them in the Holy Trinity. For the Only-begotten Son of God said plainly to the Apostles, Go ye, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Our hope is in the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost. We preach not three Gods; let the Marcionists be mute; but we preach One God, by One Son, with the Holy Ghost. The Faith is indivisible; religious worship is undistracted. We neither divide the Holy Trinity, like some; nor do we as Sabellius introduce confusion. But we know according to godliness One Father, who sent His Son to be our Saviour; we know One Son, who promised that He would send the Comforter from the Father; we know the Holy Ghost, who spake in the Prophets, and who on the day of Pentecost descended on the Apostles in the form of fiery tongues, here, in Jerusalem, in the Upper Church of the Apostles^b; for all the choicest privileges belong to us. Here Christ came down from heaven; here the Holy Ghost came down from heaven. And in truth it were most fitting, that as we discourse concerning Christ and Golgotha, upon this Golgotha, so also we should speak concerning the Holy Ghost in the Upper Church; yet since He who descended there jointly partakes of the glory of Him who was crucified here, we here speak concerning Him also who descended there: for religious worship is indivisible.

5. We would now say somewhat concerning the Holy Ghost; not to declare with exactness His substance, for this <sup>ὑπόστα-σιν.</sup> were impossible; but to speak of the diverse mistakes of some concerning Him, (lest we unawares fall upon them;) and to block up the paths of error, that we may journey on the King's one highway. And if we now for caution's sake repeat any of the statements of these heresies, let it recoil on their heads, and let us be guiltless, both we who speak, and ye who hear.

6. For the heretics, who are most profane in all things, have sharpened their tongue against the Holy Ghost also, Ps. 140, and have dared to utter atrocious things; as Irenæus the <sup>3.
ὁ ἐξηγη-</sup> teacher has written in his directions against heresies. For ^{τῆς.} some of them have dared to say that they were the Holy <sup>προστά-γμασι.</sup> Ghost;—of whom the first was Simon, the sorcerer spoken of in the Acts of the Apostles: for when he was cast out, he presumed to teach such doctrines; and they who are called Gnostics, impious men, have spoken other things against the Spirit, and the abandoned Valentinians again something else; and the profane Manes dared to call himself the Comforter sent by Christ. Others again have taught that the Spirit is different in the Prophets and in the New Testament. Great then is their error, or rather their blasphemy. Abhor therefore such, and flee from them who blaspheme the Holy Ghost, and have no forgiveness. For what fellowship hast thou with the desperate, thou, who art to be baptized now, and into the Holy Ghost also? If he who attaches himself to a thief and two parts, the Upper and the Lower.

^b On Mount Sion, and divided into vid. Epiphani. de Mens. 14.

LECT. XVI. concurs with him, is punishable, what hope shall he have, who offends against the Holy Ghost?

7. And abhor the Marcionists also, who tear away from the New Testament the text of the Old. For Marcion first, that most impious of men, who first asserted three Gods, knowing that in the New Testament are contained testimonies concerning Christ from the Prophets, cut out those taken from the Old Testament, that the King might be left without witness. Abhor those above-mentioned Gnostics, men of knowledge by name, but fraught with ignorance; who have dared to say such things of the Holy Ghost, as I dare not repeat.

- (4.) 8. Let the Cataphrygians also be thy abhorrence, and Montanus, their ringleader in evil, and his two so-called prophetesses, Maximilla and Priscilla. For this Montanus, who was out of his mind and really mad, (for he would not have said such things, had he not been mad,) dared to say that he was the Holy Ghost,—he, miserable man, and filled with all uncleanness and lasciviousness^c; for it suffices but to hint at this, out of respect for the women who are present. And having fixed his abode at Pepuza, a most insignificant hamlet of Phrygia, he falsely named it Jerusalem; cutting the throats of wretched little children, and chopping them up into horrid food, for the purposes of their so-called mysteries,—wherefore till but lately in the time of persecution, we were suspected of doing this, because these Montanists were called, falsely indeed, by the common name of Christians;—yet he dared to call himself the Holy Ghost, filled as he was with all impiety and savage cruelty, and condemned by a sentence beyond mitigation.

9. And he was seconded, as was said before, by that most impious Manes also, who blended together what was bad in every heresy; who being the very lowest pit of destruction, collected the doctrines of all the heretics, and wrought out and set forth a yet more novel error. And he dared to say that he himself was the Comforter, whom Christ promised to send. But the Saviour when He promised Him, Luke 24, said to the Apostles, But tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, 49. until ye be endued with power from on high. What then?

did the Apostles who had been dead two hundred years, wait for Manes, until they should be endued with power; and will any dare to say, that they were not from that time full of the Holy Ghost? And in truth it is written, Then they laid Acts 8, 17. their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost; was not this before Manes, yea, many years ago, when the Holy Ghost descended on the day of Pentecost?

10. Wherefore was Simon the sorcerer condemned? Was it not that he came to the Apostles, and said, Give me also Acts 8, 19. this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost? For he said not, "Give me also the fellowship of the Holy Ghost," but "Give me the power;" that he might sell to others that which might not be sold, of which he had not himself possession. And he brought money to them who had nothing; and this, seeing men bringing the prices of the things sold, and laying them at the Apostles' feet. And he considered not that they who trod under foot the wealth which was brought for the maintenance of the poor, were not likely to give the power of the Holy Ghost for a bribe. But what say they to Simon? Thy money perish with thee, because Ib. v. 20. thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money; thou art a second Judas, who for money hast expected to buy the grace of the Spirit. If then Simon, who wished to get this power for a price, is to perish, how impious is Manes, who said that he was the Holy Ghost? Let us hate them who are worthy of hatred; withdraw we from them whom God withdraws from; let us also say unto God with all boldness concerning all heretics, Do not I hate Ps. 139, 21. them, O Lord, that hate Thee, and am not I grieved with them that rise up against Thee? For there is also an enmity which is right, according as it is written, I will put enmity Gen. 3, 15. between thee and her seed; for friendship with the serpent works enmity with God, and death.

11. Let then thus much suffice concerning those outcasts; (5.) and now let us return to the divine Scriptures, and let us drink waters out of our own cisterns, (that is, the holy Prov. 5, 15. Fathers), and running waters out of our own wells. Drink we of that living water, which springs up into everlasting John 4, 14. life; but this spake the Saviour of the Spirit, which they that Ib. 7, 38. believe on Him should receive. For observe what He says, 39.

LECT. XVI. He that believeth on me, (not simply this, but,) as the Scripture hath said, (thus He hath sent thee back to the Old Testament,) out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water, αἰσθητοί. rivers, not perceived by sense, and merely watering the earth with its thorns and trees, but bringing light to the soul. And in another place He says, But the water that I shall give him, shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life,—a new water, living and springing up, springing up to them who are worthy.
 John 4, 14.

12. And why has He called the grace of the Spirit by the name of water? because by water all things subsist; because of water are herbs and animals created; because the water of the showers comes down from heaven; because it comes down one in form, yet manifold in its working. For one fountain watered the whole of the Garden, and one and the same rain comes down upon all the world, yet it becomes white in the lily, and red in the rose, and purple in the violets and pansies, and different and varied in each several kind: so it is one in the palm tree, and another in the vine, and all in all things; being the while one in nature, not diverse from itself; for the rain does not change, when it comes down, first as one thing, then as another, but adapting itself to the nature of each thing which receives it, it becomes to each what is suitable. Thus also the Holy Ghost, being one, and of one nature, and undivided, divides to each His grace, according as He will: and as the dry tree, when it partakes of water, puts forth shoots, so also the soul in sin, when it has been through repentance made worthy of the Holy Ghost, brings forth clusters of righteousness. And He, being One in nature, yet at the will of God and in the Name of Christ works many excellences. For He employs the tongue of one man for wisdom; the soul of another He enlightens by Prophecy; to another He gives power to drive away devils; to another He gives to interpret the divine Scriptures. He invigorates one man's self-command; He teaches another the way to give alms; another He teaches to fast and exercise himself; another He teaches to despise the things of the body; another He trains for martyrdom: diverse in different men, yet not diverse from Himself, as it is written, But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another the gifts of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another, discerning of spirits; to another, diverse kinds of tongues; to another, the interpretation of tongues: but all these worketh the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as He will.

13. But since concerning that which is called Spirit, many (6.) and diverse things are written in the divine Scriptures, and there is reason to fear lest some out of ignorance fall into confusion, not knowing what sort of spirit is spoken of; it will be well now to certify you, of what kind the Scripture declares the Holy Spirit to be. For, as Aaron is called Christ, and David and Saul and others are called Christs, ^{i. e.} but there is only one true Christ, so, since the name of the <sup>Anoint-ed. v.
11. xi. l.</sup> Spirit is given to different things, it is right to see what is meant in particular by the Holy Spirit. For many things are called spirits. Thus an Angel is called spirit, and our soul is called spirit, and this wind which is blowing is called spirit; and great excellence is spoken of as spirit; and an unclean deed as spirit; and a devil our adversary is called spirit. Beware therefore when thou hearest these things, lest from their having a common name thou mistake one for another. For concerning our soul the Scripture says, His spirit shall go Ps. 146, forth, and he shall return to his earth: and of the same soul ^{4. Sept.} it says again, Which formeth the spirit of man within him. <sup>Zech.
12, 1.</sup> And of the Angels it is said in the Psalms, Who maketh His Ps. 104, Angels spirits, and His ministers a flaming fire. And of the ^{4.} wind it saith, Thou shalt break the ships of Tarshish with a Ps. 48, violent spirit; and, As the tree in the wood is moved by the Is. 7, 2. spirit; and, Fire, hail, snow, ice, spirit of storm. And of ^{Sept.} good doctrine the Lord Himself says, The words that I speak Ps. 148, unto you, they are spirit, and they are life; instead of, “are <sup>John 6, 63.</sup> spiritual.” But the Holy Spirit is not pronounced by the tongue; but He is Living, and He it is who gives to speak wisely, speaking and discoursing Himself.

14. And wouldest thou know that He discourses and speaks? Philip by revelation of an Angel went down to the way which leads to Gaza, when the Eunuch was coming;

LECT. XVI.
 Acts 8, 29. and the Spirit said to Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot. Seest thou the Spirit talking to one who hears Him? And Ezekiel speaks thus, And the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me, and said unto me, Speak; Thus saith the Lord.
 Ezek. 11. 5. And again, The Holy Ghost said, unto the Apostles who were in Antioch, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. Beholdest thou the Spirit living, separating, calling, and with authority sending forth?
 Acts 13, 2. So Paul said, Save that the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions await me. For this the good Sanctifier of the Church, and her Helper, and Teacher, the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, of whom the Saviour
 Acts 20, 23. said, He shall teach you all things, (and He said not only, He shall teach, but, He shall bring to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you; for the teachings of Christ and of the Holy Ghost are not different, but the same;) He, I say, testified before to Paul what should befall him, that he might be the more stout-hearted, from knowing them previously.—I have been led to make these remarks in consequence of the text, The words which I speak unto you, they are spirit; that thou mayest understand this, not of the utterance of the lips, but of good doctrine.

(7.) 15. In Scripture too sin also is called spirit, as I have already said; but in another and opposite sense, as when it is said, The spirit of whoredoms caused them to err. The name “spirit” is given also to the unclean spirit, the devil; but with the addition of, “unclean;” for to each is joined its distinguishing name, to mark its proper nature. When the Scripture uses “spirit” in reference to the soul of man, it is with the addition, “of man;” if it mean the wind, it says, the “spirit of storm;” if sin, it says, the “spirit of whoredoms;” if the devil, it says, “an unclean spirit:” that we may know which particular thing is spoken of, and thou mayest not suppose that it means the Holy Ghost; God forbid! For this word spirit is common to many things; and every thing which has not a gross body is in a general way called spirit. Since, therefore, the devils have not such bodies, they are called spirits: but great is the difference; for the unclean devil, when he comes upon the soul of a man, (may the Lord deliver from him every soul that hears me, yea, and that is away!) he comes like a wolf upon a sheep, ravening for blood, and ready to devour. His presence is most cruel; the sense of it most oppressive; the mind is darkened: his attack is an injustice also, and the usurpation of another's possession. For he tyrannically uses another's body, another's instruments, as his own property; he throws down him who stands upright; (for he is akin to him who fell from heaven;) he ^{Luke 10,} perverts the tongue and distorts the lips. Foam comes ^{18.} instead of words; the man is filled with darkness; his eye is open, yet the soul sees not through it; and the miserable man quivers convulsively before his death. The devils are truly foes of men, using them basely and pitilessly.

16. Such is not the Holy Ghost; God forbid! For His (8.) doings tend the contrary way, to what is good and salutary. First, His coming is gentle; the perception of Him is fragrant; most light is His burden; beams of light and knowledge gleam forth before His coming. He comes with the bowels of a true guardian; for He comes to save, and to heal, to teach, to admonish, to strengthen, to exhort, to enlighten the mind, first of him who receives Him, and afterwards of others also, through him. And as a man, who having been previously in darkness, on a sudden beholds the sun, receives light in his bodily sight, and sees plainly things which he saw not, so in like manner he who is vouchsafed the Holy Ghost, is illuminated in his soul, and sees things beyond man's sight, which he knew not; his body is on earth, yet to his soul are mirrored forth the heavens. He sees, like Esaias, the Lord sitting upon a throne high and ^{Is. 6, 1.} lifted up; he sees, like Ezekiel, Him who is above the ^{Ezek.} Cherubim; he sees, like Daniel, thousand thousands, and ten ^{10, 1. &c.} thousand times ten thousand; and the man, little though he ^{Dan. 7,} ^{10.} be, beholds the beginning of the world and the end of the world, and the times intervening, and the successions of kings,—things which he had not learnt: for the True Enlightener is present with him. The man is within walls; but the power of his knowledge reaches far and wide, and he sees even what other men are doing.

17. Peter was not with Ananias and Sapphira when they sold their possessions, but he was present by the Spirit; Why, he says, hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the ^{Acts 5,}

v. 4. Holy Ghost? There was no accuser; there was no witness; whence knew he what had happened? Whiles it remained was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? why hast thou conceived this thing in thine heart? The unlettered Peter, by the grace of the Spirit, learnt what not even the sages of the Greeks had known. Thou hast the like, in the case also of Elisseus. For when he had freely healed the leprosy of Naaman, Gehazi received the reward, the reward of another's achievement; and took the money from Naaman, and bestowed it in a dark place. But the darkness is no darkness to the Saints. And when he came, Elisseus asked him; and like Ps. 139, 12. Peter, when he said, Tell me whether ye sold the land for so much? he also enquires, Whence comest thou, Gehazi? Not Acts 5, 8. in ignorance, but in sorrow ask I whence comest thou? From darkness art thou come, and to darkness shalt thou go; thou hast sold the cure of the leper, and the leprosy shall be thy heritage. I have fulfilled, he says, the bidding of Him Mat. 10, 8. who said to me, Freely ye have received, freely give; but thou hast sold this grace; receive now the terms of thy purchase. But what says Elisseus to him? Went not mine heart with thee? I was here shut in by the body, but the spirit which has been given me of God, saw even the things afar off, and shewed me plainly what was doing elsewhere. Thou seest how the Holy Ghost not only rids of ignorance, (9.) but invests with knowledge; thou seest how He illuminates souls.

18. Esaias lived nearly a thousand years ago; and he Is. 1, 8. beheld Sion as a cottage. The city was still standing, and beautified with public places, and robed in majesty; yet he Mic. 3, 12. says, Zion shall be ploughed as a field, foretelling what is fulfilled in our days. And observe the exactness of the prophecy; for he said, And the daughter of Zion shall be left as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers. And now the place is filled with gardens of cucumbers. Seest thou how the Holy Spirit illuminates the holy ones? Be not therefore carried away to other things, by the force of a common term, but keep fast what is exactly meant.

19. And if ever, while thou hast been sitting here, thoughts concerning chastity or virginity have come into thy mind, it has been His teaching. Has not often a maiden, already at the bridal threshold, fled away, He teaching her the doctrine of virginity? Has not often a man high in court, spurned wealth and rank, being taught by the Holy Ghost? Has not often a young man, at the sight of beauty, closed his eyes, and fled from the sight, and escaped the defilement? Askest thou, whence it came to pass? The Holy Ghost taught the soul of the young man. Many ways of covetousness are there in the world; yet Christians refuse possessions: wherefore? by the instigation of the Holy Ghost. Awful in truth is that Spirit, holy and good; and fittingly are we baptized into Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. A man, still with a body about him, wrestles with many fiercest demons; and often the demon, whom many men could not master with iron bands, has been mastered by him with words of prayer, through the power which is in him of the Holy Ghost; and the mere breathing of the Exorcist becomes as fire to that unseen foe. A mighty Succour and Protector, therefore, have we of God; a great Teacher of the Church, a mighty Champion on our behalf. Let us not be afraid of the demons, nor of the devil; for our Champion is mightier. Only let us open to Him our doors; for He goes about seeking such as are worthy, and searching on whom He may confer His gifts.

20. And He is called the Comforter, because He comforts us, and encourages us, and helpeth our infirmities; for we know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered, that is, to God. Oftentimes, a man for Christ's sake has been outraged and injuriously dishonoured; martyrdom is at hand; tortures on every side, and fire, and sword, and savage beasts, and the deep pit. But the Holy Ghost lowly whispers to him, "Wait thou for the Lord, O man; what is now befalling thee is a small matter; that which is bestowed on thee is great. Suffer thou a little while, and be with Angels everlastingly; the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." He pourtrays to the man the kingdom of heaven; He almost shews him even the paradise of delight; and the martyrs, whose bodily countenances

LECT. are of necessity turned to their judges, but who in spirit
XVI. are already in Paradise, despise those hardships which are

21. And wouldest thou be sure that through the power of the Holy Ghost the Martyrs bear their witness? The

3. can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost, how shall any man give his own life for Jesus' sake, but by the Holy Ghost?

(11.) 22. Great indeed, and all-powerful in gifts, and wonderful, is the Holy Ghost. Consider, how many of you are now sitting here, how many souls of us are present. For each He is working as is suitable, and being in the midst, He beholds the temper of each. He beholds also his thoughts and his conscience, and what we say, and what we imagine. What I have now said is great indeed, yet is it small. For consider, I pray, with thoughts illuminated by Him, how many Christians there are of this diocese, and how many in the whole province of Palestine, and carry forward thy mind from this province, to the whole Roman empire; and after this, consider the whole world; races of Persians, and nations of Indians, Goths and Sarmatians, Gauls and Spaniards, and Moors Libyans and Ethiopians, and the rest for whom we have no names; for of many of the nations not even the names have reached us. Consider, I pray, of each nation, Bishops, Priests, Deacons, Solitaries, Virgins, and other laity; and then behold the great Protector, and Dispenser of their gifts;—how throughout the world He gives to one chastity, to another perpetual virginity, to another almsgiving, to another voluntary poverty, to another power of repelling hostile spirits. And as the light with one gleam sheds radiance on all things, so also the Holy Ghost enlightens those who have eyes; for if any from blindness is not vouchsafed His grace, let him not blame the Spirit, but his own unbelief.

(12.) 23. Thou hast seen His power, which is throughout the world; tarry now no longer upon earth, but ascend on high. Ascend, I say, in imagination even unto the first heaven, and behold how many uncounted myriads of Angels are there. Rise up in thy thoughts, if thou canst, yet higher; do but consider the Archangels, do but consider the Spirits; consider the Virtues, consider the Principalities, consider the Powers, consider the Thrones, consider the Dominions;—the Comforter is of all these the Ruler from God, and the Teacher, and the Sanctifier. Of Him has Elias need, and Elisseus, and Esaias, among men; of Him Michael and Gabriel have need among Angels. Nought of things created is equal in honour to Him: for the families of the Angels, and all their hosts assembled together, have no equality with the Holy Ghost. All these the all-excellent power of the Comforter overshadows. And they indeed are sent forth to minister; but He searches even the deep things of God, according as the Apostle says, For the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God. ^{1 Cor. 2, 10. 11.} For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

24. He preached concerning Christ in the Prophets; He wrought in the Apostles; He to this day seals the souls in Baptism. And the Father indeed gives to the Son; and the Son shares with the Holy Ghost. For it is Jesus Himself, not I, who says, All things are delivered unto Me of My Father; and of the Holy Ghost He says, When He, the Spirit of Truth, shall come, and the rest . . . He shall glorify Me; for He shall receive of Mine, and shall shew it unto you. ^{Mat. 11, 27. John 16, 13. 14.} The Father through the Son, with the Holy Ghost, bestows all things; the gifts of the Father are none other than those of the Son, and those of the Holy Ghost; for there is one Salvation, one Power, one Faith; One God, the Father; One Lord, His only-begotten Son; One Holy Ghost, the Comforter. And it is enough for us to know these things; but enquire not curiously into His nature or substance: for had it ^{ὑπόστασις} been written, we would have spoken of it; what is not written, ^{σιν.} let us not venture on; for it is sufficient for our salvation to know, that there is Father, and Son, and Holy Ghost.

25. This Spirit descended upon the seventy Elders in the (13.) days of Moses. (Now let not the length of the discourse, beloved, produce weariness in you: but may He of whom our discourse is, grant strength to every one, both to us who speak, and to you who listen!) This Spirit, as I said, came down upon the seventy Elders in the time of Moses; and I say this to thee, that I may set before thee, that He knows all things, and worketh as He will. The seventy Elders were chosen; And the Lord came down in a cloud, and took of the Spirit that was upon Moses, and gave it unto the seventy Elders; not that the Spirit was divided, but His grace, according to the vessels of it, and the capacity of the recipients. But there were present sixty and eight, and they prophesied; but Eldad and Medad were not present: therefore that it might be shewn that it was not Moses who bestowed the gift, but the Spirit who wrought, Eldad and Medad, who had been called, but had not as yet presented themselves, prophesy.

26. Jesus the Son of Nun, the successor of Moses, was amazed; and coming to him he says, "Hast thou heard that Eldad and Medad prophesy? They were called, and they came not; my lord Moses, forbid them." "I cannot forbid them," he says, "for this grace is from heaven; nay, so far am I from forbidding them, that I even think it a mercy. I think not, however, that thou hast said this in envy; yet hast thou not rivalry for my sake, because that they prophesy, and thou prophesiest not yet? wait for the proper season; and O that all the Lord's people were prophets, whenever the Lord shall put His Spirit upon them!" saying this also prophetically, Whenever the Lord shall put; "However He has not as yet given it; so thou hast it not yet."—Had not then Abraham this, and Isaac, and Jacob, and Joseph? And they of old, had they it not? Nay, but the words plainly mean, "when He shall put it upon all; as yet indeed this grace is partial, then it shall be given lavishly." And he secretly alluded to what was to happen on the day of Pentecost among us; for He descended among us, yet He had before also descended upon many. For it is written, And Jesus the son of Nun was full of the Spirit of wisdom; for Moses had (14.) laid his hands upon him. Thou seest the same figure in the Old and New Testaments;—in the days of Moses, the Spirit was given by the laying on of hands; and Peter also gives the Spirit by the laying on of hands. And on thee also, who art about to be baptized, shall His grace come; yet in what manner I say not, for I will not anticipate the proper season.

27. He also came upon all the just, and the Prophets; Enos, I mean, and Enoch, and Noah, and the rest; upon Abraham, Isaac, Jacob; for as regards Joseph, even Pharaoh v. Gen. 41, 38. understood that he had the Spirit of God within him. And of Moses, and the wonderful works wrought by the Spirit in his days, thou hast heard often. This Spirit had Job, that most enduring man, and all the saints, though we repeat not all their names. He also was sent when the tabernacle was Exod. 31, 1-6. in making, and filled with wisdom the wise-hearted men who and 36, 1. &c. were with Bezaleel.

28. In the might of this Spirit, as we have it in the Book of Judg. 3, Judges, Othniel judged; Gideon was made strong; Jephtha 10. conquered; Deborah, a woman, waged war; and Samson, 1b. 6, 34. 1b. 11, 29. so long as he wrought righteousness, and grieved Him not, achieved things beyond man's power. And as for Samuel and David, we have it plainly in the Books of Kings, that by the Holy Ghost they prophesied, and were the chiefs of the prophets;—and Samuel was called, the Seer; and David says 1 Sam. 9, distinctly, The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and in the 9. 2 Sam. Psalms, And take not thy Holy Spirit from me, and again, 23, 2. Let thy good Spirit lead me forth into the land of righteousness. Ps. 51, 11. And as we have it in the Books of Chronicles, Azariah, Ps. 143, 10. (Pr. B. vers.) in the time of King Asa, and Jahaziel in the time of King Jehoshaphat, partook of the Holy Ghost; and again, another 2 Chron. 15, 1. Azariah, he who was stoned. And Ezra says, Thou gavest 1b. 20, also Thy good Spirit to instruct them. But as touching Elias 14. vid. 24, who was taken up, and Elisseus, those spirit-instinct^d and 20. 21. wonder-working men, it is manifest, without our saying so, Neh. 9, 20. that they were full of the Holy Ghost.

29. And if a man peruse all the books of the Prophets, (15.) both of the twelve, and of the others, many will he find the texts to be concerning the Holy Ghost; as when Micah says in the person of God, Unless I fulfil might by the Spirit of Mic. 3, 8. the Lord; and Joel cries, And it shall come to pass after- Sept. Joel 2, 28.

She was led away to death, she was now in the hands of the executioners. But her Helper was at hand, the Comforter, the Spirit who sanctifies every intelligent nature. Come ^{ἵστην.} hither to me, He says to Daniel; young though thou be, convict those elders who labour under the sins of youth; for it is written, God raised up the Holy Spirit upon a young ^{v. 45.} stripling;—in a word, (to cut the subject short,) by the sentence of Daniel that chaste lady was saved. We bring this forward as an instance; for this is not the season for expounding. Nebuchadnezzar also knew that the Holy Spirit was in Daniel; for he says to him, O Belteshazzar, ^{Dan. 4,} master of the magicians, because I know that the Spirit of ^{9.} the Holy Gods is in thee. One thing he said truly, and one falsely; for that he had the Holy Spirit was true, but he was not the master of the magicians, for he was no sorcerer, ^{μάγος.} but was wise through the Holy Ghost. And before this also, he interpreted to him the vision of the Image, which he who had seen it himself knew not; for he says, Tell me the vision, ^{v. Dan.} which I who saw it know not. Thou seest the power of the ^{2, 26, 31.} Holy Ghost; that which they who saw it know not, they who saw it not know and interpret.

32. And indeed it were easy to collect very many texts out of the Old Testament, and to discourse more largely concerning the Holy Ghost. But the time is short; and we must confine ourselves to a hearing of suitable length. Wherefore, being now content awhile with passages from the Old Testament, we will, if it be God's pleasure, proceed in the next Lecture to what remains to bring out of the New Testament. And may the God of peace, through our Lord Jesus Christ, and through the love of the Spirit, count all ^{Rom.} of you worthy of spiritual and heavenly gifts:—To whom ^{15, 30.} be glory and power for ever and ever. Amen.

LECTURE XVII.

ON THE HOLY GHOST.

1 COR. xii. 8.

For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom ; to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit ; &c.

LECT.
XVII.

1. IN the preceding Lecture, we set forth according to our ability to the ears of your love some small portion of the testimonies concerning the Holy Ghost; and on the present occasion, we will, if it be God's pleasure, proceed to treat, as far as may be, of those which remain out of the New: and as then we restrained our eagerness within bounds in what you heard, (for there is no satiety in discoursing concerning the Holy Ghost,) so now we must say but a small part of what remains. For now, as well as then, we freely own that our weakness is overwhelmed by the multitude of what is written. Neither to-day will we use the subtleties of men, for that were not convenient; but merely call to mind what comes from the Divine Scriptures; for this is the safest course, according to the blessed Apostle Paul, who says, Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spiritual things with spiritual. Thus we act like travellers or voyagers, who having one goal to a very long journey, though they with diligence hasten on, yet by reason of human weakness, are wont to take in their way divers cities or harbours.

(2.) 2. Therefore though the discourses concerning the Holy Ghost are divided, yet He Himself is undivided, being one and the same. For as in speaking concerning the Father, at one time the subject of our teaching was how He is the one ^{περὶ μόν-} only Cause; and at another, how He is called Father, or ^{αρχίας.} Almighty; and at another, how He is the Creator of all things; the division of the Lectures making no division of the Faith, in that He, the Object of devotion, both was and is, One;—and again, as in discoursing concerning the Only-begotten Son of God, we taught at one time concerning His Godhead, and at another concerning His manhood, dividing into many discourses the doctrine concerning our Lord Jesus Christ, yet proclaiming without division faith towards Him;—so now also though the Lectures concerning the Holy Spirit are divided, yet we preach faith undivided towards Him. For it is One and the Self-same Spirit who divides His gifts to every ^{1 Cor.} man severally as He will, Himself the while abiding un-^{12, 11.} divided. For the Comforter is not different from the Holy Ghost, but one and the self-same, called by various names; who lives and subsists, and speaks, and works; and of all ^{ὑφισταώς.} rational natures made by God through Christ, both of Angels ^{λογικῶν.} and of men, He is the Sanctifier.

3. But lest any from lack of learning, should suppose from the different titles of the Holy Ghost that these spirits are divers, and not one and the self-same, who is alone, the Catholic Church guarding thee beforehand hath delivered to us in the profession of the faith, to “believe in one Holy Ghost the Comforter, who spake by the Prophets;” that thou mightest know, that though His names be many, the Holy Spirit is but one;—of which names, we will now rehearse a few out of many.

4. He is called the Spirit, according to the Scripture just (3.) now read, For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom. ^{1 Cor.} He is called the Spirit of Truth, as the Saviour says, When ^{12, 8.} He, the Spirit of Truth, is come. He is called also the Com-^{John 16,} forter, as He said, For if I go not away, the Comforter will ^{Ib. v. 7.} not come unto you. But that He is one and the same, though called by different titles, is shewn plainly from the following. For that the Holy Spirit and the Comforter are the same, is ^{Ib. 14,} declared in those words, But the Comforter, which is the ^{26. 16.} Holy Ghost; and that the Comforter is the same as the Spirit of Truth, is declared, when it is said, And I will give you ^{δώσω,} ^{Cyr. δώ-}

another Comforter, that He may abide with you for ever, even the Spirit of Truth; and again, But when the Comforter is come whom I will send unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of Truth. And He is called the Spirit of God, according as it is written, And I saw the Spirit of God descending; and again, For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. He is called also the Spirit of the Father, as the Saviour says, For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you; and again Paul saith, For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; . . . that He would grant you to be strengthened by His Spirit. He is also called the Spirit of the Lord, according to that which Peter spake, Why is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? He is called also the Spirit of God and Christ, as Paul writes, But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His. He is called also the Spirit of the Son of God, as it is said, And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son. He is called also the Spirit of Christ, as it is written, Searching what or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify; and again, Through your prayer, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ.

5. Thou wilt find many other titles of the Holy Ghost besides. Thus He is called the Spirit of Holiness, as it is written, According to the Spirit of Holiness. He is also called the Spirit of adoption, as Paul saith, For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear, but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. He is also called the Spirit of revelation, as it is written, May give you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him. He is also called the Spirit of promise, as the same Paul says, In whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of Promise. He is also called the Spirit of grace, as when he says again, And hath done despite to the Spirit of grace. And by many other such-like titles is He named. And thou heardest in the foregoing Lecture, that in the Psalms, He is called at one time the good Spirit, and at another the princely Spirit; and in Esaias

He was styled the Spirit of wisdom, and of understanding, and of counsel, and of might, and of knowledge, and of godliness, and of the fear of God. By all which Scriptures both those before and those now alleged, it is established, that though the titles of the Holy Ghost be different, He is one and the same; living and subsisting, and always present ^{ὁφείστω} together with the Father and the Son; not uttered or breathed ^{συμπαρόν.} by the mouth and lips of the Father and the Son, nor dispersed into the air, but having a real substance, speaking ^{ἑνυπό-} Himself, and working, and dispensing, and sanctifying; the ^{στατόν.} saving dispensation which is to usward from the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, being consistent and harmonious and one, as we have also said before. For I wish you ^{μίας.} to keep in mind those things which were lately spoken, and to know clearly that there is not one spirit in the Law and the Prophets, and another in the Gospels and Apostles; but that it is One and the Self-same Spirit, which both under the Old and under the New Testament, spake the divine Scriptures.

6. This is the Holy Ghost, who came upon the Holy Virgin (4.) Mary; for since He who was born was Christ the Only-begotten, the power of the Highest overshadowed her, and the ^{Luke 1,} Holy Ghost coming upon her, sanctified her, that she might ^{35.} be able to receive Him, by whom all things were made. ^{John 1,} I have no need of using many words for thee to learn that ^{3.} that birth was without defilement or taint, for thou hast learned it. It is Gabriel who says to her, I am the herald of what shall be done, but I have no part in it. Though an Archangel, I know mine place; and though I joyfully bid thee All hail, yet how thou shalt bring forth, is not of any grace of mine. The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, ^{Luke 1,} and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore ^{35.} also that Holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.

7. This Holy Spirit wrought in Elizabeth; for He has in knowledge not virgins only, but acknowledges matrons also, so that their marriage be lawful. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost, and prophesied; and that noble hand-maiden says of her own Lord, And whence is this to me, that ^{Luke 1,} the Mother of my Lord should come to me? ^{43.} For Elizabeth counted herself blessed. Filled with this Holy Spirit, Zacharias also, the Father of John, prophesied, telling how many good things the Only-begotten should procure, and that John should be His harbinger through baptism. By this Holy Ghost also it was revealed to just Symeon, that he should not see death, till he had seen the Lord's Christ; and he received Him in his arms, and bore clear testimony in the Temple concerning Him.

8. But John moreover, who had been filled with the Holy Ghost from his mother's womb, was for this cause sanctified, that he might baptize the Lord; not giving the Spirit himself, but preaching glad tidings of Him who gives the Spirit. For he says, I indeed baptize you with water to repentance, but He that cometh after me is mightier than I, and the rest; He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire. With fire, wherefore? because the descent of the Holy Ghost was in fiery tongues; concerning which the Lord says joyfully, I am come to send fire on the earth; and what will I, if it be already kindled?

(5.) 9. This Holy Ghost descended on the Lord at His baptism, that the dignity of Him who was baptized might not be hidden; as John says, But He which sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, Upon whomsoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending and remaining upon Him, the same is He which baptizeth with the Holy Ghost. But see what saith the Gospel; the heavens were opened; they were opened because of the dignity of Him who descended; for, lo, he says, The heavens were opened, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon Him: that is, with voluntary motion in His descent. For it behoved, as some have interpreted, that the handsel and first-fruits of the Holy Spirit in the baptized, should be given to the manhood of the Saviour, who confers such grace. But perhaps He came down in the form of a dove, as some say, to exhibit a figure of one who is pure and innocent and undefiled, and also helps in the prayers for the children she has begotten, and for forgiveness of sins; as it was emblematically foretold that Christ should be thus manifested in the appearance of His eyes; for in the Canticles she cries concerning the Bridegroom, and says, His eyes are as the eyes of doves by the rivers of water.

10. Of this dove, the dove of Noe, according to some, was in part a figure. For as in his time by means of wood and of water salvation came to men, and the beginning of a new creation, and the dove returned to him towards evening with an olive branch, thus, say they, the Holy Ghost also descended upon the true Noe, the Author of the second birth, who draws together into one the wills of all nations, of whom <sup>πρωταρχή-

The spiritual dove <sup>ἐκκλη-

11. And of these things perhaps there may be another (6.) exposition; and now too we ought to hear the words of the Saviour Himself concerning the Holy Ghost. For He says, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, He cannot <sup>John 3, Howbeit, when He the Spirit of Truth is come, He will guide you into all truth; for He shall not speak of Himself; but whatsoever He shall hear that shall He speak, and He will shew you things to come. He shall glorify Me, for He shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you. All things that the Father hath are mine; therefore said I, That He shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you. I have read to thee now what the Only-begotten Himself has uttered, that thou mayest not give heed to human words.*

(7.) 12. The fellowship of this Holy Spirit He bestowed on the John 20, 22. Apostles: for it is written, And when He had said this He breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost; whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained.

vid. supr. xiv. 10. This was the second time He breathed, (His first breath having been stifled by wilful sins;) that the Scripture might be fulfilled, He went up breathing upon thy face, and delivering thee from affliction. But whence went He up? From Nahum 2, 1. Sept. Hades; for thus the Gospel relates, that after His resurrection then He breathed on them. But though He bestowed His grace then, He was to lavish it yet more bountifully; and He says to them, "I truly am ready to give it even now, but the vessel cannot yet hold it; for a while therefore receive ye grace, according as ye can bear it; but look forward for even more;

Luke 24, 49. but tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem, until ye be invested with power from on high. Receive it in part now; then, ye shall bear it in its fulness." For he who receives often, pos- sesses the gift but in part ; but he who is invested, is completely enfolded by his robe. " Fear not," He says, " the weapons and darts of the devil ; for ye bear with you the power of the Holy Ghost." But remember that the Holy Ghost is not divided, but the grace which is by Him.

13. Jesus therefore went up into heaven, and fulfilled the promise. For He said to them, I will pray the Father, and ^{John 14,} He shall give you another Comforter. They were accordingly ^{16.} sitting, looking for the coming of the Holy Ghost ; and when the day of Pentecost was fully come, here, in this city of ^{Acts 2,} Jerusalem,—(for this honour also belongs to us ; and we speak ^{1.} not of good which has happened among others, but of that which has been vouchsafed among ourselves,)—on the day of Pentecost, I say, they were sitting, and the Comforter came down from heaven, the Guardian and Sanctifier of the Church, the Ruler of souls, the Pilot of the tempest-tossed, the Enlightener of the lost, who presides in the combat, and crowns the victors.

14. But He came down to invest the Apostles with power, (8.) and to baptize them ; for the Lord says, ye shall be baptized ^{Ib. 1, 5.} with the Holy Ghost not many days hence. His grace is not in part, but His power is in full perfection ; for as he who plunges into the waters and is baptized is encompassed on all sides by the waters, so were they also baptized completely by the Holy Ghost. The water however envelops but outwardly, but the Spirit baptizes also the soul within, and that perfectly. And wherefore wonderest thou ? Take an example from matter ; poor indeed and common, yet useful for the simpler sort. If the fire penetrating the mass of the iron makes the whole of it fire, so that what was cold becomes burning and what was black is made bright,—if fire which is a body thus penetrates and works without hindrance in iron which is also a body, why wonder that the Holy Ghost enters into the very inmost recesses of the soul ?

15. And lest men should be ignorant of the greatness of that mighty gift, which was coming down to them, there sounded as it were a heavenly trumpet. For suddenly there ^{Ib. 2, 2.} came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, ^{&c.} signifying the presence of Him who was to grant unto men, to seize with violence the kingdom of God ; that both their

LECT. eyes might see the fiery tongues, and their ears hear the XVII. sound. And it filled all the house where they were sitting;
 νοητοῦ. for the house became the vessel of the spiritual water; as the disciples sat within, the whole house was filled. Thus they were entirely baptized according to the promise, invested soul and body with a divine and saving garment. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost. They partook of fire, not of burning but of saving fire; of fire which consumes the thorns of sins, and gives lustre to the soul. This is now coming upon you also, and that, to strip away and devour your sins which are like thorns, and to brighten that precious possession of your souls, and to give you grace; for He gave it then to the Apostles. And He sat upon them in the form of fiery tongues, that by fiery tongues their heads might be encircled with new and spiritual diadems. The fiery sword barred of old the gates of Paradise; the fiery tongue which brought salvation restored the gift.

(9.) 16. And they began to speak with other tongues, as the Acts 2, Spirit gave them utterance. The Galilean Peter or Andrew
 4. spoke Persian or Median. John and the rest of the Apostles spake every tongue to those of Gentile extraction; (for it has not arisen in our time that multitudes of strangers assemble here from all quarters, but they have done so since that time.) What teacher can be found so great as to teach men things at once which they have not learned? So many years are they in learning by grammar and the other arts to speak well Greek only; nor do all speak even this equally well; the Rhetorician perhaps succeeds in it, and the Grammarian sometimes not, and the Grammarian is ignorant of the subjects of philosophy. But the Holy Spirit taught the Apostles many languages at once, languages which all their life long they had not known. This is in truth vast wisdom, this is power divine. What a contrast is their long ignorance in time past, and their sudden utterance of these divers and strange languages!

17. The multitude of the hearers was confounded;—it was a second confusion, in the room of that first evil one at Babylon. For in that confusion of tongues, there was division of purpose, because their feelings were ungodly ; but here minds were restored and united, because the object of interest was godly. The means of falling were the means of recovery. Wherefore they marvelled, saying, How hear we them speaking? No marvel if ye be ignorant ; for even Nicodemus was ignorant of the coming of the Spirit, and to him it was said, The Spirit breatheth where it listeth, and thou hearest ^{John 3,} the voice thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and ^{8.} whither it goeth ; but if even though hearing His voice, I know not whence He cometh, how can I explain, what He ^{ὑπόστα-} ^{σιν.} is in substance ?

18. But others mocking said, These men are full of new (10.) wine, and they spoke truly though in mockery. For in truth the wine was new, even the grace of the New Testament ; but this new wine was from the spiritual Vine, which had ^{νοητῆς.} oftentimes ere this borne fruit in Prophets, and had budded in the New Testament. For as in things sensible, the vine ever remains the same, but bears new fruits in its seasons, so also the self-same Spirit continuing what it is, as it had often wrought in Prophets, now manifested a new and marvellous work. For though His grace had been extended on the Fathers also, yet it came at this time exuberantly ; for before they but partook of the Holy Ghost, but now they were baptized wholly.

19. But Peter who had the Holy Ghost, and who knew what he possessed, says, “ Men of Israel, ye who preach Joel, ^{Acts 2,} but know not the things which are written, these men are not ^{15. &c.} drunken as ye suppose. Drunken they are, not however as ye suppose, but according to that which is written, They ^{Ps. 36, 8.} shall be drunken with the fatness of thy house ; and thou ^{Sept.} shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures. They are drunken, yet sober ; their drunkenness is a death to sin and a quickening of heart, a drunkenness contrary to that of the body ; for this last even causes forgetfulness of what was known, but that even bestows the knowledge of what was not known. They are drunken, for they have drunk the wine of the spiritual vine, which says, I am the vine and ye are ^{νοητῆς.} the branches. But if ye are not persuaded by me, understand ^{John 15,} ^{5.} what I tell you from the very time of the day ; for it is the third hour of the day. For He who, as Mark relates, was crucified at the third hour, has now at the third hour sent down His grace. For His grace is not other than the Spirit's grace, but He who was then crucified, who also gave this promise, has now made good that which He promised. And if ye would receive a testimony also of this, Listen," he says: "But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel; And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour of My Spirit"—(and this word, I will pour, implied a rich gift; for God giveth not the Spirit by measure, for the Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into His hand; and He has given Him the power also of bestowing the grace of the All-holy Spirit on whomsoever He will;)—I will pour of My Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; and afterwards, And on My servants and on My handmaidens I will pour out in those days of My Spirit, and they shall prophesy." The Holy Ghost is no respecter of persons; for He seeks not dignities, but piety of soul. Let not either the rich be puffed up, or the poor dejected, but only let each prepare himself for the reception of the Heavenly gift.

- (11.) 20. We have said much to-day, and perchance you are weary of listening; yet more still remains. And in truth for the doctrine of the Holy Ghost there were need of a third lecture; and of many besides. But we must have your indulgence on both points. For as the Holy Festival of Easter is at hand, we have this day lengthened our discourse; yet we had not room to bring before you all the testimonies from the New Testament, which we ought. For much is still to come from the Acts of the Apostles, in which the grace of the Holy Ghost wrought mightily in Peter and in all the Apostles together; much also from the Catholic Epistles, and the fourteen Epistles of Paul; out of all which we will now endeavour to gather a few, like flowers from a large meadow, merely by way of remembrance.

Apostles together, that, out of the Jews, the crucifiers of Christ, this great number believed, and were baptized in the Name of Christ, and continued stedfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and in prayers. And again in the same power of the Holy Ghost, Peter and John as they went up into the Temple at the hour of prayer, which was the ninth hour, in the Name of Jesus healed the lame man at the Beautiful gate, who had so been from his mother's womb for forty years; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken, Then shall the lame man leap as an hart. And thus, as they swept into the spiritual meshes of their doctrine five thousand believers at once, so they confuted the bewildered rulers of the people and chief priests, and that, not by their own wisdom, for they were unlearned and ignorant men, but by the mighty power of the Holy Ghost; for it is written, Then Peter filled with the Holy Ghost said to them. So great also was the grace of the Holy Ghost, which wrought by means of the Twelve Apostles in them who believed, that they were of one heart and of one soul, and their enjoyment of their goods was common, the possessors piously offering the prices of their possession, and no one among them wanting aught; while Ananias and Sapphira, who attempted to lie to the Holy Ghost, underwent their befitting punishment.

22. And by the hands of the Apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people. And such spiritual grace was shed around the Apostles, that gentle as they were, they were the objects of dread; for of the rest durst no man join himself to them; but the people magnified them. And multitudes were added of them who believed in the Lord, both of men and women; and the streets were filled with sick on beds and couches, that at least the shadow of Peter, passing by, might overshadow some of them. And the multitude also of the cities round about came unto this holy Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits, who were healed every one in this might of the Holy Ghost.

23. Again, when the Twelve Apostles, after having been cast into prison by the chief priests for preaching Christ, and having been marvellously delivered from it at night by an Angel, were brought to the judgment hall to them out of the LECT. XVII. Temple, they fearlessly rebuked them, in their discourse to them concerning Christ. And when they added this, that God hath given His Holy Spirit to them that obey Him, and had been beaten, they went their way rejoicing, and ceased not to teach and preach Christ Jesus.

Acts 6, 3. 24. Nor in the Twelve Apostles only wrought the grace of the Holy Ghost, but also in the first-born children of this once barren Church, I mean the seven Deacons; for these also were chosen, as it is written, being full of the Holy Ghost and of wisdom. Of whom Stephen, rightly so named, the first-fruits of the Martyrs, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, did great wonders and miracles among the people, and vanquished those who disputed with him; for they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spake. And when he was maliciously accused and brought to the judgment hall, he was radiant with angelic effulgence; for all they who sat in the council, looking stedfastly on him, saw his face, as it had been the face of an Angel. And having by his wise defence confuted the Jews, those stiffnecked men, uncircumcised in heart and ears, ever resisting the Holy Ghost, he beheld the heavens opened, and saw the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God. He saw Him, not by his own power, but, as the divine Scripture says, being full of the Holy Ghost, he looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God.

Acts 8, 5. &c. 25. In the same power of the Holy Ghost, and in the Name of Christ, Philip at one time, drove away in the city of Samaria the unclean spirits, which cried out with a loud voice; and he healed the palsied and the lame, and brought to Christ great multitudes of believers. To whom Peter and John came down, and imparted with prayer, and the laying on of hands, the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, from which Simon Magus alone was declared an alien, and that justly. And at another time Philip was called by an Angel of the Lord in the way, for the sake of that most godly Ethiopian Eunuch, and heard distinctly the Spirit Himself, saying, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot. He instructed the Eunuch, and baptized him, and so having sent into Ethiopia a herald of Christ, according as it is written, Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God, he was caught away by the Angel, and preached the Gospel in the cities in succession.

26. With this spirit was Paul also filled after his calling (13.) by our Lord Jesus Christ. Let godly Ananias come as a witness to what we say, he who in Damascus said to him, The Lord, even Jesus who appeared to thee by the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost. And He straightway, mightily working, changed the blindness of Paul's eyes into restored sight; and having vouchsafed His seal unto his soul, made him a chosen vessel to bear the Name of the Lord who had appeared to him, before kings and the children of Israel, and out of the former persecutor, fashioned an ambassador and good servant,—one, who from Jerusalem, round about unto Illyricum, fully preached the Gospel of Christ, and instructed even imperial Rome, and carried the earnestness of his preaching as far as Spain, undergoing conflicts innumerable, and performing signs and wonders. Of him for the present enough.

27. In the power of the same Holy Spirit, Peter also, the chief of the Apostles, and the bearer of the keys of the kingdom of heaven, healed Æneas the paralytic in the Name of Christ at Lydda, which is now Diospolis, and at Joppa raised from the dead the charitable Tabitha. And being on the housetop in a trance, he saw heaven opened, and the vessel like a sheet let down, full of beasts of every shape and sort, and learnt plainly through this to call no man common or unclean, though he should be of the Greeks. And when he was sent for by Cornelius, he heard clearly the Holy Ghost Himself saying, Behold, men seek thee; arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have sent them. And that it might be fully ascertained that those of the Gentiles also who believe are made partakers of the Holy Ghost, the Scripture speaks thus concerning Cornelius and them who were with him, when Peter was come to Cesarea, and taught the things concerning Christ; While Peter yet spake these words, the Holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word, and they of the circumcision which believed were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured the gift of the Holy Ghost.

LECT. 28. And when in Antioch, the most renowned city of XVII. Syria, the preaching of Christ took effect, Barnabas was sent hence as far as Antioch to help on the good work, being Acts 11, a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith; who 24. seeing a great harvest of believers in Christ, brought Paul from Tarsus to Antioch, as his fellow-combatant. And when by them crowds were instructed and assembled in the Church,
 v. 26. it came to pass that the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch; the Holy Ghost, I consider, bestowing on the believers that new Name, which had been promised before by the Lord. And the grace of the Spirit being shed forth by God more abundantly in Antioch, there were there prophets and teachers, with whom was Agabus also. And as they Acts 13, ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Ghost said,
 2. *Separate Me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto
 I have called them.* And after the laying on of hands, they were sent forth by the Holy Ghost. Now it is manifest, that the Spirit which speaks and sends, is a living Spirit, subὑψιστός. sisting, and effectual, as we have said.

(14.) 29. This Holy Spirit, who in unison with Father and Son, has established the New Testament in the Church Catholic, has set us free from the grievous burdens of the Law,—those ordinances, I mean, concerning things common and unclean, and meats, and sabbaths, and new moons, and circumcision, and sprinklings, and sacrifices; which were given for a Heb. 10, season, and had the shadow of good things to come, but
 1. which when the truth had come, were rightly abrogated.
 For when Paul and Barnabas were sent to the Apostles, because of the question moved at Antioch by them who said that it was necessary to be circumcised and to keep the customs of Moses, the Apostles who were here at Jerusalem by a written Epistle set free the whole world from all legal and typical observances; yet they attributed not to themselves the full authority in this matter, but acknowledge in Acts 15, their Epistle, writing thus, For it hath seemed good unto the 28, 29. Holy Ghost and to us to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; that ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication; shewing evidently by what they wrote, that though the writing was by the hands of men, even the Apostles, yet the decree was universal because of the Holy Ghost: which decree Paul and Barnabas took and confirmed through the universal Church.

30. And now, having proceeded thus far, I must ask (15.) indulgence from your love, or rather from the Spirit who dwelt in Paul, if I be not able to rehearse every thing, by reason of my own weakness, and your weariness who listen. For when shall I in terms suitable declare the marvellous deeds wrought by the operation of the Holy Ghost in the Name of Christ? Those wrought in Cyprus upon Elymas the sorcerer, and in Lystra at the healing of the cripple, and those done in Cilicia and Phrygia and Galatia and Mysia and Macedonia? or those at Philippi; the preaching, I mean, and the driving out of the unclean spirit in the Name of Christ; and the salvation by Baptism of the jailer with his whole house at night after the earthquake? or the events at Thessalonica; or the address at Areopagus in the midst of the Athenians; or the instructions at Corinth, and in all Achaia? How shall I worthily recount the mighty deeds which at Ephesus by the hands of Paul, were wrought by the Holy Ghost? whom they of that city knew not before, but came Acts 19, to know Him by the doctrine of Paul; and they when Paul¹ had laid his hands on them, and the Holy Ghost had come upon them, spake with other tongues, and prophesied. And so great spiritual grace was upon him, that not only his touch wrought cures, but even handkerchiefs and napkins, v. 12. brought from his body, healed diseases, and scared away the spirits of evil; and moreover they also who used curious v. 19. arts brought their books together, and burned them before all men.

31. I pass by the work wrought at Troas on Eutychus, who sinking down with sleep fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead; yet was saved alive by Paul. I also pass by the prophecy addressed to the Elders of Ephesus τὰ [τῆς?] assembled at Miletus, in which he openly said, That the Holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying,—and the rest; for by saying, in every city, Paul made manifest that the marvellous works done by him in every city, were of the operative power of the Holy Ghost, at the will of God, and in the Name of Christ who spake in him. By the power of this

LECT. XVII. Holy Ghost, the same Paul hasted to this holy city Jerusalem, and this, though Agabus by the same Spirit foretold what should befall him; and he spoke to the multitudes with confidence, telling them concerning Christ. And when brought to Cesarea, and encompassed by the seats of judges, Paul at one time before Felix, and at another before Festus the governor and King Agrippa, obtained of the Holy Ghost grace so great, and of such overcoming wisdom, that at last Agrippa himself the king of the Jews said, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian. This Holy Spirit granted to Paul, when he was in the island of Melita also, to receive no harm when bitten by the viper, and to effect divers cures on the diseased. This Holy Spirit guided him, the persecutor of old, even as far as imperial Rome, a herald of Christ; and there he persuaded many of the Jews to believe in Christ, and to them who gainsayed he said plainly, Well spake the Holy Ghost by Esaias the Prophet, saying unto your fathers, Acts 28, 25. and the rest.

32. And that Paul was full of the Holy Ghost, and his fellow Apostles, and they who after them have believed in Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, hear his own plain words in 1 Cor. 2, 4. his Epistles; And my speech, he says, and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but with demonstration of the Spirit and of power. And again, Who 2 Cor. 1, 22. hath also sealed us, and given us the earnest of the Spirit. Rom. 8, 11. And again, He that raised up Jesus from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by His Spirit which dwelleth in you. And again, writing to Timothy, That good thing which was committed to thee keep by the Holy Ghost which is given 2 Tim. 1, 14. to us. θεῖον, δὲ, εἶναι Cyr. ἵνα—to us.

33. And that the Holy Ghost subsists, and lives, and speaks, and foretells, I have often said already, and Paul ing in, 16.) writes it plainly to Timothy. Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the 1 Tim. 4, 1. faith,—which we see in the divisions not only of former times but of our own; so motley and diversified are the errors of the heretics. And again the same Paul says, Which in other Eph. 3, 5. ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto the Holy Apostles and Prophets by the Spirit. Heb. 3. And again, Wherefore, as the Holy Ghost saith; and again, 7.

The Holy Ghost also witnesseth to us. And again he calls ^{Heb. 10,} unto the champions of righteousness, saying, And take the ^{15.} helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the ^{Eph. 6,} Word of God, by all prayer and supplication. And again, And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled ^{Ib. 5, 18.} with the Spirit, speaking to yourselves in psalms, and hymns, ^{19.} and spiritual songs. And again, The grace of our Lord ^{2 Cor.} Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the ^{13, 14.} Holy Ghost.

34. By all these proofs, and by more which have been passed over, is the personal, and hallowing, and effectual ^{ἐνυπό-} ^{στατος.} power of the Holy Ghost established to them of understanding; for the time would fail my discourse, did I set about alleging what yet remains from the fourteen Epistles of Paul, wherein he has taught with such variety, completeness, and piety. And to the power of the Holy Ghost it must belong, to grant to us forgiveness for our deficiencies by reason of the scanty of the time, and upon you the hearers to impress the more perfect knowledge of what yet remains; while from the frequent reading of the sacred Scriptures you who are diligent come to understand these things, and by this time hold more stedfastly, both from these present Lectures, and what has before been told you, the Faith in the “One God the Father Almighty; and in our Lord Jesus Christ, His Only-begotten Son; and in the Holy Ghost the Comforter.” Though the word itself, and the title of Spirit, is used widely in the sacred Scriptures,—for it is said of the Father, God is a Spirit, ^{John 4,} ^{24.} as it is written in the Gospel according to John; and of the Son, A Spirit before our face, Christ the Lord; and of the ^{Lam. 4,} ^{20.} Holy Ghost, the Comforter, the Holy Ghost, as was said;—yet the very arrangement of articles observed in the Faith, if religiously understood, disproves the error of Sabellius also. Now therefore return we to the point which now presses and is profitable to you.

35. Beware lest by any means thou come to the dispensers (17.) of Baptism, like Simon, in pretence, thy heart the while not seeking the truth. It is ours to warn, but it is thine to secure thyself. If by faith thou standest, blessed art thou; if thou ^{Rom.} hast fallen by unbelief, from this day forward cast away thine ^{11, 20.} unbelief, and take up an undoubting faith. For, at the season

LECT. XVII. of baptism, when thou goest to the Bishops, or Presbyters, or Deacons,—(for its grace is every where, in villages and in cities, on them of low as on them of high degree, on bondsmen and on freemen, for this grace is not of men, but the gift is from God through men,)—approach the Minister of Baptism, but approaching, think not of the face of him thou seest, but remember that Holy Ghost of whom we are now speaking. For He is present in readiness to seal thy soul, and He shall give thee that Seal at which evil spirits tremble, Eph. 1, a heavenly and sacred seal, as also it is written, In whom also 13. after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise.

vid. sup. Intro. Lect. 2. 36. Yet He tries the soul. He casts not pearls before swine; if thou pretend, though men baptize thee, the Holy Spirit will not. But if thou approach with faith, while men minister outwardly, the Holy Ghost bestows that which is unseen. Thou art coming to a great trial, to a great muster, in that one hour, which if thou throw away, thy disaster is irretrievable; but if thou be counted worthy of grace, thy soul will be illuminated, thou wilt receive a might which thou hadst not, thou wilt receive weapons terrible to the evil spirits; and if thou cast not away thine arms, but keep the Seal upon thy soul, no evil spirit will approach thee; for he will be cowed; for by the Spirit of God are the evil spirits cast out.

37. If thou believe, thou shalt not only receive remission of (18.) sins, but do also things which pass man's power. And mayest thou be worthy of the gift of prophecy also! For thou shalt receive grace according to the measure of thy capacity and not of my words; for I may possibly speak of but small things, yet thou mayest receive greater. For faith is a wide field. All thy life long will the Comforter abide with thee; He will care for thee, as for His own soldier, concerning thy goings out, and thy comings in, and thy plotting foes. And He will give gifts of grace of every kind, if thou grieve Him not by sin; Eph. 4, for it is written, And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, 30. whereby ye have been sealed unto the day of redemption. What then, beloved, is it to preserve grace? Be ye ready to receive grace, and when ye have received it, cast it not away.

38. And may the God of All, who spake by the Holy Ghost through the prophets, who sent Him forth upon the Apostles on the day of Pentecost, in this place, send Him forth at this time also upon you; and by Him keep us also, imparting His benefit in common to all of us, so that we may ever render up the fruits of the Holy Ghost, love, joy, peace, long- Gal. 5, suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, 22. 23. in Christ Jesus our Lord:—By whom and with whom, together with the Holy Ghost, be glory to the Father, both now, and ever, and for ever and ever. Amen.

LECTURE XVIII.

ON THE RESURRECTION OF THE FLESH, THE CATHOLIC CHURCH, AND THE LIFE EVERLASTING.

EZEKIEL xxxvii. 1.

The hand of the Lord was upon me, and carried me out in the Spirit of the Lord, and set me down in the midst of the valley which was full of bones.

LECT.
XVIII.

1. THE root of all good works is the hope of the Resurrection; for the expectation of recompence nerves the soul to good works. For labourers of every kind are ready to undergo toils, if they see their reward in prospect; but when men weary themselves for nought, their heart as well as their body sinks early. The soldier who expects a prize is ready for war, but no one is forward to die for a king who is indifferent about those who serve under him, and bestows no honours on their toils. In like manner every soul believing in the Resurrection, is, as is natural, careful of itself; but, disbelieving it, abandons itself to perdition. He who believes that his body shall remain to be raised again, is careful of his robe, and defiles it not with fornication; but he who disbelieves the Resurrection, gives himself to fornication, and misuses his own body, as though it were not his own. Faith therefore in the Resurrection of the dead, is a great doctrine and lesson of the Holy Catholic Church; a great and most necessary point gainsayed by many, but surely warranted by the truth. Greeks contradict it, Samaritans disbelieve it, heretics disparage it; the contradiction is manifold, but the truth is uniform.

v.Cat.iv.

2. Now Greeks and Samaritans together reason with us thus. The dead man falls, and moulders away, and is all turned into worms; and the worms perish also; so great is the decay and destruction, which is the portion of the body; how then is it to be raised? The shipwrecked are devoured by fishes, which are themselves devoured. Of them who fight with wild beasts, the very bones are ground to powder and consumed by bears and lions. Vultures and ravens feed on the flesh of the unburied dead, and then fly abroad over all the world; from what places then is the body brought together? For of the fowls who have devoured it, some may chance to die in India, some in Persia, some in the land of the Goths; other men again are consumed by fire, and their very ashes scattered by the rain or wind; whence is the body brought together again?

3. To thee, poor feeble man, India is far from the land of (2.) the Goths, and Spain from Persia; but to God who holds the whole earth in the hollow of His hand, all things are near at Isa. 40, hand. Impute not then weakness to God, from a comparison ^{12.} of thy feebleness, but rather dwell on His power. Moreover, does the sun, a small work of God, by one glance of his beams give warmth to the whole world; does the atmosphere, which God has made, encompass all things in the world; and is God then, who is the Creator both of the sun, and of the atmosphere, removed very far off from the earth? Imagine a mixture of seeds of different plants; (for as thou art weak as concerning the faith, the examples which I allege are such also;) and that these different seeds are contained in thy single hand; is it then to thee who art a man, a difficult or an easy matter to distinguish what is in thine hand, and to bring each seed together according to its nature, and to assign it to its own kind? Canst thou then distinguish between things in thine hand, and cannot God distinguish between the things in His hand, and assign them their proper place? Consider what I say; is it not impious to deny it?

4. Further, attend to the very principle of justice, and consider with thyself. Thou hast different sorts of servants; and some are good and some bad; thou honourest therefore the good, and smitest the bad. And if thou art a judge, to the good thou awardest praise, and to the transgressors, punishment. Is then justice by thee observed a mortal man;

LECT.
XVIII. and with God, who is the ever-enduring King of all, is there no retributive justice? To deny it is impious. For consider what I say. Many murderers die in their beds unpunished; where then is the righteousness of God? Yea, ofttimes a murderer guilty of fifty murders, is beheaded once; how then shall he suffer punishment for the forty and nine? Unless there is a judgment and a retribution after this world, thou chargest God with unrighteousness. Marvel not, however, because of the delay of judgment; no combatant is crowned or disgraced, till the contest is over, and no president of the games ever crowns men while yet striving, but he waits till all the combatants are finished, that then deciding between them, he may dispense the prizes and the chaplets. Even thus God also, so long as the strife in this world lasts, succours the just but partially, but afterwards He assigns to them their rewards fully.

- (3.) 5. But if, according to thee there is no resurrection of the dead, wherefore condemnest thou the violators of graves? For if the body perishes, and there is no resurrection to be hoped for, why does the violator of the tomb undergo punishment? Thou seest that though thou deny the resurrection with thy lips, there yet abides with thee an indestructible instinct in its behalf?

6. Further, does a tree after it has been cut down blossom again, and shall man not blossom again when cut down? And does the corn sown and reaped remain to the threshing floor, and shall man when reaped from this world not remain for the threshing? And do shoots of vine or other trees, when clean cut off and transplanted, come to life and bear fruit; and shall man then, for whose sake all these are, fall into the earth and not rise again? Comparing efforts, which is greater, to mould in the outset a statue which was not, or to recast it after the same model when fallen to pieces. Cannot God then, who created us out of nothing, raise us again, who are and who decay? But thou believest not what is written of the Resurrection, being a Greek: then from the analogy of nature consider these matters, and understand them from what is seen at this day. Wheat, it may be, or some other kind of grain, is sown; and when it is cast, it dies and rots, and is henceforth useless for food. But that which has rotted, springs up in verdure; and that which was cast small, springs up most beautiful. Now wheat was made for us; for wheat and all seeds were not created for themselves, but for our use; are things which were made for us quickened when they die, and do we for whom they were made, not spring up again after our death?

7. The season is now winter, as thou seest; the trees now stand as if they were dead: where are the leaves of the fig-tree? where are the clusters of the vine? These in winter time are dead, but in the spring green, and when the season is come, there is given them as it were a quickening from a state of death. For God, knowing thine unbelief, works a resurrection year by year in these visible things; that, beholding what happens to things inanimate, thou mayest believe concerning things animate and intelligent. Further, flies and bees are often drowned in water, yet after a while revive; and dormice, after remaining motionless during the winter, are restored in the summer, (for to thy low thoughts like ex-^{μυοζῶν γένν.}amples are offered,) and shall He who to irrational and despised creatures grants a supernatural life, not vouchsafe it to us, for whose sake He made them?

8. But the Greeks ask for a yet more evident resurrection, (4.) and say, that even if these creatures are raised, yet that they have not utterly mouldered away; and they require to see distinctly some creature rising again after complete decay. God knew men's unbelief, and provided for this purpose a bird, called a Phœnix^a. This bird, as Clement writes, and as ^{Clem.} many more relate, the only one of its race, going to the land of the ^{Rom. Ep. 1. c. 25.} Egyptians at revolutions of five hundred years, shews forth the Resurrection; and this, not in desert places, lest the mystery which comes to pass should remain unknown, but in a notable city^b, that men might even handle what they disbelieve. For it makes itself a nest of frankincense and myrrh and other spices, and entering into this when its years are fulfilled, it evidently dies and moulders away. Then from the mouldering flesh of the dead a worm springs, and this round the earth. In like manner the existence of megatheria and ichthyosauri were not known till lately, nor the connection of magnetism and electricity.

^a The existence of the Phœnix is believed by Tertullian, Epiphanius, &c. as well as by Clement; as was till a comparatively late date the doctrine of four elements, or of the motion of the sun

LECT. XVIII. worm when grown large is transformed into a bird;—and do not disbelieve this, for thou seest the offspring of bees also fashioned thus out of worms, and from eggs which are most moist thou hast seen the wings and bones and sinews of birds issue. Afterwards this Phœnix, becoming fledged and a perfect Phœnix, as was the former one, soars up into the air such as it had died, shewing forth to men a most evident resurrection from the dead. The Phœnix indeed is a wondrous bird, yet it is irrational, nor sings psalms to God; it flies abroad through the sky, but it knows not the Only-begotten Son of God. Is then a resurrection from the dead given unto this irrational creature which knows not its Maker, and to us who ascribe glory to God and keep His commandments, shall there no resurrection be granted?

- (5.) 9. But since the sign of the Phœnix is remote and uncommon, and men disbelieve our resurrection still, take again the proof of this from what is seen every day. A hundred or two hundred years ago, we all, speakers and hearers, where were we? Know we not the groundwork of the substance of our bodies? Knowest thou not how from weak and shapeless and simple elements we have our beginning, and that from what is simple and weak is shaped the living man? and how that weak element being made flesh is changed into strong nerves, and bright eyes, and sensitive nose, and hearing ears, and speaking tongue, and beating heart, and busy hands, and swift feet, and into members of all kinds? and how weak elements become a shipwright, and a mason, and a master-builder, and a craftsman of various arts, and a soldier, and a ruler, and a lawgiver, and a king? Cannot God then, who has made us of rude materials, raise us up when we have fallen into decay? He who frames a body out of what is vile, cannot He raise it again when destroyed? And does not He who fashions that which is not, raise up that which is and is fallen?

10. Take further a manifest proof of the resurrection of the dead, witnessed month by month in the sky and its luminaries. The face of the moon vanishes completely, so that no part of it is any more seen, yet it fills again, and is restored to its former state; and for the perfect demonstration of the matter, the moon at certain revolutions of years suffering eclipse and becoming changed into blood, yet recovers its luminous body: God having provided this, that thou, O man, who art formed of blood, mightest not refuse credence to the resurrection of the dead, but mightest believe concerning thyself also what thou beholdest in respect of the moon. These arguments therefore use thou against the Greeks; for with them who receive not what is written, fight thou with unwritten weapons, by reasonings only and demonstrations, for these men know not who Moses is, nor Esaias, nor the Gospels, nor Paul.

11. Turn now to the Samaritans, who, receiving the Law (6.) only, allow not the Prophets. To them the text just now read from Ezekiel appears of no force, for, as I said, they admit not the Prophets; whence then shall we persuade the Samaritans also? Let us go to the writings of the Law. Now God says to Moses, I am the God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob; this must mean of what is and subsists. For ^{Exod. 3,} if Abraham be dead, and Isaac, and Jacob, He is the God of ^{6.} nothing. <sup>ὁφίστη-κότων.</sup> When did a king ever say, that he was the king of soldiers whom he had not? When did any display wealth of which he was not the owner? Therefore Abraham and Isaac and Jacob must truly subsist, that God may be the <sup>ὁφίσταναι.</sup> God of things which are; for He said not, "I was their God," but I am. And that there is a judgment, Abraham shews, saying to the Lord, He who judgeth the earth, shall He not <sup>Gen. 18, 25. Sept.</sup> execute judgment?

12. But to this the foolish Samaritans answer by way of objection, that the souls possibly of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob continue, but that it is impossible that their bodies should arise. Was it then possible that the rod of righteous Moses should become a serpent, and is it impossible that the bodies of the righteous should live and rise again? And was that done contrary to its nature, and shall they not be restored according to their nature? Again, the rod of Aaron, though cut off and dead, budded, without the scent of waters, sprouting ^{Job 14,} forth into blossoms as in the fields, though under a roof; and ^{9.} though set in dry places, yielding in one night the flowers and fruit of plants watered for many years. Did Aaron's rod, as it were, rise from the dead, and shall not Aaron himself be raised? And did God work wonders in wood, to secure to LECT. XVIII. him the high-priesthood, and will He not vouchsafe to Aaron himself a resurrection? A woman also was made salt contrary to nature; and flesh was turned into salt; and shall not flesh be restored to flesh? Was Lot's wife made a pillar of salt, and shall not Abraham's wife be raised again? By what power was Moses' hand changed, which in one hour became as snow, and then was restored? Simply by God's command. Had it force then, has it not force now?

13. And whence in the beginning came man into being at all, O ye Samaritans, most shallow of men? Go to the first book of the Scripture, which even you receive; And the Lord Gen. 2, 7. God formed man of the dust of the ground. Is dust transformed into flesh, and shall not flesh be again restored to flesh? You must be asked too, whence the heavens had their being, and the earth, and the seas? Whence the sun, and the moon, and the stars? How from the waters were made things which fly and swim? And how from the earth all beasts? Were so many thousands brought from nothing into being, and shall we men, who bear God's image, not be raised up? Truly this course is mere unbelief, and an ample condemnation of the unbelievers; considering Abraham addresses the Lord as the Judge of all the earth, and the learners of the Law, disbelieve when it is written that man is of the earth, and the readers disbelieve it also.

(7.) 14. To them therefore, the unbelievers, we say these things; but the words of the Prophets are for us, who believe. But since some who also use the Prophets believe not what is

Ps. 1, 5. written, and allege against us that passage, The ungodly shall Sept. not rise up in judgment, and, He that goeth down to the Job 7, 9. grave shall come up no more, and, The dead praise not Thee, Ps. 115, 17. O Lord,—using ill, what is written well,—it will be well in (Prayer Book.) a cursory manner, as far as is now possible, to meet them.

For if it is said, that the ungodly shall not rise up in judgment, this shews that they shall rise, not in judgment, but in condemnation; for God needs not long scrutiny, but close on the resurrection of the ungodly follows their punishment. And if it is said, The dead praise not Thee, O Lord, this shews, that since in this life only is the appointed time for repentance and pardon, for which they who enjoy it shall praise the Lord, it remains after death for them who have died in sins, not to give praise as the receivers of a blessing, but to bewail themselves; for praise belongs to them who give thanks, but to them who are under the scourge, lamentation. Therefore the just shall then offer praise; but they who have died in sins will have no further season for acknowledgment.

15. And respecting that passage, He that goeth down to the grave shall come up no more, observe what follows, He shall return no more to his house, neither shall his place know him any more. For since the whole world shall pass away, and every house shall be destroyed, how shall he return to his own house, there being henceforth a new earth? But they ought to have heard Job, saying, For there is hope of a tree, if it be cut down, that it will sprout again, and that the tender branch thereof will not cease. Though the root thereof wax old in the earth, and the stock thereof die in the ground; yet through the scent of water it will bud, and bring forth boughs like a plant. And man when he dies, departeth; but when mortal man falls, is he no longer? As it were remonstrating and reproving; (for thus ought we to read the words, with an interrogation;) for since a tree falls and revives, he says, shall not man revive, for whom all trees were made? And that thou mayest not suppose that I am forcing the words, read what follows; for after saying by way of question, When mortal man falls, is he no longer? he says, If a man die, he shall live again; and immediately he adds, I will wait till my change come; and again elsewhere, Who shall raise up on the earth my skin, which endures these things. And Esaias the Prophet says, Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. And the Prophet Ezekiel, now before us, says most plainly, Behold, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves. And Daniel says, Many that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

16. And many Scriptures are there which testify the Resurrection of the dead; for there are other and many more sayings on this matter. But now, by way of remembrance only, we will make a passing mention of the raising of Lazarus after four days; and just allude, because of the shortness of the time, to the widow's son also who was raised. Now also let me just remind you of the ruler's daughter; and mention the rending of the rocks, and how there arose many bodies of the saints which slept, their graves having been opened. But specially let us call to mind that Christ was raised from the dead. I speak but in passing of Elias, and the widow's son whom he raised; of Elisseus also, who raised the dead twice; once when living, and once after his death. For when alive he wrought the resurrection by means of his soul; but that not the souls only of the just might be honoured, but that it might be believed that in the bodies also of the just there is power, the corpse which was thrown into the grave of Elisseus, when it touched the dead body of the prophet, was quickened, and the dead body of the prophet did the work of the soul, and that which was dead and buried gave life to the dead, and while imparting life, yet continued itself among the dead. Wherefore? Lest if Elisseus should rise again, the work should be ascribed to his soul alone; and to shew, that even though the soul is not present, a virtue resides in the body of the saints, because of the righteous soul which has for so many years tenanted it, and used it as its minister. And let us not foolishly disbelieve, as though this thing had not happened; for if handkerchiefs and aprons, which are from without, touching the bodies of the diseased, have raised up the sick, how much more should the body itself of the Prophet raise the dead?

- (9.) 17. And with respect to these instances we might say much, rehearsing in detail the marvellous circumstances of each event; but as you have been already wearied both by the prolonged fast of the Preparation, and by the watchings, let what has been cursorily spoken concerning them suffice for a while; these words having been as it were sown thinly, that you, receiving the seed like richest ground, may in bearing fruit increase them. But be it remembered, that the Apostles also raised the dead; Peter raised Tabitha in Joppa, and Paul raised Eutychus in Troas; and thus did all the Apostles, even though the wonders wrought by each have not all been written. Further, remember all that is said in the first Epistle to the Corinthians, which Paul wrote against them who said, How are the dead raised, and with what body do they come? And how he says, For if the dead rise not, then

1 Cor.

is not Christ raised; and how he called them fools, who ver. 36. believed not; and remember the whole of his teaching there concerning the resurrection of the dead, and how he wrote to the Thessalonians, But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope, and all that follows: 1 Thess. 4, 13. but chiefly that, And the dead in Christ shall rise first. ver. 16.

18. But especially mark this, how very pointedly Paul says, For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. For this body shall be raised, not remaining weak as now; raised, I say, the very same body, but putting on incorruption it shall be fashioned anew,—as iron blending with fire becomes fire, or rather as He knows how, the Lord who raises us. This body therefore shall be raised, but it shall abide not such as it now is, but an eternal body; no longer needing for its life nourishment as now, nor stairs for its ascent, for it shall be made spiritual, a marvellous thing, such as we cannot worthily speak of. Then, v. Mat. 13, 43. it is said, shall the righteous shine forth as the sun, and the moon, and as the brightness of the firmament. And God, cf. Dan. 12, 3. foreknowing men's unbelief, has given to little worms in the summer to dart beams of light from their body, that from what is seen, that which is looked for might find credence; for He who gives in part is able to give the whole also, and He who makes the worm radiant with light, will much more illuminate a righteous man.

19. We shall be raised therefore, all with our bodies eternal, (10.) but not all with bodies alike: for if a man is righteous, he will receive a heavenly body, that he may be able duly to hold converse with Angels; but if a man is a sinner, he shall receive an eternal body, fitted to endure the pains of sins, that it may burn eternally in fire, nor ever be consumed. And righteously will God assign this portion to either company; for we do nothing without the body. We blaspheme with the mouth, and with the mouth we pray. With the body we commit fornication, and with the body we keep our chastity. With the hand we rob, and by the hand we bestow alms; and in like manner the rest. Since then the body has been our minister in all things, it shall also share with us what befalls us hereafter.

LECT.
XVIII.

20. Therefore, brethren, let us be tender of our bodies, nor let us misuse them as though not our own. Let us not say like the heretics, that this vesture of the body belongs not to us^c, but let us be careful of it as our own; for we must give account to the Lord of all things done through the body. Say not, no one sees me; think not that there is no witness of the deed. Human witness oftentimes there is not; but He who fashioned us, an unerring witness, abides faithful in heaven, and beholds what thou doest. And the stains of sin remain in the body; for as when a wound has gone deep into the body, the scar remains even after healing, even so sin wounds soul and body, and the marks of its scars remain in all; and they are effaced only by receiving the Baptismal laver. The past wounds therefore of soul and body God heals by Baptism; against future ones let us one and all jointly guard ourselves, that keeping the vestment of the body pure, we may not by fornication and sensual indulgence or other sin for a short season, lose the salvation of heaven, but may inherit the eternal kingdom of God;—which may God vouchsafe to all of you of His own grace.

(11.) 21. Thus much in proof of the Resurrection of the dead; and now recite ye and go through with all diligence word by word the profession of the faith, when I have again said it to you.

22. The Faith which we rehearse contains in order the following, “And in one Baptism of repentance for the remission of sins; and in one Holy Catholic Church; and in the resurrection of the flesh; and in eternal life.” Now of Baptism and repentance I have spoken in the foregoing Lectures; and my present remarks concerning the resurrection of the dead have been made with reference to the Article “In the resurrection of the flesh.” Now then let me finish what remains to be said, in consequence of the Article, “In one Holy Catholic Church,” on which, though one might say many things, we will speak but briefly.

23. Now it is called Catholic because it is throughout the world, from one end of the earth to the other; and because it teaches universally and completely one and all the doctrines which ought to come to men's knowledge, concerning things both visible and invisible, heavenly and earthly ; and because it subjugates in order to godliness every class of men, ὑποτάσσ-governors and governed, learned and unlearned ; and because σιν εἰς.

it universally treats and heals every sort of sins, which are committed by soul or body, and possesses in itself every form of virtue which is named, both in deeds and words, and in every kind of spiritual gifts.

24. And it is rightly named Church, because it calls forth ἐκκληand assembles together all men ; according as the Lord says σία, asin Leviticus, And assemble thou all the congregation to the v. Heb.
doors of the tabernacle of witness. And it is to be noted, that 12, 23.
the word assemble, is used for the first time in the Scriptures Lev. 8, 3.
here, at the time when the Lord puts Aaron into the High- Sept.
priesthood. And in Deuteronomy the Lord says to Moses, ἐκκλη-Assemble to Me the people, and I will make them hear My σίασεν.
words, that they shall learn to fear Me. And he again mentions Deut. 4, the name of the Church, when he says concerning the Tables, 10.
And on them was written according to all the words which Deut. 9, the Lord spake with you in the mount out of the midst of the 10. ἐκfire in the day of the Assembly ; as if he had said more plainly, κλη-in the day in which ye were called and gathered together by σίας or God. And the Psalmist says, I will give thee thanks in the Church.
great Assembly ; I will praise thee among much people. Ps. 35, 18.
v. Heb.
2, 12.

25. Of old the Psalmist sung, Bless ye God in the Church, Ps. 68, even the Lord, from the fountain of Israel. But since the 26.
Jews for their evil designs against the Saviour have been cast away from grace, the Saviour has built out of the Gentiles a second Holy Church, the Church of us Christians, concerning which He said to Peter, And upon this rock I will build My Mat. 16, Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And 18.
David prophesying of both, said plainly of the first which was rejected, I have hated the Church of the evil doers ; but of the Ps. 26, 5.
second which is built up he says in the same Psalm, Lord, I ver. 8.
have loved the habitation of Thine house ; and immediately afterwards, In the Churches will I bless the Lord. For now ver. 12. that the one Church in Judæa is cast off, the Churches of Christ are increased throughout the world ; and of them it is said, Sing unto the Lord a new song, and His praise in the Ps. 149, Church of the Saints. Agreeably to which the Prophet also ¹.

LECT. XVIII. said to the Jews, I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of Hosts; and immediately afterwards, For from the rising of the sun even unto the going down of the same, My name shall be great among the Gentiles. Concerning this Holy Catholic Church Paul writes to Timothy, That thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the Church of the Living God, the pillar and ground of the truth.

26. But since the word Church or Assembly is applied to different things, (as also it is written of the multitude in the theatre of the Ephesians, And when he had thus spoken, he dismissed the Assembly, and since one might properly and truly say that there is a Church of the evil doers, I mean the meetings of the heretics, the Marcionists and Manichees, and the rest,) the Faith has delivered to thee by way of security the Article, “And in One Holy Catholic Church;” that thou mayest avoid their wretched meetings, and ever abide with the Holy Church Catholic in which thou wast regenerated. And if ever thou art sojourning in any city, inquire not simply where the Lord’s House is, (for the sects of the profane also make an attempt to call their own dens, houses of the Lord,) nor merely where the Church is, but where is the Catholic Church. For this is the peculiar name of this Holy Body, the mother of us all, which is the spouse of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Only-begotten Son of God, (for it is written, As Christ also loved the Church, and gave Himself for it, and all the rest,) and is a figure and copy of Jerusalem above, which is free, and the mother of us all; which before was barren, but now has many children.

27. For when the first Church was cast off, God, in the second, which is the Catholic Church, hath set first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues, and every sort of virtue; I mean wisdom and understanding, temperance and justice, alms-doing and loving-kindness, and patience unconquerable in persecutions. She, by the armour of righteousness on the right hand and on the left, by honour and dishonour, in former days amid persecutions and tribulations crowned the holy martyrs with the varied and blooming chaplets of patience, and now in times of peace by God's grace receives her due honours from princes and nobles, and from every rank and kindred of man. And while the kings of particular nations have bounds set to their dominion, the Holy Church Catholic alone extends her illimitable sovereignty over the whole world; for God, as it is Ps. 147, written, hath made her border peace. But I should need 14. Sept. many more hours for my discourse, would I speak of all things which concern her.

28. In this Holy Catholic Church receiving instruction and (13.) behaving ourselves virtuously, we shall attain the kingdom of heaven, and inherit eternal life; for which also we endure all toils, that we may be made partakers of it from the Lord. For ours is no trifling aim; eternal life is our object of pursuit. Wherefore in the profession of the Faith, after the words, "And in the resurrection of the flesh," that is, of the dead, (of which we have discoursed,) we are taught to believe, "And in the life everlasting," for which as Christians we are striving.

29. The Father is the real and true life; and He through the Son in the Holy Spirit pours forth as from a fountain His heavenly gifts to all; for through His love to man, the blessings of everlasting life are promised without fail even to us men. We must not disbelieve the possibility of this, but having an eye not to our own weakness but to His power, we must believe; for with God all things are possible. And that this is possible, and that we may look for everlasting life, Daniel declares, And they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever. And Paul says, And so shall we be ever with the Lord: now the being for ever with the Lord Dan. 12, 3. (v. Sept.) 1 Thess. 4, 17. implies life everlasting. But most plainly of all the Saviour Himself says in the Gospel, And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal. Mat. 25, 46.

30. And many are the proofs concerning the life everlasting. And when we desire to gain this eternal life, the sacred Scriptures suggest to us the ways of gaining it; of which, because of the length of our discourse, the texts we set before you shall be but few, the rest being left to the search of the diligent. They declare at one time that it is by faith; for it is written, He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, John 3, 36. and what follows; and again He says Himself, Verily, John 5, 24.

LXXCT. verily, I say unto you, He that heareth My words, and XVIII. believeth on Him that sent Me, hath everlasting life, and the rest. At another time, it is by the preaching of the Gospel; John 4, for He says, that He that reapeth receiveth wages, and
 36. gathereth fruit unto life eternal. At another time, by mar-John 12, tyrdom and confession in Christ's name; for He says, And
 25. he that hateth his life in this world, shall keep it unto life eternal. And again, by preferring Christ to riches or kindred; Mat. 19, And every one that hath forsaken brethren, or sisters, and
 29. the rest, shall inherit everlasting life. Moreover it is by
 v. Mat. keeping the commandments, Thou shalt not commit adultery, 19, 16— Thou shalt not kill, and the rest which follow; as He
 18. answered to him that came to Him, and said, Good Master,
 v. also what shall I do that I may have eternal life? Further, it is Mark by departing from evil works, and henceforth serving God;
 10, 17. for Paul says, But now being made free from sin, and become
 Rom. 6, servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end
 22. everlasting life.

31. And the ways of finding eternal life are many, though I have passed over them by reason of their number. For God in His loving-kindness has opened, not one or two only, but many doors, by which to enter into the life everlasting, that, as far as lay in Him, all might enjoy it without hindrance. Thus much have we for the present spoken within compass concerning the life everlasting, which is the last doctrine of those professed in the Faith, and its termination; which may we all, both teachers and hearers, by God's grace enjoy!

(14.) 32. It remains, brethren beloved, to exhort you all by the word of teaching, to prepare your souls for the reception of the heavenly gifts. As regards the Holy and Apostolic Faith delivered to you to profess, we have spoken as many Lectures, as was possible, in the past days of Lent; not that this is all we ought to have said, for our omissions are many; and these perchance have been thought out better by more excellent teachers. And now the holy day of Easter is at hand, and
 Tit. 3, 5. your love in Christ is to be illuminated by the Laver of regeneration. Ye shall therefore again be taught what is requisite, if God so will; with how great piety and order you must enter in when summoned, for what purpose each of the holy mysteries of Baptism is performed, and with what reverence and order you must go from Baptism to the Holy Altar of God, and enjoy its spiritual and heavenly mysteries; that your souls being previously illuminated by the word of doctrine, ye may discover the greatness of each particular gift bestowed on you by God.

33. And after the Holy and Salutory Day of Easter, beginning from the second day of the week, ye shall come all the days of the following week after the assembly into the Holy Place of the Resurrection, and there ye shall hear other Lectures, if God permit; in which ye shall again be taught the reasons of every thing which has been done, and shall receive the proofs thereof from the Old and New Testaments,—first, of the things done just before Baptism,—next, how ye have been cleansed from your sins by the Lord, with the washing of water by the word,—and how by being Priests ye have become partakers of Christ's Name,—and how the Seal of the fellowship of the Holy Ghost has been given you,—and concerning the mysteries at the Altar of the New Testament, which had their beginning in this place, what the Divine Scriptures have delivered to us, and what is the power of these mysteries, and how ye must approach them, and when and how receive them;—and finally, how for the time to come ye must behave yourselves worthily of this grace both in works and words, that you may all be enabled to enjoy the life everlasting. And these things shall be spoken, if it be God's pleasure.

34. Finally, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord alway; and again I say, Rejoice: for your redemption hath drawn nigh, Phil. 3, 1. and 4, 4. and the heavenly host of the Angels is waiting for your salvation. And there is now the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord; v. Luke 21, 28. and the Prophet Is. 40, 3. cries, Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters; and Is. 55, 1. immediately afterwards, Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness. v. 2. And within a little while ye shall hear that excellent lesson which says, Be light, be light, O thou new Jerusalem; for thy light is come. Is. 60, 1. Of this Jerusalem the prophet Sept. (v. marg.) hath said, And afterwards thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, the faithful city Zion; for out of Zion shall Is. 1, 26. Is. 2, 3.

LECT. XVIII. go forth the law, and out of Jerusalem the word of the Lord, which from hence has been showered down on the whole world. To her the Prophet also says concerning you, Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold thy children gathered together; and she answers, saying, Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as doves with their young ones to me? (She calls them, clouds, because of their spiritual nature, and doves, from their purity.) And again she says, Who hath heard such a thing? who hath seen such things? shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? or shall a nation be born at once? for as soon as Zion travailed, she brought forth her children. And all things shall be filled with joy ineffable, because of the Lord who hath said, Behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy.

35. And may these words also apply to you, and at this time, Sing, O heavens, and be joyful, O earth; for the Lord hath comforted His people, and will have mercy on His afflicted. And this shall come to pass through the loving-kindness of God, who says to you, I will blot out as a cloud thy transgressions, and as a thick cloud thy sins. But ye who have been counted worthy of the name of Faithful, (of whom it is written, The Lord God shall call His servants by another name which shall be blessed on the earth,) ye shall say with gladness, Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ; in whom we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of His grace, and what follows; and again, But God who is rich in mercy, for His great love wherewith He loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, and the rest. And again in like manner praise ye the Lord of all good things, saying, But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour towards man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we had done, but according to His mercy He saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, which He shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour, that being justified by His grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life. And may God Himself and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of Him, the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; and keep you ever in good works and words and thoughts:—To whom be glory and honour and might through our Lord Jesus Christ with the Holy Ghost now and ever, and for all the infinite ages of eternity. Amen.

CATECHETICAL LECTURES

S. CYRIL,

ARCHBISHOP OF JERUSALEM,

ADDRESSED TO PERSONS RECENTLY BAPTIZED, CONCERNING THE SACRED MYSTERIES.

LECTURE XIX.

(ON THE MYSTERIES. I.)

ON THE RITES BEFORE BAPTISM.

1 PET. v. 8—14.

Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour, &c.

LECT.
XIX.
Myst. 1. 1. I LONG ago desired, true-born and dearly beloved children of the Church, to discourse to you concerning these spiritual and heavenly Mysteries; but knowing well, that seeing is far more persuasive than hearing, I waited till this season; that finding you more open to the influence of my words from this your experience, I might take and lead you to the brighter and more fragrant meadow of this present paradise; especially as ye have been made fit to receive the more sacred Mysteries, having been counted worthy of divine and life-giving Baptism. It remaining therefore to dress for you a board of more perfect instruction, let us now teach you exactly about these things, that ye may know the deep meaning to you-ward of what was done on that evening of your Baptism^a.

^a On Easter Eve, which was the most common time of Baptism, vid. Bingham. Antiqu. xi. 6. §. 7.

2. First, ye entered into the outer hall of the Baptistery, (2.) and there facing towards the West ye heard the command to stretch forth your hand, and as in the presence of Satan ye renounced him. Now ye must know that this figure is found in ancient history. For when Pharaoh, that most cruel and ruthless tyrant, oppressed the free and high-born people of the Hebrews, God sent Moses to bring them out of the evil thralldom of the Egyptians. Then the door-posts were anointed with the blood of the lamb, that the destroyer might flee from the houses which had the sign of the blood; and the Hebrew people was marvellously delivered. The enemy, however, after their rescue, pursued them, and saw the sea wondrously parted for them; nevertheless he went on, following in their footsteps, and was all at once overwhelmed and engulfed in the Red Sea.

3. Now turn from the ancient to the recent, from the figure to the reality. There we have Moses sent from God to Egypt; here, Christ sent by His Father into the world: there, that Moses might lead forth an oppressed people out of Egypt; here, that Christ might rescue mankind who are whelmed under sins: there, the blood of a lamb was the spell against the destroyer; here, the blood of the unblemished Lamb Jesus Christ is made the charm to scare evil spirits: there, the tyrant pursued even to the sea that ancient people; and in like manner this daring and shameless spirit, the author of evil, followed thee, even to the very streams of salvation. The tyrant of old was drowned in the sea; and this present one disappears in the salutary water.

4. However, thou art bidden with arm outstretched to say to him as though actually present, "I renounce thee, Satan." I wish to say, wherefore ye stand facing to the West; for it is necessary. Since the West is the region of sensible darkness, and he being darkness, has his dominion also in darkness, ye therefore, looking with a symbolical meaning towards the West, renounce that dark and gloomy potentate. What then did each of you standing up say? "I renounce thee, Satan," thou wicked and most cruel tyrant! meaning, "I fear thy might no longer; for Christ hath overthrown it, having partaken with me of flesh and blood, that through these He might by death destroy death, that I might not for ever be LECT. XIX. Myst. 1. subject to bondage. I renounce thee, thou crafty and most subtle serpent. I renounce thee, plotter as thou art, who under the guise of friendship didst work all disobedience, and bring about the apostasy of our first parents. I renounce thee, Satan, the artificer and abettor of all wickedness."

(3.) 5. Then in the second sentence thou art told to say, "and all thy works." Now the works of Satan are all sin, which it is necessary to renounce also;—just as if a man has escaped a tyrant, he would have doubtless escaped his instruments also. All sin therefore, according to its kinds, is included in the works of the devil. Only know this; that all that thou sayest, especially at that most thrilling hour, is written in God's books; when therefore thou doest any thing contrary to these, thou shalt be judged as a transgressor. Thou renouncest therefore the works of Satan; I mean, all deeds and thoughts which are against thy better judgment.

6. Then thou sayest, "And all his pomp." Now the pomp of the devil is the madness of shows, and horse-races, and hunting, and all such vanity: from which that holy man praying to be delivered, says unto God, Turn away mine eyes from beholding vanity. Be not interested in the madness of the shows, where thou wilt behold the wanton gestures of players, carried on with mockeries and all unseemliness, and the frantic dancing of effeminate men;—nor in the madness of them who in hunts expose themselves to wild beasts, that they may pamper their miserable appetite; who, that they may indulge their belly with meats, become themselves truly meat for the belly of ravenous beasts; and to speak justly, they for the sake of their proper god, their belly, cast away their life headlong in single combats. Shun also horse-races, that frantic spectacle, which subverts souls. For all these are the pomp of the devil.

7. Moreover, things also hung up at idol festivals, either meat or bread, or other such things which are polluted by the invocation of the unclean spirits, are reckoned in the pomp of the devil. For as the Bread and Wine of the Eucharist before the holy invocation of the Adorable Trinity was simple bread and wine, while after the invocation the Bread becomes the Body of Christ, and the Wine the Blood of Christ, so in like manner, such meats belonging to the pomp of Satan, though in their own nature plain and simple, become profane by the invocation of the evil spirit.

8. And after this thou sayest, “and all thy service.” Now (5.) the service of the devil is prayer in idol temples; things done to the honour of lifeless idols; the lighting of lamps, or burning of incense by fountains or rivers, (for some cheated by dreams or by evil spirits, have passed to these places, thinking to find a cure even for their bodily ailments,) and the like. Go not therefore after them. The watching of birds, divination, omens, or amulets, or charms written on leaves, sorceries, or other evil arts, and all such things, are services to the devil; therefore shun them. For if after renouncing Satan and ranging thyself with Christ, thou fall under their influence, thou shalt find the tyrant more bitter in his temptations; perchance, because he treated thee of old as his own, and has let thee off from severe slavery, and has been greatly exasperated against thee; so thou wilt be bereaved of Christ, and be tempted by him. Hast thou not heard the old history which tells us of Lot and his daughters? Was not he himself saved with his daughters, because he gained the mountain, while his wife became a pillar of salt, set up as a beacon for ever, as the memorial of her depraved will and her turning back. Take heed therefore to thyself, and turn not again to what is behind, going back after having put thine hand to the plough, to the salt savour of this life’s doings; but escape to the mountain, to Jesus Christ, that stone hewn without hands, which has filled the world. Phil. 3, 13.
v. Dan. 2, 35.

9. When therefore thou renouncest Satan, utterly breaking (6.) all covenant with him, that ancient league with hell, there is opened to thee the paradise of God, which He planted towards the East, whence for his transgression our first father was exiled; and symbolical of this was thy turning from the West to the East, the place of light. Then thou wert told to say, I believe in the Father, and in the Son, and in the Holy Ghost, and in one Baptism of repentance. Of which things we spoke at length in the former Lectures, as God’s grace allowed us.

10. Therefore, guarded by these considerations, be sober. For our adversary the devil, as was just now read, as a ¹ roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour. ^{8.} 1 Pet. 5.

 But if God will, when in the succeeding expositions of the plished. Now to God the Father, with the Son and the LECTURE XX.

(ON THE MYSTERIES. II.)

ON THE RITE OF BAPTISM.

ROM. vi. 3—14.

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into His death? &c. . . . for ye are not under the Law, but under grace.

1. THESE introductions into the Mysteries day by day, and these new instructions, which are the announcements of new truths, are profitable to us; and most of all to you, who have been renewed from oldness to newness. Therefore, as is necessary, I will lay before you the sequel of yesterday's Lecture, that ye may learn of what those things, which were done by you in the inner chamber, were the emblems.

2. As soon, therefore, as ye entered in, ye put off your (2.) garment; and this was an image of putting off the old man Col. 3, 9. with his deeds. Having stripped yourselves, ye were naked; in this also imitating Christ, who hung naked on the Cross, and by His nakedness spoiled principalities and powers, and Col. 2, openly triumphed over them on the tree. For since the ^{15.} powers of the enemy made their lair in your members, ye may no longer wear that old vestment; I do not at all mean this visible one, but that old man, which is corrupt according αἰσθητόν. to the deceitful lusts. May no soul which has once put him ^{Eph. 4,} off, again put him on, but say with the Spouse of Christ in the ^{22.} Song of Songs, I have put off my coat, how shall I put it on? Cant. 5, O wondrous thing! ye were naked in the sight of all, and ^{3.} were not ashamed; for truly ye bore the likeness of the first-formed Adam, who was naked in the garden, and was not ashamed.

3. Then, when ye were stripped, ye were anointed with (3.) exorcised oil, from the very hairs of your head, to your feet,

LECT. XX. and were made partakers of the good olive-tree, Jesus Christ.
 Myst. 2. For ye were cut off from the wild olive-tree, and grafted into the good one, and were made to share the fatness of the true olive-tree. The exorcised oil therefore was a symbol of the participation of the fatness of Christ, the charm to drive away every trace of hostile influence. For as the breathing of the saints, and the invocation of the Name of God, like fiercest flame, scorch and drive out evil spirits, so also this exorcised oil receives such virtue by the invocation of God and by prayer, as not only to burn and cleanse away the traces of sins, but also to chase away all the invisible powers of the evil one.

Introd.
 Lect. ix.

- (4.) 4. After these things, ye were led to the holy pool of Divine Baptism, as Christ was carried from the Cross to the Sepulchre which is before our eyes. And each of you was asked, whether he believed in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and ye made that saving confession, and descended three times^a into the water, and ascended again; here also covertly pointing by a figure at the three-days burial of Christ. For as our Saviour passed three days and three nights in the heart of the earth, so you also in your first ascent out of the water, represented the first day of Christ in the earth, and by your descent, the night; for as he who is in the night, sees no more, but he who is in the day, remains in the light, so in descending, ye saw nothing as in the night, but in ascending again, ye were as in the day. And at the self-same moment, ye died and were born; and that Water of salvation was at once your grave and your mother. And what Solomon spoke of others will suit you also; for he said, There is a time to bear and a time to die; but to you, on the contrary, the time to die is also the time to be born; and one and the same season brings about both of these, and your birth went hand in hand with your death.

Eccles.

- (5.) 5. O strange and inconceivable thing! we did not really die, we were not really buried, we were not really crucified and raised again; but our imitation was but in a figure, while our salvation is in reality. Christ was actually crucified, and actually buried, and truly rose again; and all these things have been vouchsafed to us, that we, by imitation communicating in His sufferings, might gain salvation in reality. O surpassing loving-kindness! Christ received the nails in His undefiled hands and feet, and endured anguish; while to me without suffering or toil, by the fellowship of His pain He vouchsafes salvation.

6. Let no one then suppose that Baptism is merely the grace of remission of sins, or further, that of adoption; as John's baptism bestowed only the remission of sins. Nay we know full well, that as it purges our sins, and conveys to us the gift of the Holy Ghost, so also it is the counterpart of Christ's sufferings. For for this cause Paul, just now read, cries aloud and says, Know ye not that as many of us as were baptized into Christ Jesus, were baptized into His death? Therefore we are buried with Him by baptism into death. These words he spake to them who had settled with themselves that Baptism ministers to us the remission of sins, and adoption, but not that further it has communion also in representation with Christ's true sufferings.

7. In order therefore that we may learn, that whatsoever things Christ endured, He suffered them for us and our salvation, and that, in reality and not in appearance, we also are made partakers of His sufferings. Paul cried with all exactness of truth, For if we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection. Well has he said, planted together. For since the true Vine was planted in this place, we also by partaking in the Baptism of death, have been planted together with Him. And fix thy mind with much attention on the words of the Apostle. He has not said, "For if we have been planted together in His death," but, in the likeness of His death. For upon Christ death came in reality, for His soul was truly separated from His body; and His burial was true, for His holy body was wrapt in pure linen; and every thing happened to Him truly; but in your case only the likeness of death and sufferings, whereas of salvation, not the likeness, but the reality.

8. Of these things then having been sufficiently instructed, keep them, I beseech you, in your remembrance; that I also, unworthy though I be, may say of you, Now I love you, brethren, because ye remember me in all things, and keep the

(ON THE MYSTERIES. III.)

ON THE HOLY CHRISM.

1 JOHN ii. 20—28.

But ye have an unction from the Holy One, &c. . . . that, when He shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before Him at His coming.

1. HAVING been baptized into Christ, and put on Christ, ye Gal. 3, have been made conformable to the Son of God; for God having²⁷ predestinated us to the adoption of sons, made us share the Eph. 1, 5. fashion of Christ's glorious body. Being therefore made par- Phil. 3, 21. takers of Christ, ye are properly called Christs, and of you Heb. 3, 14. God said, Touch not My Christs, or anointed. Now ye were Ps. 105, 15. made Christs, by receiving the emblem of the Holy Ghost; and all things were in a figure wrought in you, because ye^{ἀντίτυποι} are figures of Christ. He also bathed Himself in the river Jordan, and having imparted of the fragrance of His Godhead to the waters, He came up from them; and the Holy Ghost in substance lighted on Him, like resting upon like. In the^{οὐσιώδης ἐπιφοίτησις} same manner to you also, after you had come up from the pool of the sacred streams, was given the Unction, the emblem^{ἀντίτυπος} of that wherewith Christ was anointed; and this is the Holy Ghost; of whom also the blessed Esaias, in his prophecy respecting Him, says in the person of the Lord, The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He hath anointed Me to preach glad tidings to the poor. Is. 61, 1.

2. For Christ was not anointed by men with oil or material (2.) ointment, but the Father having appointed Him to be the Saviour of the whole world, anointed Him with the Holy Ghost, as Peter says, Jesus of Nazareth, whom God anointed Acts 10, 38.

 with the spiritual oil of gladness, the Holy Ghost, who is so called, because He is the author of spiritual gladness, so ye were anointed with ointment, having been made partakers and (3.) 3. But beware of supposing this to be plain ointment. For as the Bread of the Eucharist, after the invocation of the Holy Ghost, is mere bread no longer, but the Body of Christ, so also this holy ointment is no more simple ointment, nor (so to say) common, after the invocation, but the gift of Christ ; and by the presence of His Godhead, it causes in us the Holy Ghost. It is symbolically applied to thy forehead and thy other senses ; and while thy body is anointed with visible ointment, thy soul is sanctified by the Holy and life-giving Spirit.

4. And ye were first anointed on your forehead, that ye might be delivered from the shame, which the first man, when he had transgressed, bore about with him every where ; and that with devil. For as Christ after His baptism, and the descent of the Holy Ghost, went forth and vanquished the adversary, so likewise, having, after Holy Baptism and the Mystical Chrism, put on the whole armour of the Holy Ghost, do ye stand against the power of the enemy, and vanquish it, saying, I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Phil. 4, 13.

5. When ye are counted worthy of this Holy Chrism, ye (4.) are called Christians, verifying also the name by your new birth. For before you were vouchsafed this grace, ye had properly no right to this title, but were advancing on your way towards being Christians.

6. Moreover, you should know that this Chrism has its symbol in the old Scripture. For what time Moses imparted to his brother the command of God, and made him High-priest, after bathing in water, he anointed him; and Aaron was called Christ or Anointed, from the emblematical Chrism. So also the High-priest raising Solomon to the kingdom, anointed him after he had bathed in Gihon. To them how- 1 Kings 1, 39.
ever these things happened in a figure, but to you not in a figure, but in truth; because ye were truly anointed by the Holy Ghost. Christ is the beginning of your salvation; He is truly the First-fruit, and ye the mass; but if the First-fruit v. Rom. 11, 16.
be holy, it is manifest that Its holiness will pass to the mass also.

7. Keep This unspotted: for It shall teach you all things (5.) if It abides in you, as you have just heard declared by the blessed John, who discourses much concerning this Chrism. For this holy thing is a spiritual preservative of the body, and safeguard of the soul. Of this in ancient times the blessed Esaias prophesying said, And in this mountain,—Is. 25, 6.
(now he calls the Church a mountain elsewhere also, as when he says, In the last days the mountain of the Lord's house Is. 2, 2.

therefore, with this holy ointment, keep it unspotted and unblemished in you, pressing forward by good works, and becoming well-pleasing to the Captain of your salvation, Christ Jesus, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

LECTURE XXII.

(ON THE MYSTERIES. IV.)

ON THE BODY AND BLOOD OF CHRIST.

1 COR. xi. 23.

I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus, the same night in which He was betrayed, took bread, &c.

LECT.
XXII.
Myst. 4.

1. THIS teaching of the Blessed Paul is alone sufficient to give you a full assurance concerning those Divine Mysteries, which when ye are vouchsafed, ye are of the same body and blood with Christ. For he has just distinctly said, That our Lord Jesus Christ the same night in which He was betrayed, took bread, and when He had given thanks He brake it, and said, Take, eat, this is My Body: and having taken the cup and given thanks, He said, Take, drink, this is My Blood. Since then He Himself has declared and said of the Bread, This is My Body, who shall dare to doubt any longer? And since He has affirmed and said, This is My Blood, who shall ever hesitate, saying, that it is not His blood?

2. He once turned water into wine, in Cana of Galilee, at His own will^a, and is it incredible that He should have turned wine into blood? That wonderful work He miraculously wrought, when called to an earthly marriage; and shall He not much rather be acknowledged to have bestowed the fruition of His Body and Blood on the children of the bride-chamber?

3. Therefore with fullest assurance let us partake as of the

^a Οἰκίῳ νέύματι. Milles, οἰκεῖον αἷματι, “which is akin to blood.” Ed. Ben.

Body and Blood of Christ: for in the figure^b of Bread is ^{ἐν τύπῳ.} given to thee His Body, and in the figure of Wine His Blood; that thou by partaking of the Body and Blood of Christ, mightest be made of the same body and the same blood with Him. For thus we come to bear Christ in us, <sup>χρηστοφύροι.
ἀναδιδόμίνου.
2 Pet. 1,
4.</sup> because His Body and Blood are diffused through our members; thus it is that, according to the blessed Peter, we become partakers of the divine nature.

4. Christ on a certain occasion discoursing with the Jews said, Except ye eat My flesh and drink My blood, ye have no <sup>John 6, 53.</sup> life in you. They not receiving His saying spiritually were offended, and went backward, supposing that He was inviting <sup>ἐπὶ σαρ-κοφα-γίαν.</sup> them to eat flesh.

5. Even under the Old Testament there was shew-bread; (2.) but this as it belonged to the Old Testament, came to an end; but in the New Testament there is the Bread of heaven, <sup>v. Ps.
78, 24.
v. Ps.
116, 12.</sup> and the Cup of salvation, sanctifying soul and body; for as the Bread has respect to our body, so is the Word appropriate to our soul.

6. Contemplate therefore the Bread and Wine not as bare ^{ψιλοῖς.} elements, for they are, according to the Lord's declaration, the Body and Blood of Christ; for though sense suggests this to thee, let faith stablish thee. Judge not the matter from taste, but from faith be fully assured without misgiving, that thou hast been vouchsafed the Body and Blood of Christ.

7. The blessed David also shall advise thee the meaning of this, saying, Thou hast prepared a table before me in the ^{Ps. 23, 5.} presence of mine enemies. What he says, is to this effect. Before Thy coming, evil spirits prepared a table for men, foul and polluted and full of all devilish influence; but since Thy coming, O Lord, Thou hast prepared a table before me. When the man says to God, Thou hast prepared before me a table, what other does he mean but that mystical and spiritual ^{νοητήν.} Table, which God hath prepared over against, that is, contrary and in opposition to the evil spirits? And very truly; for

^b Ἐν τύπῳ. The word τύπος sometimes means that which stands for a thing present, sometimes that which stands for a thing absent, either 1. a type, as when Joshua is said to be a type of Christ.

vid. sup. Lect. x. 11. and as τυπικῶς and ἀληθῶς are contrasted in xxi. 6: or 2. an index, as Lect. iii. 6. where S. John Baptist's dress &c. is spoken of as a type of his inward character; and xiii. 18.

LECT. that had fellowship with devils, but this, with God. Thou

 Sept. Ps. 25, 5. here spoken of, which Jesus took in His hands, and gave Mat. 26, 28. thanks, and said, This is My blood, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

8. Therefore Solomon also, pointing at this grace, says in Eccles. 9, 7. Ecclesiastes, Come hither, eat thy bread with joy, (that is, the
 v. Sept. spiritual bread; Come hither, calling with words of salvaπνευμα- tion and blessing,) and drink thy wine with a merry heart;

 ment, (thou seest he alludes even to the mystic Chrism;) and let thy garments be always white, for God now accepteth thy works; for before thou camest to Baptism, thy works were vanity of vanities. But now, having put off thy old garments, and put on those which are spiritually white, πνευμα- thou must be continually robed in white; we mean not clothed me with the garments of salvation, He hath covered me with the robe of gladness.

LECTURE XXIII.

(ON THE MYSTERIES. V.)

ON THE COMMUNION SERVICE.

1 PET. ii. 1.

Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and evil speakings, &c.

1. ON former times of our meeting together, ye have heard sufficiently, by the loving-kindness of God, concerning Baptism, and Chrism, and the partaking of the Body and Blood of Christ; and now it is necessary to pass on to what is next in order, meaning to-day to give the finish to your spiritual edification.

2. Ye saw then the Deacon give to the Priest water to wash, and to the Presbyters who stood round God's altar. He gave it, not at all because of bodily defilement; no; for we did not set out for the Church with defiled bodies. But this washing of hands is a symbol that ye ought to be pure from all sinful and unlawful deeds; for since the hands are a symbol of action, by washing them we represent the purity and blamelessness of our conduct. Hast thou not heard the blessed David opening this mystery, and saying, I will wash my hands in innocency, and so will I compass Ps.26,6. Thine Altar, O Lord? The washing therefore of hands is a symbol of immunity from sin.

3. Then the Deacon cries aloud, "Receive ye one another; (2.) and let us kiss one another." Think not that this kiss ranks with those given in public by common friends. It is not

LECT. XXIII. such: this kiss blends souls one with another, and solicits Myst. 5. for them entire forgiveness. Therefore this kiss is the sign

Mat. 5, remembrance of wrongs. For this cause Christ said, If thou

bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift upon the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. The kiss therefore is reconciliation, and for this reason holy: as the blessed Paul

1 Cor. has in his Epistles urged; Greet ye one another with a holy

1 Pet. 5, 4. After this the Priest cries aloud, "Lift up your hearts."

(3.) For truly ought we in that most awful hour to have our heart on high with God, and not below, thinking of earth and earthly things. The Priest then in effect bids all in that hour abandon all worldly thoughts, or household cares, and to have their heart in heaven with the merciful God. Then ye answer, "We lift them up unto the Lord:" assenting to him, by your avowal. But let no one come here, who with his lips can say "We lift up our hearts to the Lord," but in mind employs his thoughts on worldly business. God indeed should be in our memory at all times, but if this is impossible by reason of human infirmity, at least in that hour, this should be our earnest endeavour.

(4.) 5. Then the Priest says, "Let us give thanks to the Lord." For in good sooth are we bound to give thanks, that He has called us, unworthy as we are, to so great grace; that He has reconciled us who were His foes; that He hath vouchsafed to us the Spirit of adoption. Then ye say, "It is meet and right:" for in giving thanks we do a meet thing and a right; but He did, not a right thing, but what was more than right, when He did us good, and counted us meet for such great benefits.

(5.) 6. After this, we make mention of heaven, and earth, and sea; of the sun and moon; of the stars and all the creation, rational and irrational, visible and invisible; of Angels, Archangels, Virtues, Dominions, Principalities, Powers, Thrones; of the Cherubim with many faces: in effect repeating that call of David's, Magnify the Lord with me. We make mention also of the Seraphim, whom Esaias by the Holy Ghost beheld encircling the throne of God, and with two of their wings veiling their countenances, and with two their feet, and with two flying, who cried, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth. For for this cause rehearse we this confession of God, delivered down to us from the Seraphim, that we may join in Hymns with the hosts of the world above.

τῆς παραδοθεί-σαν θιολογίαν.

7. Then having sanctified ourselves by these spiritual Hymns, we call upon the merciful God to send forth His Holy Spirit upon the gifts lying before Him; that He may make the Bread the Body of Christ, and the Wine the Blood of Christ; for whatsoever the Holy Ghost has touched, is sanctified and changed.

ἐπὶ τὰ προκει-
μένα.

8. Then, after the spiritual sacrifice is perfected, the Bloodless Service upon that Sacrifice of Propitiation, we entreat God for the common peace of the Church, for the tranquillity of the world; for kings; for soldiers and allies; for the sick; for the afflicted; and, in a word, for all who stand in need of succour we all supplicate and offer this Sacrifice.

δεομένων
δεόμεθα.

9. Then we commemorate also those who have fallen asleep before us, first, Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles, Martyrs, that at their prayers and intervention God would receive our petition. Afterwards also on behalf of the holy Fathers and Bishops who have fallen asleep before us, and in a word of all who in past years have fallen asleep among us, believing that it will be a very great advantage to the souls, for whom the supplication is put up, while that Holy and most Awful Sacrifice is presented.

10. And I wish to persuade you by an illustration. For I know that many say^a, what is a soul profited, which departs

^a So Tertullian, as regards the doctrine of the Trinity. "Simplices enim quique, ne dixerim imprudentes et idiotæ, quæ major semper credentium pars est, quoniam et ipsa regula fidei a pluribus diis sæculi, ad unicum et verum Deum transfert, non intelligentes unicum quidem, sed cum sua œconomia esse credendum, expavescunt ad œconomiam." In Prax. 3. There is a close parallel between the two passages. Tertullian professes the Catholic doctrine of the Trinity; notices the objections which private Christians brought against it, and commits himself in answer to a private and erroneous explanation. (in Prax. 5. 6. &c.) So S. Cyril here bears witness as to what was done in the Eucharistic Rite, alludes to doubts and inquiries raised about it, and, by way of answer, comments on it in words which may be taken to countenance the idea of a Purgatory. S. Cyril by himself as little proves the latter, as Tertullian that the Son of God is not from eternity.

LECT. from this world either with sins, or without sins, if it be XXIII. commemorated in the prayer? Now surely if, when a king had Myst. 5. banished certain who had given him offence, their connections should weave a crown and offer it to him on behalf of those under his vengeance, would he not grant a respite to their punishments? In the same way we, when we offer to Him our supplications for those who have fallen asleep, though they be sinners^b, weave no crown, but offer up Christ, sacrificed for our sins, propitiating our merciful God both for them and for ourselves.

ἀμαρτωλοί.

(8.) 11. Then, after these things, we say that Prayer which the Saviour delivered to His own disciples, with a pure conscience styling God our Father, and saying, Our Father, which art in heaven. O most surpassing loving-kindness of God!
 On them who revolted from Him and were in the very extreme of misery has He bestowed such complete forgiveness of their evil deeds, and so great participation of grace, as that they should even call Him Father. Our Father, which art in heaven; they also too are a heaven who bear 2 Cor. 6, the image of the heavenly, in whom God is, dwelling and
 16. walking in them.

(9.) 12. Hallowed be thy Name. The Name of God is in its own nature holy, whether we say so or not; but since it is sometimes profaned among sinners, according to the words,
Through you My Name is continually blasphemed among the Gentiles, we pray that in us God's Name may be hallowed; not that it becomes holy from not being holy, but because it becomes holy in us, when we become holy, and do things worthy of holiness.

(10.) 13. Thy kingdom come. The clean soul can say with boldness, Thy kingdom come; for he who has heard Paul Rom. 6, saying, Let not sin reign in your mortal body, but has
 12. cleansed himself in deed, thought, and word, will say to God, Thy kingdom come.

(11.) 14. Thy will be done as in heaven so in earth. The divine and blessed Angels do the will of God, as David in a Psalm Ps. 103, has said, Bless the Lord, ye His Angels, that excel in strength, 20.

^b It may be added to the last note that S. Cyril, in saying that the Eucharist avails for ἀμαρτωλοί, "sinners," contradicts the Roman doctrine, which considers Purgatory to be conceded to none but imperfect believers.

that do His commandments. So then, thou meanest by thy prayer, "as Thy will is done by the Angels, so be it done on earth also by me, Lord."

15. Give us this day our super-substantial bread^c. This (12.) common bread is not super-substantial bread, but this Holy Bread is super-substantial, that is, appointed for the substance of the soul. For this Bread goeth not into the belly and is cast Mat. 15, 17. out into the draught, but is diffused through all thou art, for ἀναδίδο-
ται. σὺστασιν. the benefit of body and soul. But by this day, he means, "each day," as also Paul has said, While it is called to-day. Heb. 3,

16. And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. 13. (13.) For we have many sins. For we offend both in word and in thought, and very many things do we worthy of condemnation; and if we say that we have no sin, we lie, as John 1 John 1. 8. says. And we enter into a covenant with God, entreating Him to pardon our sins, as we also forgive our neighbours their debts. Considering then what we receive and for what, let us not put off, nor delay to forgive one another. The offences committed against us are slight and trivial, and easily settled; but those which we have committed against God are great, and call for mercy such as His only is. Take heed therefore, lest for these small and inconsiderable sins against thyself, thou bar against thyself forgiveness from God for thy most grievous sins.

17. And lead us not into temptation, O Lord. Does then (14.) the Lord teach to pray thus, viz. that we may not be tempted at all? And how is it said elsewhere, "the man who is not tempted, is unproved^d;" and again, My brethren, count it all Jam. 1, joy when ye fall into divers temptations; or rather does not ^{2.} the entering into temptation mean the being whelmed under the temptation? For the temptation is like a winter-torrent difficult to cross. Some then, being most skilful swimmers, pass over, not being whelmed beneath temptations, nor swept down by them at all; while others who are not such,

^c Ἐπιούσιος is so explained by Jerome, who for the panem quotidianum of the old Latin version, substituted panem super-substantialem. Others explain the word to mean future or to come, i. e. the new or spiritual bread, the bread of the new kingdom which is promised us. vid. Athan. de Incarn. 16. Damasc. de Fid.

Orth. iv. 13. Others to mean sufficient, or necessary. vid. Theophylact. in Matt. vi. Basil. Reg. Brev. 252.

^d This is not in Scripture, but seems rather to be a proverb giving the sense of Scripture. It is referred to by Nazianzen, (Ep. 215.) &c. Ed. Ben.

LECT. entering into them sink in them. As for example, Judas XXIII. entering into the temptation of covetousness, swam not Myst. 5. through it, but sinking beneath it was choked both in body and spirit. Peter entered into the temptation of the denial; but having entered it, he was not overwhelmed by it, but manfully swimming through it, he was delivered from the temptation. Listen again, in another place, to the company of unscathed saints, giving thanks for deliverance from temptation, For Thou, O God, hast proved us; Thou hast tried us
 Ps. 66, like as silver is tried. Thou broughtest us into the net; Thou 10—12. laidest affliction upon our loins. Thou hast caused men to ride over our heads; we went through fire and through water; but Thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place. Thou seest them speaking boldly, because they passed through and were not pierced. But Thou broughtest us out into a wealthy place; now their coming into a wealthy place, is their being delivered from temptation.

(15.) 18. But deliver us from the evil. If Lead us not into temptation had implied the not being tempted at all, He would not have said, But deliver us from the evil. Now the evil is the Wicked Spirit who is our adversary, from whom we pray to be delivered. Then, after completing the prayer, Thou sayest, Amen; by this Amen, which means, “So be it,” setting thy seal to the petitions of this divinely-taught prayer.

19. After this the Priest says, “Holy things to holy men.”
 (16.) Holy are the gifts presented, since they have been visited by the Holy Ghost; holy are you also, having been vouchsafed the Holy Ghost; the holy things therefore correspond to the holy persons. Then ye say, “One is Holy, One is the Lord, Jesus Christ.” For truly One is holy, by nature holy; we too are holy, but not by nature, only by participation, and discipline, and prayer.

(17.) 20. After this ye hear the chanter, with a sacred melody inviting you to the communion of the Holy Mysteries, and saying, O taste and see that the Lord is good. Trust not the decision to thy bodily palate; no, but to faith unfaltering; for when we taste we are bidden to taste, not bread and wine, but the sign^c of the Body and Blood of Christ.

21. Approaching therefore, come not with thy wrists extended, or thy fingers open; but make thy left hand as if a throne for thy right, which is on the eve of receiving the King. And having hallowed thy palm, receive the Body of Christ, saying after it, Amen. Then after thou hast with carefulness hallowed thine eyes by the touch of the Holy Body, partake thereof; giving heed lest thou lose any of it; for what thou lovest, is a loss to thee as it were from one of thine own members. For tell me, if any one gave thee gold dust, wouldest thou not with all precaution keep it fast, being on thy guard against losing any of it, and suffering loss? How much more cautiously then wilt thou observe that not a crumb falls from thee, of what is more precious than gold and precious stones?

22. Then after having partaken of the Body of Christ, (19.) approach also to the Cup of His Blood; not stretching forth ^{πρόσω} thine hands, but bending and saying in the way of worship ^{προσκυ-} and reverence, Amen, be thou hallowed by partaking also of ^{νήσεως} the blood of Christ. And while the moisture is still upon thy ^{καὶ σι-} lips, touching it with thine hands, hallow both thine eyes and ^{βάσμα-} brow and the other senses. Then wait for the prayer, and give thanks unto God, who hath accounted thee worthy of so great mysteries.

23. Hold fast these traditions unspotted, and keep yourselves free from offence. Sever not yourselves from the Communion; deprive not yourselves, by the pollution of sins, of these Holy and Spiritual Mysteries. And the God of peace ^{1 Thess.} sanctify you wholly; and may your whole spirit, and soul, ^{5, 23.} *and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ:—To whom be glory and honour and might, with the Father and the Holy Spirit, now and ever, and world without end.
